ARBOR BILL REPORTED

Colorado Survey Approved

Appropriations Measure Goes to Senate from Committee

Million Dollars Added; Includes $6,500,000 for Los Angeles

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

WASHINGTON, Feb. 17.—A river and harbors bill carrying authorizations for projects and surveys for which appropriations aggregating $41,728,136 would be required, was reported favorably today by the Senate Commerce Committee.

The bill, as reported, calls for $6,500,000 more in expenditures than it carried as passed the house, although a number of projects approved by that body were omitted. The amounts of appropriations brought in by committee were reduced in many instances to bring the total of the bill as close as possible to the $50,000,000 limit set by the budget bureau.

Among the approved projects are important links in the Colorado River project including expenditures of $6,500,000 for the Los Angeles Harbor, $1,000,000 for the Long Beach harbor and $1,000,000 for a survey for the Lawrence Waterway, to be an agency to be used by President Coolidge.

COLORADO SURVEY

The 198 surveys were authorized including the Colorado River, Colorado, Arizona and California. Upon the stream's value before its waters are diverted for domestic uses in the Los Angeles basin. Of the 198 surveys fifty were added by the committee, including the Colorado survey, in the amount of $100,000 for the potential water power on the navigable streams of the country, approved by the committee on the ground the amount would be the cost of such an undertaking. In its place, a request was inserted that the Secretary of War provide an estimate for such a survey.

CAVE KEEPS ITS VICTIM

Collins Left in Earth Tomb

Funeral Service Conducted Over Cavern as Recovery Efforts Are Abandoned

Work of Freeing Body from Crevice is Declared Too Dangerous for Crews

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

CAVE CITY (Ky.) Feb. 17.—On the hill above Sand Cave this afternoon the family and friends held funeral services for Floyd Collins. There was no casket, no corpse, no grave and no marker. Sixty feet underground, in the Sand Cave trap which closed upon him eighteen days ago, lay the body of Collins, discovered a few days too late by the rescuers. Rather than risk the lives of any of the tireless volunteers his family chose to leave him in the cave for his last sleep.

Physicians, his friends and officials of the rescue party crept down into his narrow tomb today to gather the legal evidence that Floyd was buried there and that he was dead. None of his family could take a last look, but the thought that Collins would have chosen such a spot among his beloved caves comforted them.

Mr. and Mrs. Lee Collins were there, silent at the last rites for their son. The aged couple sat side by side in small chairs near the edge of the limestone ledge under which Sand Cave disappears. Behind them, standing on large boulders overlooking the valley below, were a dozen members of a choir gathered from among residents of Cave City.

PARENTS IN GRIEF

Mr. and Mrs. Collins listened with bowed heads while the choir of friends sang "Nearer, My God, to Thee," and the service opened.

The aged father glanced often toward the mouth of Sand Cave, 125 feet away, as the words of the old hymn floated away in the distance. Sand Cave, naked in the absence of its sheltering canopy, yawned silently as he gazed. Rev. Roy H. Biser of Glasgow, a neighboring community, climbed to a stump to read the scriptural passages, and a motion-picture camera started to whirr.

At the outer fringe of the group stood a sentinel with his rifle. Huge rocks were the benches of the outdoor chapel.

Men, unshaved and muddy, who had spent days to save Floyd Collins's life, bared their heads in the chilling breeze. The prayer was offered. The little gathering of 150 men and women heard the Rev. Mr. Biser tell them they were "standing on the precipice in the midst of death," and listened to him give thanks "for the brother-

"THY WILL BE DONE"

With bowed head, Lee Collins (left) father of Floyd Collins, stood at the head of the shaft yesterday while workmen prepared for the sealing of the tomb in which the body of the unfortunate young cave explorer will rest for eternity. On the father's left stands John Marietta, foreman of the shaft job, and below are seen the head and shoulders of Ed Brenner, Cincinnati miner and hero of the attempt at rescue. This photograph was taken yesterday and rushed by airplane from Sand Cave to Louisville, Ky., where a special apparatus for transmitting Telepix photos had been set up.

FILM STAR'S KIN FATALLY HURT BY CAR

Grandfather of Mrs. Lloyd Hit by Automobile; Dies of His Injuries

William Davis, 79 years of age, 326 Sovereign street, grandfather of Mildred Davis (Mrs. Harold Lloyd,) was fatally injured last veening when struck by an automobile. A boy and a middle-aged woman were injured in other traffic accidents.

Mr. Davis received internal injuries when knocked to the pavement by an automobile said by police to have been driven by Charles Townsend, 1324 Newton street. The accident occured at Melrose avenue and Larchmont Boulevard. The victim was removed to the Receiving Hospital and given emergency treatment by police surgeons.

Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd were notified of the accident and immediately drove to the Receiving Hospital. They had Mr. Davis transferred to the Hollywood Hospital, where he died late last night.

Reports received by the police were to the effect that the accident was unavoidable. The driver was not held.

The others injured are Daniel Siotta, 15, of 1964 Sheridan street, and Mrs. Wilma Smith, 1723 Twenty-third street. The boy was struck at Seventh and Olive streets by a Los Angeles Railway bus driven by W. T. Crawford, and suffered a broken pelvis and other injuries. He will recover. Mrs. Smith was knocked down by a Los Angeles Railway car at Ninth and Spring streets. She has internal injuries and is in a critical condition.

Bill Would Give Life for Sale of Drug to Minors

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

HELENA (Mont.) Feb. 17.—The Montana House of Representatives today recommended for passage a bill which would make conviction of selling narcotic drugs to persons under 18 years of age punishable with a life sentence in the penitentiary.

The measure already has passed the Senate.

NEW YORK PLAYS SCORED

Thirteen Productions Censured Concerning Moral Tone; Officials Plan Censorship

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

NEW YORK, Feb. 17.—Broadway's list of plays against which complaints have been preferred, on the grounds of their moral tone, grew to thirteen today. Most of these are said to be doing a "standing-room only" business.

This developed at a conference between Dist.-Atty. Banton, Chief City Magistrate McAdoo, and Police Commissioner Enright.

Mr. Enright entered the meeting with reports on thirteen plays obtained by police detectives and stenographers after citizens had complained. The names of none of the investigated plays was made known, but is was no secret that William A. Brady's "A Good Bad Woman" was on the list.

Mr. Banton announced he would detail his own men to investigate the plays already reported to the police and would then determine if they were to be proceeded against. It may be, he said, that the producers will be given an opportunity to eliminate objectionable matter from some of them, while the fate of others will be put into the hands of the citizen play-jury system decided upon by city officials and representatives of the stage two years ago, but never yet brought into activity.

The District Attorney still awaited the return to town of Mr. Brady before making a decision as to his course concerning "A Good Bad Woman." Mr. Eaton said he believed the play will be withdrawn altogether. One of the other plays complained against, he said "was even worse."

He said he had not made up his mind about taking any of the plays to the grand jury.

Proceedings through a magistrate's court will be speedier, he said, but will result in much publicity which will partly defeat his ends, in that it will widely advertise the prosecuted plays. Grand jury proceedings will be in secret, though the legal process will necessarily be slowed down.

The war on objectionable plays has stirred wide interest among ministers, producers, actors and civic leaders. An actors' protest meeting against uncleam productions is to be held Thursday and Rev. Charles M. Gilbert of the Episcopal Social Service Commission has called a meeting of producers, managers, actors and reform organization representatives for the following day.

UNMOVED BY NEW RICHES

Poor Miner Wants Money Only to Continue Experiments, He Says After Winning $20,000,000 Suit

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 17.—Just what to do with the fortune of $20,000,000, which George Campbell Carson, itinerant miner of this city, expects to get as the result of a decision of the United States Circuit Court of Appeals in his favor in his suits against several large smelting and mining companies for infringement of patents, was not worrying him much today.

He accepted the ruling of the court with more composure than did many of his fellow-citizens who read of it.

He said he had formed no particular plans for the future in connection with his new-found wealth. If anybody had any clever ideas about how he can spend it, he said he was willing to consider them. The only thing he plans to do is to experiment further. He is 58 years of age, and that is all he has ever done.

He has no idea of getting married.

"I never shined up to a girl in my life that I didn't get the mitten," Carson said today. "It is not my nature to please the ladies."

He has no desire to save humanity. "It couldn't be done, anyway."

Nothing along the charity line. "Charity like that would only create an army of grafters," he said.

"But in all these years you have lived with the men on the water front, you surely have formed some idea of how to help them," an interviewer remarked.

"I'd arrest all the bootleggers—that's the best way you could help those fellows down there," he replied.

Carson is not embittered by his fight with the great copper corporations. They may have made millions out of his patent, but that didn't make him a Bolshevik.

"I'll bet 1000 people have tried to tell me how crooked the judges are," he ruminated. "I've laughed at them. The American judges are the best friends that the poor inventor has."

He has never thought for a minute of buying the modest little lodging house for seamen at Broadway and Front street, where he has lived for the last fifteen years, and presenting it with a grand flourish to the landlord who rents it.

OVERTURE BY LEAGUE

America to Get Arms Note

Desires to Know Obstacles to Federal Control of Gun Manufacture

Review of Europe Financial Status Says Conditions Steadily Improving

[BY CABLE AND ASSOCIATED PRESS]

GENEVA, Feb. 17.—The United States will be asked what legislative difficulties, if any, are in the way of national control of the private manufacture of arms by reason of a decision reached tonight by the substitute Council of the League of Nations. This second Council of the League, which was created to examine the disarmament question, has agreed that, although the proposed conference for the control of the manufacture of arms should not be convoked until some future date, the work of preparing for such a conference should be actively pushed.

It, therefore, decided that the special committee of the League Disarmament Commission, of which the substitute Council forms part, should be appointed as a comittee of study.

The committee's immediate duty will be to ask all governments including that of the United States, whether, under their present legislation or constitution, they can assure national supervision of private manufacture of arms.

The League Council will submit its recommendations to the entire Disarmament Commission tomorrow and recommend ratification, which is expected. Tonight's decision is interpreted here as meaning that the leaders have become convinced that nothing real can be achieved in the supervision of the private manufacture of armaments without the active collaboration of the United States.

AMERICAN STAND

The United States was the center of discussion throughout the day's meetings. The previous speakers, addressing the full disarmanent commission, emphasized the necessity of American collaboration, but all seemed under the impression that the United States did not desire an invitation to the conference on private manufacture. This belief was chiefly the outgrowth of the statement by Mr. McNeill that legislation in various American States would prevent effective collaboration by the Washington government.

Professor Dupries of Belgium cited the name of the American Undersecretary of State, Joseph C. Grew, and remarked that he received the impression from what Mr. Grew said at Geneva, that it might be difficult for America to participate in the private manufacture conference.

H. Jouhaux, France, who made a vigorous speech insisting on immediate action, asserted that he, on the contrary, did not receive an entirely pessimistic impression from Mr. Grew's remarks.

EUROPEAN FINANCES

Reviewing the European financial situation as gleaned through the investigations of the League of Nations financial committee, a communique issued tonight says that the situation is steadily improving. "The advance toward stability in the value of currency has been remarkable in the last year or two, and Austria, Germany, Hungary, Switzerland, Czecho-Slovakia, Sweden, Finland, Esthonia, Poland, Lithuania, Latvia, Danzig and Jugo-Slavia are listed as countries already achieving stability.

The communique adds:

"To a great extent from a budget viewpoint France and Belgium also have achieved it. Belgium has achieved budget equilibrium and France is more or less on the verge of doing so. For France it is now a case of from 2,000,000,000 to 4,000,000,000 francs deficit as compared with 20,000,000,000 to 25,000,000,000 a few years ago.

"Now that the prerequisite conditions for stability are fulfilled, the problem is whether the states shall return to pre-war parity or stabilize on the present level."

Concerning Austria, the statement emphasizes that the chairman of the committee has voiced the conviction that Austria fully intends to pursue more energetically execution of its program both in relation to budget equilibrium and to economic development.

After remarking that Hungarian reconstruction, under Jeremiah Smith of Boston, has made an excellent start, the communique concludes by declaring that the general European situation has been vastly ameliorated since the Genoa conference "whose resolutions favoring stabilization of currency were hardly more than pious wishes."

TAX PROPOSED ON BOBBED HAIR

English City Has Precedent in Levies Against Powdered Wigs

BATH (Eng.) Feb. 17.—A tax on bobbed heads to assist the municipality of Bath in balancing its budget is proposed by City Councilman S. R. Lewin. Quite an income was derived here by a tax on the powdered hair of the ladies of the seventeenth century, he points out.

The money derived from the bobbing tax, he suggested, might be considered a "poll tax."

MRS. KAHN WINS PLACE IN CONGRESS

Widow is Elected to Seat Made Vacant by Husband's Recent Death

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 17.—Mrs. Florence Prag Kahn was today elected to Congress to represent California in the seat left vacant by the death of her husband, Julius Kahn, unofficial figures indicated. For the 252 precincts in the Fourth Congressional District, the figures complete, but unofficial are:

Mrs. Kahn, 12,276; Raymond A. Burr, 10,056; H. W. Hutton, 2138; Henry Claude Huck, 347

California's newest Congresswoman is the second that has represented the Golden State, the first being Mrs. Mae Nolan, who was chosen to succeed her husband, who died before his term had been completed.

Congresswoman Kahn has no fads or hobbies, she told the Associated Press tonight after she had received word of her election.

"I have always been too busy to have a fad or a hobby," she said. "Nor do I believe in all this 'motherhood, feminist blah' when a woman enters politics. I shall try to do each day the little duties that arise just as any woman would in her home or a man in his home or office, or as either a man or a woman should when elected to public office. In fact, I shall hope to maintain the standard for patriotic duty set for me by my husband, and the memory of him is the only strain of sadness for me in all of this. His loss I feel more keenly than ever tonight, and yet I am happy that I have been elected and am to be given an opportunity to work in Congress for my State as he worked. That means working long hours and hard."

Cold Weather Spreads Over Middle West

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

CHICAGO, Feb. 17.—Continued cold, with minimum temperature of 16 deg. above zero, was predicted by the Weather Bureau today.

No immediate relief was promised. According to the forecast, tonight will be cloudy with probably more snow. Low temperature recorded today was 11deg. above zero.

The area of cold weather had now advanced southward into Texas and eastward across the upper lake region and Ohio Valley, the general report shows. Low temperatures continue in Canada. Fair weather was the rule today over the western two-thirds of the country, while in the Eastern States unsettled conditions prevail, with rather general precipitation since yesterday.

AIR FAILURE INTIMATED

Defense Reports Kept Secret

Alarming State of Nation's Planes Said to Have Been Told House Committee

Mitchell's Stand Apparently Upheld as Deficiency of Aerial Equipment Cited

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

WASHINGTON, Feb. 17.—An alarming picture of America's utter unpreparedness for an adequate defense in the air is said to have been drawn before the House Aircraft Committee in secret session this afternoon by the chiefs of the Army General Staff and the Navy General Board.

Rear-Admiral Hilary P. Jones, president of the Navy General Board, accompanied by Assistant Secretary of the Navy Robinson, and Maj.-Gen. John L. Hinds, Chief of Staff of the Army, with his aide, Maj. F. B. Wilby, appeared before the committee behind closed doors and laid their cards upon the table. From the maze of contradictory testimony, of charges and counter-charges that have gone before, the committee wanted the answer to the question:

"What is the actual situation of the nation at this moment as to defense by air?"

While neither those who revealed the secrets of the two arms of the service nor members of the committee would discuss the hearing, it has been learned that the picture presented was appalling.

GLARING DEFICIENCIES

If the United States were attacked tonight by a hostile force, here is what the enemy would find:

The Regular Army, based on its present strength and organization, should have as required initial equipment, 461 airplanes of various types. We have seventy-nine.

We should have 196 planes of the attack group. We have one. We should have 196 planes of the pursuit group. We have twenty-one. We should have fifty-eight planes of the bombardment type. We have twenty-four.

In Hawaii we should have fifty pursuit planes. We have none. We should have thirteen planes of the observation type. We have none. The requirements call for twenty-six planes of the bombardment type. We have nine.

Conditions in the Philipines are no better. There, we should have twenty-five pursuit planes. We have none. We should have thirteen observation planes. We have none. We should have thirteen bombers. We have ten.

PANAMA STATUS

Coming closer home, to Panama, we should have twenty-five pursuit and thirteen observation planes. There is none of either at the army hangars on the Isthmus. The requirements call for thirteen bombers there and we have fourteen. This is the only place and the only instance in our entire land forces at home or overseas in which the initial requirement has been filled.

And these figures do not take into consideration replacements of planes lost in action or by accidents. They are merely "initial" equipment—the number of planes required for the personnel provided by present army strength.

SEEK TO FIX BLAME

Who is to blame? That is the question the committee attempted to have answered today. Rumors leaked out that the going between Gen. Hines and his questioners was heavy at times during the inquiry. The blame, it is said, was first placed upon the shoulders of Maj.-Gen. Mason M. Patrick, chief of the army air service, but Gen. Hines is said to have been forced to admit under a volley of questions that the general staff had not provided Gen. Patrick with recommendations and suggestions concerning the improvement of the air service. It is said to have been brought out that there are only two air service officers on the general staff of approximately 100.

Pinned down at one point during his examination, according to one story of the hearing, Gen. Hines is said to have admitted he amounted to little more than a

GAS PRICES IS MADE ISSUE

Senate and House Debate Question; Inquiry Held Up; Huge Dividends Attacked

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

WASHINGTON, Feb. 17.—Increased gasoline prices today developed sharp issues in both houses of Congress. In the Senate, a resolution by Senator Trammell, Democrat, Florida, for a Federal Trade Commission investigation was debated without action, while in the House a committee examined Bureau of Mines officials in an effort to determine causes for recent higher prices in Washington.

Senator Tremmell asserted there was no justification for increases of from 4 to 6 cents a gallon in recent weeks. Senator Harreld, Republican, Oklahoma, contended, however, crude oil production had fallen off and that the price boosts were the result of natural outgrowth.

Before the House committee, F. B. Tough, Bureau of Mines expert, said he had no information to lead him to believe the price of gasoline in Washington was unfair, adding that he spoke as an individual.

Chairman Zihlman declared Interior Department figures had shown the largest rate of production in December, at which time the price increases started, and Mr. Tough replied that formerly stocks started to increase in October and November, but that this year they did not begin until December.

Both Senator Curtis, Kansas, the Republican leader, and Senator Harreld, referred to previous investigations of the oil industry, the Oklahoman declaring "too many investigations will ruin any business." Senator Curtis thought the Trammell resolution should be referred to the Senate Interstate Commerce Committee, inasmuch as prosecutions had been started, or were pending as a result of the Federal Trade Commission's report of 1923. That investigation, he said, cost $23,000, and before another was ordered it should be considered by a Senate committee.

Senator Trammell asserted the 1923 report of the commission showed the oil industry was mo-bood of man as manifested by those who have risked their lives on this site."

The story of Floyd Collins, uncertain in its outcome, uncertain even from day to day, Mr. Biser referred to as paralleling the romance of mankind itself. No other incident within memory, he said, had brought so many prayers from the brotherhood of man for one fellow man trapped underground.

LOVED THE CAVES

"Floyd loved the caverns and caves; loved them as some of us love flowers and the birds," he continued. "Now he is enshrined in his sarcophagus of stone, where his body lies in peace."

"It was Floyd's wish to be buried in a cave," the speaker added, and then related a dream that angels came and took him away from a cave where he was imprisoned.

Heroic deeds have laid a permanent monument for the whole country in the exhibitions of courage and stamina revealed for eighteen days at Sand Cave, Rev. C. K. Dickey of Horse Cave said. He supplemented Mr. Biser's statement that the spot would forever be sacred to the memory of him who had called forth so much loving kindness.

J. F. Van Cleve of Glasgow spoke in a voice so low that the trickling of water down the opposite hillside only emphasized the solemnity of the occasion. Faint clicks from cameras were audible as Van Cleve told softly of how men emerging from the rescue shaft had dropped like dead on their cots night after night.

The remainder was short.

TO BE SEALED IN TOMB

Mr. Dickey conducted the committal, and a Glasgow undertaker dropped a bit of ashes, a tiny fluttering fern and a bit of earth as Floyd's unseen remains were committed to his Maker.

Fifty-five minutes had elapsed when the final "amen" brought the closing of the services. Such was the last hour of spiritual tribute to Floyd Collins.

A few more hours and his body will have been sealed in its tomb deep in the earth below. A block of concrete will be permitted to solidify in the lateral leading from the rescue shaft, while the shaft proper will be filled with rock and earth from the vicinity. The entrance to the cave will be boarded shut with heavy timbers and Floyd Collins henceforth will rest undisturbed.

The last chapter of the tragedy was written tonight when the Coroner's jury returned its verdict: Floyd Collins came to his death "from exposure caused by being accidentally entrapped in what is commonly known as Sand Cave," the jury declared.

RECOVERY WORK HELD TOO DANGEROUS

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

CAVE CITY (Ky.) Feb. 17.—"Twenty men stood ready to go on and face almost certain death to bring Floyd Collins's body out of Sand Cave, if I had asked them.

"But, I couldn't ask them. Some one, maybe several, would have been killed. The chances were seventy to one against them. And it wasn't worth it just to try to bring a dead man up seventy feet after we had made it possible for a dozen of his close friends and relatives to look at him for the last time and to identify him.

"But, please, boys, say that it ended in a fight and not a quit," said H. T. Carmichael, engineer leader of the vain attempt to rescue Collins and bring out his body.

ENTOMBED IN UNUSED WELL

Nebraskan's Experience as Tot Recalled by Collins Tragedy; Early Case Also Nation-Wide Story

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

ERICKSON (Neb.) Feb. 17.—Frank Detweiler, 40 years of age, farmer of Wheeler county, near here, is one Nebraskan who has followed the fortunes of Floyd Collins's rescuers with vast interest. When Detweiler was 3 years of age, in 1888, he spent four days and nights in an old well on the premises of his father, a farmer living at that time near Neligh, Antelope county.

Early wells in the prairie regions of Nebraska went deep, but they were narrow-bored affairs. On the Detweiler farm was one sixty feet deep, abandoned because the water flow had departed. The tubing had been removed from it. While crawling about the back yard the lad, then 3 years of age, pushed off the cover and started to peer into its depths. He lost his balance and fell into it. He landed bent double with his hands and feet up, and just about filled up the narrow space.

The boy was found there hours afterward. This was on Thursday. Because of the crumbling character of the dirt walls it was not possible to reach the child by the original hole, and it was necessary to start sinking another sixty-foot well four feet from the old one. When this was accomplished the following Sunday, another difficulty was encountered, the possibility of a cave-in when a tunnel was run from the new well to the old one.

Luckily, two old miners who had had experience in the Black Hills were neighbors, and these did the necessary timbering of the tunnel so that when the last few inches of dirt were cut away it was possible to grasp the little chap. The rescue was effected at 2 o'clock Monday morning.

During his entombment in the well milk was lowered to him, and this he was able to clutch with his hands, which were freed just enough at the wrists to permit movement. To keep him from crying, candy was lowered to him at intervals. Four days after his rescue the boy had entirely recovered from any ill effects, and is now the head of a large and healthy family.

The boy's predicament was a nation-wide story even in those days. Several times daily bulletins were wired to the press associations, giving the news of the progress of the work of rescuers, and hundreds of the curious drove and walked many miles to visit the scene where the task was being pushed. The men in charge worked day and night, all of it being by hand, the hole being made large enough so that men could follow it as it was deepened.

HARBOR BILL IS APPROVED

which will furnish water for the country and towns from Redlands to the sea, said Representative Lineberger, who introduced the bill which enabled the Colorado River survey being included in the river and harbor measure.

Representative Lineberger stated his bill is in harmony with other legislation relating to the Aqueduct scheme and provided for Federal legislation covering the Aqueduct project if such legislation should ever be needed.

BARS LEGAL TANGLES

The Colorado River being technically a navigable stream and therefore under control of the War Department and chief of engineers, the survey is necessary to forestall possible legal tangles with the Federal government, he said.

Commenting on the $4,540,000 Los Angeles harbor project which is authorized in the rivers and harbors bill, Lineberger said it would provide for five and one-half square miles of anchorage in the harbor, making the port equal to the greatest harbors of the world. With an enlarged harbor Los Angeles can develop simultaneously with San Francisco, Seattle and Portland to participate in the "Pacific era" of the world. Credit for the successful harbor project is largely due to the people of Los Angeles who contributed generously to the preliminary work on the venture, Lineberger said.

the bay, enough money to fix up a laboratory, where I can 'sperriment," he said.

Carson's lawyer, John H. Miller, patent attorney with an office in the Crocker Building, will get one-third of the staggering fortune.

"I've still got several half-baked ideas on copper reducing, and I'll fix up a little laboratory and have all I want to spend for materials," he said. "Maybe I'll do something with tree culture. I'd like to see all the barren lands of California put into trees or farms and I'll work for a while on that line."

LODGE TO CELEBRATE

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

MARIETTA (O.) Feb. 17.—American Union Masonic Lodge, No. 1, of this city, will celebrate its one hundred and fiftieth anniversary next year. This lodge was chartered as a military lodge at Boston in 1776 and was finally established at Fort Harmar in 1788, which site is now occupied by the city of Marietta.

THOUSANDS AT LIGHTING FESTIVITIES

Vermont-Avenue Event is Gala Affair; Parade and Dance Features

Thousands turned out last night to make a gala affair of the opening up of the new ornamental street lighting system in Vermont avenue between Vernon and Slauson avenues.

The celebration began with a parade and ended with a street dance in which more than 1000 dancers participated while the new lights blazed brightly against flags, banners and pennants decorating the way and business houses along the street.

The parade formed at Vermont and Vernon and moved south on Vermont to Slauson with Miss Dorothy Schafter, a Manual Arts High School student, as queen of the night, amidst a bevy of other beautiful maids on a specially designed float. City officials and leading citizens participated in the celebration. The parade returned to its starting point and the dance was on. The celebration was to have taken place last Thursday night but rain caused postponement.

Finger Print Traps Burglar; Suspect Freed

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

SAN ANTONIO (Tex.) Feb. 17. The dim, almost imperceptible print of one finger found on a broken piece of glass at the Solo-Serve store caused the release from custody of an innocent man and led to the arrest of another, who is believed to have robbed the mercantile establishment during the week end. The burglar effected an entrance to the Solo-Serve store by breaking the glass of a transom in a rear door and crawling through.

Detectives were assigned to the case. They arrested one man as a suspect and obtained two broken pieces of the transom glass.

Owen Kilday, identification expert, examined the piece of glass. He found an almost invisible print of one finger on a piece of glass. He compared the impression with his records and found it to be the finger print of a 19-year-old Mexican known to the police. The Mexican's arrest followed and the man under arrest, proven innocent by the finger prints, was released.

CAPE COD CANAL BILL BLOCKED IN SENATE

WASHINGTON, Feb. 17.—An attempt to obtain consideration in the Senate today of the House bill providing for purchase of Cape Cod canal by the government was blocked by Senator Pittman, Democrat, Nevada.

Killing Through Pity Condemned by Paris Papers

[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

PARIS, Feb. 17.—The repetition of killing through pity within a week of the acquittal of Stanislawa Umminska has aroused the Paris press and official personages, who demand the application of justice for the violation of the precept, "Thou shalt not kill." The act of the dressmaker, Virginia Levasser, in shooting her younger feeble-minded sister, Anais, is condemned in all quarters and editorials urge justice to make an example of the woman.

"What will this lead to?" asks the Liberte editorially. "Must we see cases of suicide through the hands of another multiply? Sick and enfeebled through suffering, and discouraged, will not many people be prey to suggestions offered by those around them and ask to be put out of their misery?"

AIR DEFICIENCY IS INTIMATED

NAVY IS BETTER

The Navy is said to have made a much better showing in the way of air defense, though admittedly below requirements needful to cope with a major power. One of the main reasons given all along during the investigation as to why the navy so stubbornly opposed the unification plan was that it objected to pooling its superior air force with that which the Army had been letting "run to seed."

"All I can say," said one member of the committee as he left the hearing late this afternoon, "is that we ought to be thankful the Lord has provided us with defenses against invading aircraft."

Representative Perkins, Republican, New Jersey, chairman of the committee, declined to comment on the hearing, except in a general way.

"Today's secret session," he said, "has thrown a flood of light upon the question of general defense, and especially the relation to it that aircraft bears, that does not appear in any record. We believe it has proved highly practical for the departments to take the committee into their confidence and we shall find the information of great value in making out reports and recommendations."

MITCHELL UPHELD

Today's developments are said to bear out many of the charges made by Brig.-Gen. William A. Mitchell, assistant chief of the Army air service and his advocates in their fight for a unified air service. Still braving the possibility of removal from his present post and disciplining, the "flying general" appeared before the Military Affairs Committee this morning while Col. Theodore Roosevelt, former Assistant Secretary of the Navy, was testifying before the Aircraft Committee against a separate service of the air at this time.

Col. Roosevelt declared he believed it unwise now because aviation is still in its infancy, but admitted the time may come when it will be desirable to have a unified service. He objected to possibilities being treated by Congress as probabilities and facts

ROOSEVELT'S STAND

"To my mind," he said, "the air service is an auxiliary arm of the Army and Navy. I can't conceive of a battle being fought in the air to determine the fate of a country."

He was against a unified service, he explained, because of the differences in training, material and duties in aviation for the Army and Navy. He did not think, he said, that a unified service would be as economical as the present system.

As between a nation with an air service and another nation with both an air service and an army, he declared, the former would be "out of luck."

He called attention to the fact that Spain has been "notably unsuccessful" in her operations in Morocco, although she had the only air force there.

MOSELEY SAYS PLANES OF GUARD OBSOLETE

National Guard air forces throughout the country "are not able to take the air because they are equipped with obsolete airplanes that were not even fit for military service when they were built in 1917," it was declared last night by Maj. C. C. Moseley, commanding officer and instructor of the air forces of the California National Guard. He addressed a meeting of the Business Men's Club of Hollywood at the Hollywood Woman's Club.

"Pilots cannot even wear the regulation seat pack parachute in these airplanes, for they could not get out of the front cockpit with the parachute attached to them," the major, a veteran flyer of the world war, said.

"These National Guard air forces organized in a dozen States, including California, are unable to operate with economic efficiency due to this allotment to them of obsolete training airplanes built more than six years ago and which were obsolete for military service at the close of the war. As a matter of fact these airplanes were never used for service work, being built and used primarily for training purposes.

COULD SAVE MILLIONS

"The recently formed 116th Observation Squadron, stationed at Los Angeles airport, Griffith Park, could save the State millions of dollars annually by forest fire patrol work if it had approved type service equipment instead of the nine old rebuilt 1917 training obsolete planes that have been assigned to it by the War Department.

"Forest patrol work embodies the finest type of training for pilots of the air service, and would be ideal for National Guard units. It embodies everything required in military observation, mapping, aerial photography, radio, altitude flying and day and night reconnaissance.

"The present training equipment has no cruising radius, is inefficient in performance, cannot carry useful loads such as guns, cameras, radio, etc., therefore preventing training in use of this material. These planes are obsolete even in training for flying service pilots, having no climb and are dangerous and altogether unfit for altitude work.

ENORMOUS LOSS CITED

"This inefficiency of equipment affects the officer pilots and enlisted specialists alike as to training, for pilots and observers before being of service in the air, and mechanics and enlisted specialists, in their respective fields, each would have to undergo training in service type equipment before their service would be of value in event of emergency.

"With approved service type equipment, that is modern airplanes, the personnel of the squadron stationed here could adequately patrol all forests of California in training work of the squadron. The forest fire season comes within the regular military training camp season. The work involved is just what is required for training and this service could be rendered as a great economic asset to the State.

"The loss by forest fires in California alone for one year, that is preventable loss, involves a sufficient amount to provide the National Guard units through the country with service type equipment.

"Commanding officers of National Guard air units in all States where the air service is organized face these same problems with obsolete equipment."

VETERANS URGE ONE AIR SERVICE

A resolution urging the immediate establishment of a unified air service under a separate head was unanimously adopted Monday night at a meeting of Roosevelt Camp, No. 9, United Spanish War Veterans. More than 500 veterans were present at the meeting.

The resolution was introduced by Robert G. Clark. It urged not only the establishment of a separate air service but also the retention of Brig.-Gen. Mitchell in his present capacity as second in command of the nation's air forces.

ANDERSON BIGAMY CHARGE DISMISSED

A charge of bigamy against John S. Anderson was dismissed yesterday by Justice Russill on the motion of Dep. Dist.-Atty. Mitchell. Investigation of Anderson's status disclosed that he had obtained a divorce from his former wife in Texas but that notice of the decree had not been published. The complaint which resulted in Anderson's arrest was made by his former wife, after he married Mrs. Caroline Anderson.

APPROVES OF PLANS FOR DAMS

Goethals Writes Head of Supervisors on Pacoima and Santa Anita Projects

Approval by Gen. George W. Goethals, consulting engineer to the county flood control project, of plans for dams to be built in Big Santa Anita Canyon and Pacoima Wash is contained in a letter which R. F. McClellan, president of the County Board of Supervisors, has received from Goethals.

The plans were originally prepared by James W. Reagon, county flood control engineer; were signed by State Engineer W. F. McClure and later recalled by McClure for revision on the ground that they might not have contained sufficient precaution against earthquake, Reagan said. The plans were revised by Lars Jorgenson, patentee of the constant angle arch dam, and sent by McClellan to Goethals for approval in theory, Reagan said.

Goethals approved the plans with the reservation that a geologist examine the sites and consider the earthquake hazard. The board had Andrew C. Lawson, geologist of the University of California at Berkeley, make the examination and, according to Reagan, he reported that there was no likelihood of damage by earthquake to dams built as planned.

Arthur P. Davis, chief engineer and general manager of the East Bay municipal utility district, Oakland, has written a letter to the board in which he answers criticism concerning his approval of the original plans. Harvey W. Hinckes, a local engineer, has written a letter to the board criticising Reagan's work.

PRICES INCREASE IN THREE STATES

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

INDEPENDENCE (Kan.) Feb. 17.—The Prairie Oil and Gas Company today announced an increase of 5 and 15 cents in two grades of oil purchased by it at the wells in Kansas, Oklahoma and North Texas. The new price for 36 deg. Baume gravity to 38.9 is $2 a barrel, and for 39 deg. to 41.9 is $2.25. These prices on other grades remain the same. The Prairie met the recent price increases of the Humble, Gulf, Magnolia and Texas Companies in its new figures today. The Prairie's price, however, applies all over the field, while other companies prices apply only to the North Texas field.

SCOTTISH RITE HAS DEDICATION

Elaborate Ceremonies Take Place at Cathedral

Several Hundred Masons of High Degree Present

Further Programs Planned at Crown City Edifice

By a "Times" Staff Correspondent

PASADENA, Feb. 17.—With approximately 1700 high-degree Masons and their families in attendance, Pasadena's new Scottish Rite Cathedral was officially dedicated this evening. In addition to about 600 Thirty-second Degree Masons, there were a half-dozen of the Thirty-third Degree participating.

Thiram W. Wadsworth, Thirty-third Decree Mason, Master of Kadosh, was master of ceremonies. Perry Winslow Weidner, Thirty-third Degree, was principal speaker. He is Sovereign Grand Inspector-General for California and Arizona.

In addition to addresses by Leon M. Abbott, Thirty-third Degree, Sovereign Grand Commander, northern jurisdiction of the United States, and Mr. Weidner, the invocation was rendered by Rev. Carl F. Henry, Thirty-second Degree, and pastor of the Throop Memorial Church, and the benediction was pronounced by Rev. R. W. Abberly, Thirty-second Degree, pastor of the Central Christian Church. The Scottish Rite quartet and the Masonic orchestra provided music.

TABLETS UNVEILED

Among the outstanding features of the event was the unveiling of two bronze tablets on either side of the front entrance. One is a memorial to the late Charles Joseph Willette, Thirty-third Degree Mason. He organized the local order. The other tablet bore a dedication inscription.

The cathedral, with its granite front, is of a style suggestive of the Egyptian. It cost $200,000. Joseph J. Blick, architect, designed the building and D. Manuelli, Italian artist, modeled the two great sphinxes on either side of the main entrance. W. C. Crowell was the general contractor.

For the rest of the week the cathedral will be open at various times for reception of Master Masons throughout this jurisdiction, since the dedication services were open only to Scottish Rite Masons. On Wednesday, the 18th inst., a reception will be tendered to all Master Masons in the Pasadena jurisdiction with the exception of the city of Pasadena. The Pasadena Masons will be entertained on Saturday night, the 21st inst., with a reception. The following week a reunion will be held and a large class of candidates will receive degrees.

WADSWORTH'S AIDES

Assisting Mr. Wadsworth this evening in the dedication ceremonies were MacD. Snowball, Thirty-third Degree, Prior; Charles H. Prisk, Thirty-second Degree, Preceptor; Leslie E. Learned, Thirty-second Degree, Knight Commander Court of Honor, Prelate.

The placing of the lodge records incased in a copper box in a niche in the wall was in charge of Leo G. MacLaughlin, Thirty-second Degree, Knight Commander Court of Honor; A. Lincoln Rowland, Thirty-second Degree; Abraham Oakey, Thirty-second Degree, Wise Master Chapter, Knight Rose Croix; Lemuel L. Test, Thirty-second Degree, Knight Commander of the Court of Honor; Eckford D. Taylor, Thirty-second Degree; Edward W. Nay, Thirty-second Degree, Venerable Master, Lodge of Perfection; H. L. Gianetti, Thirty-second Degree, and Ernest H. May, Thirty-second Degree, Knight Commander Court of Honor.

The members in charge of the illumination part of the program included Edward Crump, Thirty-second Degree, K.C.C.H.; Ralph Harris, Thirty-second Degree, and Orren H. Hayes, Thirty-second Degree, K.C.C.H.

ASSIST IN SERVICES

Among the out-of-town Masons who are in the Pasadena jurisdiction and who assisted in the services were A. T. Mellenthin, chairman of the membership committee of Monrovia, Arcadia, Sierra Madre, Covina, Duarte and Azusa. His assistants were Leslie Renaker and Milo A. Loomis. Kenneth G. Kelsey, chairman of membership of Eagle Rock, and Albert Grocott, who holds a similar position in Alhambra, Monterey Park, San Gabriel and El Monte, were also present.

The reception committee consisting of a number of Thirty-second Degree Masons, was made up of Charles H. Prisk, F. B. Cole, Dr. J. Tyler Parker, Jr., Herbert H. Hahn, E. O. Nay, Harold H. Landreth, William L. Leishman, A. B. Cliff, C. Z. Jackson, Henry A. Doty, F. C. Farmer, W. H. Nichols, A. L. Hamilton, H. L. Chadwick, Fred Harris, S. Hazzard Halstead, H. I. Stuart, A. J. Hosking, Frank May, G. L. Stimson, W. F. Knight, J. H. Dorn, J. H. Kindel, Leslie B. Henry, C. E. Music, Dr. Carl F. Henry, James A. Nelson, J. L. Miller, Charles B. Moody, F. A. Farrell, John W. Hannan, Harry M. Ticknor, D. B. Hull, J. H. Pearman, E. E. Keller, O. W. Swanson, J. L. Brenner, Z. T. Malaby, James W. Foley, Albert Dodge, D. S. Malvin, W. E. Langstaff, C. G. Wopschall, C. Elmer Anderson, L. L. Test, L. H. Turner, J. H. Simpson, M. E. Wood, S. J. Edwards, C. K. Kolner, W. L. Blair and Walter Pesenecker.

Of the twenty-six charter members of the Pasadena Consistory, which was instituted twenty-seven years ago, there are but thirteen left. All were present at the dedication.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

WASHINGTON, Feb. 17.—Greater protection for Southern California from forest fires is assured by the action of the Senate Committee on Agriculture today. This committee unanimously reported favorably for passage of an amendment to the Clark-McNary forestry bill which became a law a year ago, authorizing the extension of fire prevention work of the Forest Service to lands covered with chaparral or scrug trees and vegetation in the same manner as they now protect the forest areas where full grown trees are endangered.

Some time ago the solicitor of the Agricultural Department ruled that fire protection of the Federal government through the Forest Service could not be spread out to these sparsely covered acres without authority of Congress but urged that the law be amended. This amendment reported to the Senate today was also introduced in the House by Congressman Fredericks and quick action there will enable the President to sign this measure before the end of the session and eliminate one of the great menaces to the Los Angeles forest reserve, in the fires that originate in the small brush and chaparral. Th fires starting here burn with the rapidity of gasoline and are now outside of the territory of the forest rangers in Riverside, Los Angeles and San Diego and some of the other Southern California counties having large forest areas.

After the brush and chapparal on these lands are burned over the gravel and sand wash down on the lower lands and by this process the entire watershed is involved with obstructions and depleted hillsides impair the maintenance of proper watersheds for all of Southern California. Much of the fire damage in the recent forest fires in Southern California could have been minimized or entirely avoided had the brush and chaparral acreage been protected and the foregoing action will make it possible to police this the same as the forest areas.

Senator Shortridge has the Senate bill in charge and secured the favorable report from the committee. Congressman Fredericks has been assured that the House will co-operate in the early passage of the bill and the administration would like to have this addition to the law as soon as possible.

DE YOUNG'S FUNERAL TO BE SIMPLE

Only Low Mass Will be Said Over Body of Bay City Publisher Today

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 17.—Simplicity will characterize the funeral services which will be conducted at 10 o'clock tomorrow morning at St. Mary's Catholic Cathedral for the late M. H. De Young, pioneer publisher of San Francisco. Carrying out Dr. De Young's expressed desire, the only service will be a low mass. Rev. Father Charles A. Ramm, will be the celebrant, while Most Rev. Edward J. Hanna, Archbishop of San Francisco, will recite the blessings of the dead.

Mayor James Rolph, Jr., will head the list of honorary pallbearers, who in addition will be Karl M. Anderson, George H. Barron, J. A. Callahan, Arthur L. Clarke, Paul Cowles, William H. Crocker, Thomas B. Eastland, W. H. B. Fowler, William B. Hamilton, Judge Frank H. Kerrigan, Joseph R. Knowland, Chief Justice Louis W. Myers of the State Supreme Court, William Sproule, Charles E. Stanton and Percy E. Towne.

Members of the various departments of the San Francisco Chronicle, which he founded and of which he was the publisher for more than fifty years, will attend the funeral in a body.

Messages of condolence today continued to arrive from many parts of the United States paying tribute to the man who not only developed one of the West's greatest newspapers, but whose constructive work in patriotic and civic endeavors won recognition for him far beyond the borders of the State in which he had lived so long.

SANDY LAKE (Pa.) Feb. 17.—Three small children of Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Safran were drowned yesterday while playing along Sandy Creek.

ANTI-RED LAW REPEAL FOUGHT

Committee of Ten Thousand Hits Radicals

Police Captain Says Bill Curbs Crime

Increase of Gasoline Tax Also Opposed

Increase of the gasoline tax and the repeal of the Criminal Syndicalism Act, two matters now before the California Legislature, were discussed yesterday at a luncheon for Los Angeles county members of the State Senate and Assembly given by the Citizens' Committee of Ten Thousand at the Hotel Clark.

Captain of Police George McClary described his experiences with radicals and I.W.W.s, against whom the act was directed, and requested that the law be retained in force.

"The repeal of this act," he said, "would add to the troubles of the police, increase crime and result in much destruction of property. The act and the Busick injunction have cut down antrchistic outbursts to a minimum. The radicals are awaiting the removal of this law to start a drive on California. They hate California and particularly Los Angeles, and as evidence of it, regard their boycott of our products and the vicious propaganda sent out by them at the time of the foot-and-mouth epidemic.

"They are mostly foreigners who do not understand our laws and customs and ideals, but do not hesitate to tell us how to run our own government. They propose the overthrow of our institutions, without producing a practical alternative.

MENACE TO CHILREN

"Two menacing adjuncts of the radical system are their teaching anarchism to children and the sympathy and encouragement they receive from misguided persons of wealth and refinement who hire their lawyers and furnish their bonds."

John Robert White, a member of the 1919 Assembly, which enacted the measure, urged the legislators to defeat the repeal.

"This law is so effective," he said, "that during the past few months there have been virtually no arrests. A law that thus curbs crime is the kind of a law we want."

Mrs. Charles F. Grey then arose and made a motion stating that it was the sense of the meeting that the law be neither repealed nor amended, and that all patriotic people be urged to communicate to their representatives in the Legislature that such was their desire.

MOTION UNANIMOUS

The motion was unanimously carried without further debate and Assemblyman Weller, Sixty-first District, arose to acknowledge it.

"I am representing the honest people of my district," said Mr. Weller, "not the crooks, and I promise my continued effort to keep this law on the books."

V. W. Killick, statistician of the Independent Petroleum Association, opposed the increase of the gasoline tax, and quoted at length a series of figures concerning the revenues of the State available for highway purposes.

"Considering the growth of population in the State and the increasing growth of automobile registration, by the end of 1930 we compute that the gross revenues for highway maintenance and construction will be $225,000,000, about half of which goes to the State," said Mr. Killick. "We believe that is sufficient for the State program, used economically, and oppose a further burdening of the motorist."

The principles and purposes of the committee were outlined by Dr. Milbank Johnson, who welcomed the legislators. The response was made by Frank F. Merriam, Speaker of the Assembly. Michael F. Shannon presided and introduced the speakers.

Monument to World Flyers Plan of Group

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

WASHINGTON, Feb. 17.—Organization of a national committee to perpetuate the achievement of the world flyers through the erection here of a memorial, was announced today, with Colin Livingstone as chairman. A proposal that the memorial piece be offered to the nation as a gift primarily from the youth of America, was indorsed.

The approximate cost will be $100,000, to be raised by a national "dime appeal," through such bodies as the Boy Scouts, Girl Guides, Camp Fire Girls, Sunday School Union, the W.C.T.U., Y.M.C.A., and Christian Endeavor.

CRISIS LOOMS ON FRANC

Opposition Refuses Leadership of Herriot on Finances; Appeal Taken as Weakness

[BY CABLE AND ASSOCIATED PRESS]

PARIS, Feb. 17.—The financial debate, when it was resumed in the Chamber of Deputies today, appeared to suffer considerable embarrassment from Premier Herriot's unsuccessful efforts yesterday to unite all parties on the single question of financial restoration.

The Premier appealed to the parties of the center and right to join him in an attempt to improve the value of the franc, but the opposition showed plainly that they would not accept as leader of "the sacred union" even for the purpose of re-establishing financial stability, the present head of the government.

When M. Clementel, the Finance Minister, took the floor today, he seemed to have in mind the Premier's failure to get the co-operation of the opposition. He dwelt on the fact that it would be a long operation to bring the franc back to its real value.

That operation, he declared, could not be undertaken until France knew the outcome of the present negotiations with the Allies concerning war debts.

A crisis exists in a latent state, in the opinion of conspicuous members of many different groups, including certain elements of the Premier's majority. It is admitted generally that M. Herriot appealed to the Right because he was doubtful whether he could count on the Socialists' support for legislation he has in mind, and he needs votes from the opposition to form a new majority on financial questions.

The adversaries of the government are taking the Premier's appeal as a confession of weakness and are more determined than ever to refuse his leadership even in an effort toward financial stabilization. The situation thus created has given particular significance to the first public appearance of former Premier Caillaux, who will, it is expected by his friends, make an important declaration on the financial and political situation at a banquet to be given in his honor Thursday evening.

TYNAN SCORES IN PRISON CASE

Testimony of Prosecution Witness Stricken

Statements of Two Others Badly Shaken

Ex-Convict Admits Sweet Paid His Expenses

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

CANON CITY (Colo.) Feb. 17.—The defense in the trial of Thomas J. Tynan, warden of the Colorado penitentiary and nationally known penal authority, on charges of prison misconduct, before the State Civil Service Commission, scored heavily today in obtaining an order for striking from the records testimony of W. W. Ireland, prosecution witness and former prison guard.

The testimony of two other prosecution witnesses, John J. Murphy and George F. Kelley, former inmates of the Canon City institution, also was badly shaken and discredited during the cross-examination by Fred Sabin, defense counsel.

The commission ordered Ireland's testimony, dealing with the floggings administered to refractory prisoners expunged after the witness refused to state whether or not he was connected with the Ku Klux Klan.

He was followed to the stand by George F. Kelley, who testified in a facetious manner to the brutalities and prison irregularities charged by former Gov. William E. Sweet in his bill of particulars. Declaring that he suffered from a blood disease, Kelley said he had not received proper medical treatment and charged partiality in the treatment of prisoners, alleging that he was flogged twice, once for an attempted escape, while two other prisoners were let off without any punishment for the same offense.

Kelley also facetiously described the prison fare as "beans, stew and wormy fruit."

On cross-examination Kelley admitted possessing three or four aliases, and admitted serving time in Chicago, Omoha and other cities, and other city and county jails, as well as a five-year term in the reformatory at St. Cloud, Minn., for forgery. Delving into an alleged "Klan connection," in the trial, defense counsel attempted to show that Kelley had been "framed" inside the walls to assist the prosecution after his release from the prison on February 10, 1925.

He admitted having met John J. Murphy at Salt Lake City, another former prisoner at Pueblo, and accompanying him to Denver, where he conferred with Gov. Sweet and Fred S. Caldwell, Sweet's chief counsel. He admitted that his expenses had been defrayed by the former executive.

FUTURE BRIGHT IN OIL INDUSTRY

Experts Say Production Will Increase

Foreign Countries Will be Developed

Consumption Will Make Heavier Demand

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

NEW YORK, Feb. 17.—A bright future for the oil industry in the next year was pictured today by experts from many countries who addressed the annual conference of the American Institute of Mining and Metallurgical Engineers.

The gist of expert opinion was that 1925 would see production vastly increased in the oil fields of Venezuela, Russia, Persia, Rumania, Poland and the Baku district, as well as in the United States and Mexico.

It was forecast the year probably would witness the beginning of considerable production in Germany.

DEMAND INCREASES

In the face of an ever-increasing demand for petroleum products the general prediction was that, even with a greatly augmented production in view, consumption would increase in greater porportions.

E. De Golyer, representative of Lord Cowderay, the British oil magnate, reported a decline of 22,000,000 barrels in the output of light oil in 1924, as compared with a 10,000,000-barrel jump in heavy-oil output.

The falling off of light oil wells was especially noticeable in the San Diego-Alamo pools of Mexico, he said.

NEW RUSSIAN AREAS

A. Beebe Thompson of London foresaw that Russia, released from the soviet governmental monopoly of oil fields and encouraging private capital investment in the industry, this year would advance nearer her prewar output and at the same time throw open vast new areas.

The rapid rehabilitation of petroleum interests in Rumania, following their destruction as a defense measure during the World War, was outlined by George Anagnostache of Cleveland.

Rumania, he pointed out, now is in fifth place among oil-producing countries.

Poland is rapidly coming into prospect as a great oil producer of the future, said Leon Ormowsky of the Polish Legation at Washington.

PACT OBJECTOR IS NOT INVITED

Arizona House Refuses to Hear Anticompact Agitator

Representative Raps Asserted River Propaganda

Resolution Avers Division of Water Will be Unequal

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

PHOENIX, Feb. 17.—The first House division on the Colorado River compact came today in consideration of a resolution inviting George H. Maxwell, anticompact agitator, to address the body on Wednesday afternoon, with invitation to the Senate to be present. The introducer, Valentine, administration Democrat from Pinal county, moved that the rules be suspended, action requiring a two-thirds vote, according to Speaker McMillin.

There followed much debate, including bitter review by Mr. Wisener, antiadministration Democrat from Yuma, of the Colorado River propaganda that has been spread by Mr. Maxwell for several years past. The motion was lost by a vote of 24 ayes and 21 noes. The resolution will come up again tomorrow and the anticompact members assert they will hold their strength and get their advocate on the House floor.

Representative Smith offered a concurrent resolution rejecting the compact with declaration that it does not provide an equitable division of the waters of the river with respect to the river basin and that it allows 6,000,000 acre feet to flow into Mexico, contrary to the best interests of the United States. So request is made for appointment of a new commission between the seven interested States and the national government for the purpose of forming a new agreement.

The House passed a bill changing the Tempe and Flagstaff normal schools to normal colleges with optional four-year courses above the high school grade.

Understood to have the backing of the Arizona Cattle Growers' Association, a Senate bill offered by Thornburg would change the live stock laws in sweeping manner. The live stock sanitary board is given legislative appropriation instead of being supported by fees and its members shall be appointed for six-year terms, with alternating expirations. Each county is to have a meat inspector. Explanation was given that the bill proposes to take the board out of partisan politics.

Understanding that State loans have been rather carelessly handled in the past is back of a bill that calls for annual inspection of all such loans. The road runner is left without protection by another House bill; it is declared that he eats quail eggs. The House killed a bill that would eliminate districts for election of County Supervisors and recommended the Hannon bill prohibiting the carrying of deadly weapons. The Senate spent most of the day on the banking code bill.

KEISER LAYS DOWN RULES FOR LICENSE

Real Estate Brokers Will be Required to Undergo Examination

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

SACRAMENTO, Feb. 17.—Knowledge of the three r's—reading, 'riting and 'rithmetic—as well as a thorough understanding of the State Real Estate License Act and realty business in general, will be required of applicants for a State realty brokers' licenses after March 1, Edwin T. Keiser, State Real Estate Commissioner, announced today.

Keiser said the new procedure is in conformity with the section of the real estate act which gives the commissioner the right to require applicants for brokers' licenses to submit to a qualification test.

The procedure, which Atty.-Gen. U. S. Webb, in a opinion to Keiser, says is legal, will reduce the numbers of brokers' licenses issued by the department 25 per cent, the commissioner estimates.

After March 1 Keiser will accept from an applicant for a broker's license a certificate from offices of local real estate boards that the applicant has been examined and found to be duly qualified or the applicant may appear in person before the real estate commissioner and submit to the test.

Swedish General Points to Risk in Geneva Protocol

[BY CABLE AND ASSOCIATED PRESS]

STOCKHOLM, Feb. 17. — Adhesion to the Geneva protocol would involve increased military risks for Sweden in the opinion of Gen. Hammarskjold, who is chief of the army staff, and recognized as the country's leading military authority.

His principal argument is that since the League of Nations was founded Russia has grown as a military factor, and if Sweden signed the protocol it might have to forego its traditional policy of neutrality, through which it kept out of the World War.

CARDINAL DENOUNCES MORALS OF THEATER

[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

PARIS, Feb. 17.—"If they do not do it themselves, the rest of us will have to," was the brief comment of Cardinal Mundelein of Chicago on the Broadway movement to correct stage morals. "I do not know much about it myself, but it looks to me as if they needed house cleaning." The Chicago prelate granted an interview after a two days' rest at the Hotel Crillon, where he arrived on Saturday. He explained that his principal mission to Rome was to consult the Wishes of Pope Pius regarding the biennial eucharistic congress, which is to be held in Chicago from June 19 to 26.

HARTZ EQUALS CULVER TRACK RECORD

WORLD AIR ACE FINDS THRILLS ON SPEEDWAY

Capt. Lowell Smith Tries Out Pine Bowl; Hartz Travels at Rate of 135.5 Miles an Hour

Capt. Lowell H. Smith, commander of the epochal flight around the world by American army aviators, who dared death several times a day on a trip that carried him from the frozen of the Arctic to the heat of the jungles of India, yesterday confirmed what he declared was the greatest thrill of his career.

The famous airman made this statement yesterday as he climbed into a racing automobile at the Culver City Speedway. He had just completed a fifty-mile ride at the wheel of the car.

The famous flyer's flying companion with a high speed mark set by Harry Hartz round the head-lights during Sunday's show for the benefit of the crowd.

Hartz's time was 135.5 miles an hour, equalling the official world's record.

Smith, displaying an iron nerve, jumped from the car—a Duesenberg—after a single circuit of the track at better than 130 miles an hour for more than 50 miles. His fastest lap was made at 141.4 miles an hour, the mean speed for a first time on a board speedway by a driver of a racing car.

"NOTHING WORTH RISKS

"I did not have come in at all, I was afraid I would wear out before the race," Smith said as he rolled into the pits flushed and excited over his ride. "It was great. It simply backed off the map for me. No wonder you boys like to take such risks. The thrill is worth it."

Smith drove the car that Pete Kreis got in Sunday's race speedway when a score of other good demons in the same contests. The comrade of the round-the-world flyer has been intensely interested in automobile racing since the advent of the new lightning-fast Duesenberg and he snatched at the opportunity to try his hand at the control of a fast machine on a speedway.

Speedway will be one of the interested spectators at the Indianapolis Sunday. He refused to comment whether he would be within service for the event if the opportunity came to him, but there is little doubt that the racing game would lose a bright star.

Wade Morton, Pete Kreis and Ralph Dupima and other drivers who had declared that Captain Smith handled his car very well were highly complimented the flyer on his skill.

OBSERVATIONS

BY THE INNOCENT BYSTANDER, BILL HENRY

SIMPLICITY and precision — the former being usually responsible for the latter—will be the watchword of the Trojan football team next fall if Howard Jones follows out his general line of thought and action on the gridiron. The former Yale and Iowa head coach is planning to get his galloping Trojans out for a little spring practice along toward the end of the baseball season and hopes with about a month of work to be able to lay his plans properly for the ambitious 1925 schedule.

Bro. Jones apparently says little and thinks a whole lot—not a bad idea. He has had enough practical experience in coaching college eleven to know that you can't depend on everybody to do the things you might desire and, therefore, one of his main axioms is that of bearing down heavily upon precision in executing plays, and having the work for each man so clearly and simply laid out that there's no reason for his becoming excited and gummed up.

The new Trojan coach is about ready to pull out for his home in Colorado and is rather uncertain as to his plans. He admits having taken a wild fancy to Southern California during the course of his stay and is frankly considering moving here and growing up with the country, although his plans along that line are very indefinite at present. He expects to place his signature on the official document which will make him head football coach within the next few days.

He hasn't had an opportunity to really become acquainted with the squad he will have

JESSICK DEFEATS BROWN

Julius Wins Six of Eight Rounds in Vernon Main Go; Rollinger Whips Owens

Julius Jessick climbed another rung in the ladder of fistic success when he won a handy victory over Young Brown, tough Mexican lightweight, in an eight-round main event at Doyle's Vernon coliseum last night. Jessick got away to an early lead and was never in danger. He won six rounds, lost one and had one even. Brown made his big bid for victory in the sixth round when he jabbed and slashed away at Jessick, making the former amateur's hair sizzle with hot infighting. Otherwise, Brown wasn't so fearsome.

Jessick got started at the first sound of the gong and had chalked a point for every Chinaman in Peking before Brown knew the battle was on. In the first two rounds, Brown didn't land more than three punches. He made an ineffectual effort to cover, but Jessick kept picking away, scoring with lefts to the head and stomach in great numbers. Brown was slightly thick at the waist-line and Jessick took advantage of this, crashing as many lefts as possible to the Mexican's mid-section.

In the fourth, Jessick added a little color to the fight by opening up a cut over Brown's eye and drenching the ring with blood. Brown came to life slightly in the fourth, but that stanza was Jessick's also by a shade. The fifth was even, Brown began to do some good infighting and had Jessick backing away on several occasions.

Brown won the sixth round but Jessick won the last two, thus giving himself a clear title to the decision. He scored repeatedly with a lightning left to head and stomach and Brown's face was just one crimson smear from forehead to chin at the close of the bout.

Lou Rollinger, Chicago light heavyweight, won a surprising as well as unpopular decision over Ernie Owens in a six-round semi-wind-up. The majority of the experts at ringside were of the opinion that Rollinger won but one round, Owens three, with the first and sixth even. Rollinger was a good puncher and carried the fight to Owens most of the time, thus scoring plenty of points. Owens was the better boxer.

In the first round, which was even, Owens displayed a lot of clever boxing and Rollinger did some hard though ineffective slugging. Rollinger right-crossed his way to Owens's face in the second round opening up a cut over his eye and doing damage in general. Owens won the next three, boxing cleverly and staying out of the easterner's way. The last stanza was even. The bout was pleasing but the verdict wasn't.

The three preliminaries were pleasing and they had the crowd in a good humor for the big fights. Joe Garcia opened the show with a four-round win over Harry Foley. The two men fought a slam-bang battle with little science or much of anything but punching. An all-colored fight between Baby Joe Gans and Young Sam Langford ended in a decision for Gans. He sent Langford to the floor twice in the second round. Ad Cordina

FLYER TURNS RACE DRIVER

Mounted on Pete Kreis's roan Duesenberg, Capt. Lowell Smith, world flyer, yesterday demonstrated his skill as a racing driver by circling the Culver City track at the rate of 112 miles per hour. It was one of the features of a busy day for the drivers who are tuning up for next Sunday's big 250-mile classic. Above we have Capt. Smith signing the clause which releases the speedway management from responsibility in case of accident. Wade Morton, Pete Kreis, Ralph De Palma and Val Haresnape are gathered around him. Below is Smith in Kreis's car just before the start. [P. & A. Photos]

RABBIT PUNCHES

BY PAUL LOWRY

Somebody whispered in our ear yesterday that Mickey Walker always looks like a dub in training, but acts like a bearcat in the ring. Everybody is entitled to his own opinion, but we can't swallow that. However, if it is true, comparatively speaking, then we are prepared to see the most ferocious fighter in history face Bert Collins in the Vernon ring next Tuesday night.

In our opinion Mickey Walker is just about as docile as a bobcat cornered by a hound dog when he crawls through the ropes. Out of the ring he is the most engaging person in the world, but the minute they lace the gloves on his hands and shove him between the hempen strands he's a different guy.

The fight light comes into his eyes and if you weren't familiar with his build you'd never know that the Mickey Walker in the ring and the Mickey Walker you met on the street were one and the same person.

Defining this metamorphosis, we rely upon what the experts of all times refer to as fighting instinct. Mickey Walker has it to a superlative degree. That's why he's a great fighter.

Mickey didn't have much of it when he came to Los Angeles. He had been feted in Washington, dined by Congressmen, Senators and the President, and loaded down with golf enthusiasm during his three-day stay at the Congressional Country Club.

When he hit this city he was sluggish—and stayed that way for several days. But he is beginning to come out of it. Yesterday brought the most striking change. In his two-round session with big Herman Auerbach he threw his gloves with more viciousness than on any previous day. In the opening frame he floored Auerbach with a swipe to the head and punished him about

Negro Files Defi With Boxing Board of New York

Champion Must Accept Date Within Six Months

Commissioners Defer Action Until Next Week

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

NEW YORK, Feb. 17.—Harry Wills, negro heavyweight, through his manager, Paddy Mullins, filed a challenge today with the State Athletic Commission for a match with Jack Dempsey. Accompanying the challenge was a certified check for $2500 in accordance with the commission's rules.

Mullins said that in the event Dempsey failed to accept within six months, Wills would claim the heavyweight title. The commission deferred action on the challenge until next week.

GIBBONS'S BOSS MUM ON TERMS

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

CHICAGO, Feb. 17.—Aside from stating that he has accepted terms for a Dempsey bout in California either in May or June, Eddie Kane, manager of Tom Gibbons, the St. Paul heavyweight, today asserted he is not at liberty to give out other details on the proposed match.

From another source, however, it was learned the match is practically on and that it will be held in the Rose Bowl of Pasadena, the stadium in which Notre Dame and Leland Stanford met in the important (intersectional) football game on New Year's Day. This bowl has seats for 53,000, and this capacity can be increased by placing seats on the playing field.

Manager Kane asserted all other information must come from promoters on the Coast, but he refused to give their names. Kane did say, however, that Tom will start active training for the contest next month.

ARIZONANS ARE UPSET BY TROJANS

U.S.C. Cagers Win Over Wildcats in Fast Game by 25-to-18 Score

Despite the efforts of a certain Mr. Oldham, who substituted at forward for Gridley and turned in thirteen of his team's points, the visiting Arizona Wildcats went down to a 25-to-18 defeat before Coach Les Turner's University of Southern California quintet after a thrilling struggle last night in the Trojan pavilion.

Oldham, coupled with the tough defense possessed by the visitors, gave the Trojans and their supporters much mental anguish before the second half was over, taking the lead on a couple of occasions, only to have the Cardinal and Gold outfit come from behind and win out.

The first half was rather slow, compared to the final stanza, and ended with the Trojans leading, 13 to 12. Boyer and Badgro, who were high-point men for the victors, caged most of the Trojan digits, while Oldham and Brookshire made all of the Arizona points.

Oldham put the Wildcats off ahead in the second half when he dribbled up under the U.S.C. goal and dropped in a goal. Kaer evened the count soon after when he sank a free throw. Then the two quintets battled fruitlessly for fully five minutes, neither team being able to locate the basket. Finally the Trojans broke the charm when Badgro, under the Arizona basket, passed out to Laraneta who tossed to Boyer. Kenny was clear over on the outside line, but he looped the ball through the hoop for a perfect goal. A free throw by Skousen, followed by two more by Oldham put the Wildcats ahead for the last time. Dorsey converted two free throws to put U.S.C. in front

Cawsey, Cannon Win Low Gross to Qualify in S.C.D.A. Matches

Playing a high-class brand of golf, R. G. Cawsey and his partner, H. E. Cannon, won the qualifying round of the Southern California Dental Association golf tournament with a low gross of 74 at the Hollywood Country Club yesterday. The qualifying round was a best-ball foursome affair and Cawsey and his partner led the rest of the field by four strokes. In the afternoon round, Ed Gilbert won low net honors with a score of 91-24-67.

Eighty-six players teed off in the qualifying round with half that number that will continue play. Other scores for the day were, J. A. Anson and A. H. Honey, 78; G. C. Leisure and R. A. Speicher, 78; J. S. and W. E. Hanna, 83; W. H. Stinks and C. M. Pembroke, 83; R. C. Lockwood and Frank Kaiser, 85.

Play in the tournament will continue at various clubs through several successive rounds at dates yet to be announced by the association. A handsome trophy is up for the winning team.

TWO NEW ANGEL HOLD-OUTS

Joe Horan and Doc Crandall Are Latest to Refuse to Sign Up; Payne, Grimes, Hood and Others

BY ROBERT E. RAY

When Marty Krug starts the Angels off on spring training next Monday morning, he won't have to worry about picking two teams for practice games, he can simply play the "Hold-outs" against the "In-the-folds." Joe (Shag) Horan, the hard-hitting outfielder purchased from the New York Yankees, and Ote (Doc) Crandall, veteran Seraph flinger, are the latest to join the Angel crew of hold-outs.

George Payne, pitcher; Wally Hood, outfielder, and Oscar Ray Grimes, first-sacker, greeted Crandall and Horan with open arms when the latter pair walked in the door of the Hold-out Club.

Marty Krug

Payne and Grimes are real hold-outs and are causing the Angel owners some worry, for the Seraphs' chances of winning the pennant aren't worth a whoop in Washington Park in the winter without the two stars. Payne, after handicapping himself by breaking his ankle during the first week of the season last year, showed his true form in the last half of the race by winning nearly every time out. Grimes is a fair-fielding first-sacker with a wallop which the Seraphs will need badly. Before Grimes joined the Krugmen last year, the Angels were fluttering around in the cellar. After the former Cub got into the fold the Angels flew right up to second place and had a chance for the pennant up until the closing day. Whether it was Grimes that caused the spurt is not known, but he was generally given credit for it and now "Bummer" intends to cash in on the publicity given him.

It is expected in local circles that Hood and Crandall will soon come to terms with the Seraph bosses, but little is known about Horan, who is still in the East.

Utah Aggies Bring Nine Players for Cage Series with Trojans

VISITORS ALSO FACE CLUBMEN

Utah Squad in Running for Casaba Championship

Faces Trojan Quintet Here Friday and Saturday

Aggie Outfit Leaves Logan Tomorrow Morning

Coach E. L. Romney, who boosts the Utah Aggies basketball squad, is bringing nine players with him for the Aggies' invasion of Southern California. The Utah Farmers will tackle the University of Southern California Trojans and the L.A.A.C. five in a two-game series while in Los Angeles and may be persuaded to remain over and enter the national junior A.A.U. tournament, which will be held here the last three days of this month.

Coach Romney's squad will leave Logan, Utah, tomorrow morning and arrives in Los Angeles Friday morning. The Aggies tackle the Trojans Friday and Saturday evenings, and have engagements billed with the L.A.A.C. for Monday and Tuesday nights. On Wednesday they will meet Occidentals cagers. Monday night the regular Mercury five will be busy battling the Hollywood Athletic Club tossers in a regularly scheduled A.A.U. game, so the L.A.A.C. junior team, organized from the high school players picked on the All-City team, on Tuesday the veteran L.A.A.C. squad will entertain the "Loganberries."

GOOD RECORD

To date the Aggies have a fairly impesing record and are still in the running for the Rocky Mountain conference championship. The Brigham Young five is the only college team to show superiority over the Aggies. Brigham Young College has met the Aggies three times and won twice, taking the rubber game by a 24-to-23 score.

If the Aggies' record is any criterion, they have a fast, high-scoring squad without much of a defense. Taking this for granted, the Trojans should stop the invaders twice. Santa Clara had this type of a team and as soon as the Trojans found the dangerous scorer, the Broncos were easy for them.

MAKE TRIP HERE

The following are the players, with their numbers, who will make the trip here: Capt. Woodside, 1, guard; Sanders, 2, guard; Thomas, 7, guard; Baker, 5, center; Hawley, 10, center; Neilson, 3, forward; Henrie, 8, forward; Williams, 9, forward, and Crowther, 6, forward. Along with Coach Romney, Athletic Manager K. Davis will accompany the Aggies.

FOURTH QUINTET ENTERS

Griffin and McGarry Cagers to Take Part in Big National A. A. U. Junior Tournament

The fourth entry in the national junior basketball tournament to be held at Manual Arts on the last three days of the month was received yesterday from the local Griffin & McGarry quintet. The Griffin & McGarry line-up has recently been bolstered by the addition of several former Manual Arts High School cage stars and has been playing a high brand of basketball in the local A.A.U. League. The Bishop Athletic Club five, the Alhambra Athletic Club team and the San Diego De Molay club turned in their entries for the big tournament last week.

A number of teams have notified Manager Pierce of their intention of entering the tournament and their formal applications are expected in a few days. San Diego has promised another entry. San Francisco will be represented by at least one team and possibly more, and Long Beach plans to have two representatives. Efforts will be made to have the Utah Aggies, who play U. S. C. this week-end and the Los Angeles A.C. next Monday and Tuesday, remain over for the tournament. Definite word from the University of Nevada is expected by Pierce not later than Friday.

OBSERVATIONS BY BILL HENRY

next year but he has a list which some enthusiast has made up for him containing the varsity material for next fall and Jones is inclined to admit that if the boys are all as good material as people seem to think he ought to be able to stir up a pretty fair football eleven out of the crowd.

"Those two big teams I had back at Iowa when we won the championship were not made up from any enormous amount of material," Jones said yesterday. "I only had two sets of backs and I really couldn't make a substitution without weakening the team in some regard or another." The thought of some ten experienced varsity backs and five rip-roaring freshmen ball toters seems to be rather agreeable.

From a chat with the new Trojan gridiron boss it is rather apparent that he knows his stuff and demands the same thing from his men. He personally knows exactly what every man is doing on every play and his men have no alibis when they come out of a game. The same thing goes on defense as on offense and a player who lets his man get away with a pass will have a tough time explaining.

He is a real student of football with a genuine interest in it and a great affection for it. Jones seems to be the kind of a man who will build up at U.S.C. a battling eleven that will uphold its honor in fine style and, even more important, Jones strikes us as being an individual who will have the confidence and the respect of not only his team and student body but of the representatives of the rival schools as well.

MERCURY CASABERS SQUASH DENTAL TEAM

Playing the sterling brand of basketball that they are capable of when they take a notion, the Los Angeles Athletic Club melon cagers walloped the U. of Southern California Dental College last night 28-to-13.

Much credit for the victory is due to the club's latest addition, young Mr. Potter, who is rapidly proving himself to be a first-class basketball performer.

The Club stepped out for a 19-to-5 lead in the first half, which virtually cinched the victory for them. Laswell and Olney showed well for the Mercury men, while Nichols was the star of the Dental dribblers. The line-ups:

L. A. A. C.—Pates, F., 11; Laswell, F., 4; Olney, C., 4; Sanders, G.; Chandler, G.; Lacos, F.; Allen, F., 3; Wilde, F., 1; Kennedy, C.; Dennis, Gibson, F., 1; Gotch, F.; Mudge, C., 4; De Landy, G.; Stanley, G.; Slater, F.; Knox, F., 4.

SPORT-CASTS by Walter Camp

"There are putters and putters. Give me the man who can hit the back of the cup when he's two down and three to go."

Walter Hagen, with every major professional title in the world to his credit, is without question the greatest "pinch" player among the professionals. What about the amateurs? If you were asked to choose between Travers, Travis, Jones, Ouimet, Sweetser, Von Elm, Marston and the other amateur stars, which one would you pick to carry money if you knew that at the sixteenth hole your entry was to be two down and three to go against whoever his opponent might be? Who is the greatest "pinch" golfer among the amateurs?

The choice is difficult. There is Travis, grim and resolute, and with a magic putter to command when he finds himself backed against the wall. There is Travers, a fighting man of the links, with so fine a competitive temperament that it is impossible to tell from his expression on either the first or the thirty-sixth hole of a match whether he is winning or losing. There is Jones, the greatest shot maker in the game, and the only amateur who has ever shot within a few strokes of perfect golf in winning the national amateur championship. There is the memory of a Sweetser who went through a field that included Willie Hunter, Jones, Guilford and Evans to win his first national championship at Brookline in 1923; of a Sweetser who went through to the final round the next year at Flossmoor; of a Sweetser who coolly negotiated a half-stymie with a six-foot putt on the thirty-sixth hole to keep the match he played with Marston at Flossmoor alive.

THE GREATEST COMPETITOR

And then there is another possibility. As we consider it a dramatic picture comes into the mind—the picture of a slender youngster with hawklike eyes and smiling lips suddenly thrust forward from out of the shadows of obscurity to play a leading part in an international drama of sport.

As we think of Francis Ouimet we come to the end of our search for the greatest "pinch" hitter among the golfers.

Ouimet has never known the physical power of a Guilford, a Jones or a Sweetser; but none of them has ever been able to equal the quality of Ouimet's competitive nerve. He was 19 years old when he first stepped into the spotlight by tying Vardon and Ray in the American open championship at Brookline. The eyes of 5000 spectators were on this former caddy as he fought these brilliant English veterans in the play-off. The eyes of millions awaited the written report of that classic of golf.

Ouimet has imagination and he knew all this as he went to the first tee against his English opponents. But neither imagination, the nerve-shattering drives of Ray nor the canny sharpshooting of Vardon could swerve him from his set purpose of playing all the golf he knew.

Ouimet went on to win the amateur championship the next year; but since that time illness and lack of samina have kept him away from additional international championships. Handicapped as he has been, however, consider his "pinch-hitting" record in golf during the last two years. In 1923 he went to England as a member of the American Walker Cup team. At Sandwich he finished with a 3 on a par 5 hole to tie Dr. O. F. Willing for the Royal St. George Vase. On the seventeenth hole of the play-off he was leading by a shot when he played his second to the green. That shot found a sand trap, but Ouimet "exploded" the ball out to land it within a foot of the hole to get his half.

In the 1923 English amateur championship at Deal, Francis, with no help from a single teammate, went through to the semi-final round, only to be beaten by Roger Wethered after Cyril Tolley had taken much of his strength in a brilliantly played morning round. Later, in the Walker Cup matches at St. Andrews, Ouimet broke the course record in his afternoon round against Wethered. But the English champion sank everything from a sixty-foot putt on down and at the sixteenth tee Ouimet was 2 down and 3 to go. He finished the last three holes at St. Andrews, one of the hardest finishing tests in the world, in 3, 4, 3, to square the match. His final putt on the thirty-sixth hole to keep the match he played with Marston alive.

In the Walker Cup matches played at Garden City last fall Ouimet fought a bitter battle with E. F. Storey. The match was square at the seventeenth hole. The eighteenth hole at Garden City calls for a short pitch across a lake to a well-trapped green.

"I'll gamble that Francis will be close on this pitch," a member of the gallery remarked, "and I'll bet some more that his putt for a 3 at least touches the cup."

Ouimet was ten feet away on his pitch and, with a putt that had to climb and descend a young series of mountain ranges, he dropped his ball for a winning "birdie" 3.

Take Hagen at any distance among the pros and take Ouimet at eighteen or thirty-six holes among the amateurs, and if the finishes are close you'll win more often than you'll lose.

GRIZZLIES AND BENGALS CLASH

Leading Conference Squads Tangle This Week

Quintets Will Meet Twice on Manual Court

Cage Title May be Settled by Pair of Tilts

The great basketball debate in the Southern California conference will be resumed Friday and Saturday nights, presumably with much gusto, when the league leading local University of California five runs up against Occidental's quintet.

If the Grizzly quintet, which at present looks like the logical heir to the silverware this season, wins both games, Occidental's name is mud. If, on the other hand, the Bengals cop the week-end entertainments, they will most likely usurp the honors, as they have lost but one contest, and have no hard games in the future. As the above games are the only ones which have any bearing on the title this week, all eyes will be centered on their outcome. Particularly those of Whittier College, where by whitting the wins and losses down to fine points, an equation that will give Whittier the title has been worked out.

WORKING HARD

Coach Oak Smith has been working hard with his Tiger crew, and feels that his offense is perfected to such an extent as to give the Tigers a fighting chance to whip their rivals. Smith is another of those firm believers in the theory that a good offense is the best defense, and has concentrated all his efforts along that line. Mellette and Mishkin, both forwards, look like the money when it comes to shooting baskets and with Black, center, Archer and Godett guards form a classy scoring machine.

Caddy Works's Grizzly quintet, while it will be more or less hampered by the absence of Armstrong, considered the best guard in the conference, is still figured to take the argument. At present Works is bending his efforts toward getting the works straightened out for the impending struggle. It is possible that he will shift Goertz back to center and put Prigge in at one of the guard positions, to fill Armstrong's place. With Capt. Johns and Bugs Woodard, forwards, Wild Bill at center, Horace Breese and Prigge, guards, the Grizzlies still have a formidable machine, capable of squeezing the Tiger to death, or whatever Grizzlies do to obstacles in their path.

PLAY AT MANUAL

Both games this week-end will be played at the Manual Arts High gymnasium, as the Tigers, like the Grizzlies, have no court capable of accommodating the crowd. Ozy will be the home team Friday, while the Grizzlies do the honors Saturday. Both games will start promptly at 8:00 p.m.

BIG MUNN FACES ROMANO

Conqueror of Strangler Lewis Tonight Meets Italian in Second Match Since Winning Title

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

CHICAGO, Feb. 17.—Wayne "Big" Munn, 260-pound claimant of the world's heavyweight wrestling championship, despite the counter claims of Ed "Stranger" Lewis, will engage in his second match since he tossed Lewis out of the ring six weeks ago, when he meets Michael Romano, Italian heavyweight, in a finish match here tomorrow night.

Romano, possessing remarkable speed, despite his 200 pounds, engaged Lewis in three matches here, losing each match. He once pinned Lewis with headlocks.

Munn disposed of Stanislaus Zbyszko in Kansas City last Wednesday, pinning the veteran in straight falls.

Advance indications are that a capacity crowd will jam the Coliseum for tomorrow night's match.

TUNNEY FACES GREB

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

ORLANDO (Fla.) Feb. 17.—Gene Tunney, American light-heavyweight champion, announced here tonight he would meet Harry Greb in St. Paul March 17 in a ten-round no-decision bout.

TROJAN FROSH TRIM GRIFFIN AND McGARY

Coming from behind with a bang in the last half, the S. C. freshmen basketball team defeated the Griffin and McGary quintet, 35-to-18 in an A.A.U. game at Manual Arts high school last night. The latter team did all its scoring in the first half and was ahead by one point at half time. The Frosh closed up the holes in their defense in the last period and proceeded to do some scoring of their own. The line-ups:

Freshmen (35)—Thomas (10) F., Gillis (6) F., Brunner (12) C., Lewis (2) G., McGuffie, G. Griffin & McGary (18)—Miller (3) F., Moore (2) F., Lowd (4) C., Redfern (3) G., Stinson (6) G.

Referee—Wheeler.

MILLS BUCKS CURTIS

English Lightweight Takes on Idol of Long Beach in Ten-Round Go at Wilmington Tonight

Pat Mills of England and Buck Curtis, Long Beach lightweight hero, over the ten-round route—that's the entertainment on tap tonight at the Wilmington Bowl. Wilmington has staged all eight round main events to date but Curtis and Mills are going the longer distance by request from fans and fighters themselves. Four others bouts are also on the card.

Mills and Curtis are two of the best-liked fighters in the West at present. Curtis has been featured many times in the main events of the arenas of the beach cities, and has won himself a place seldom occupied by anything less than a champion by his tactics. Mills has been in the spotlight at both Vernon and Hollywood, and is regarded as one of the best foreign importations for a long time.

A heavyweight encounter between Sailor Ted Snyder of the U.S.S. Mississippi and Al Pomeroy of New York for six rounds is the semi-wind-up. Sailor Ed Spence and Don Downey of Redondo have the special event at four rounds. Two preliminaries complete the program.

SYLVESTER VS. THOMPSON

Watson Burns, manager and matchmaker of the Assembly Athletic Club at Ninth and Central, expects the largest house he ever had tonight. Burns is going to turn loose a double main bill with some high-class talent. Eddie Sylvester, Freddy Muemerkle's rough-and-ready 130-pounder, meets Jack Thompson, the second Joe Gans, in the top ten-rounder. Thompson has won nine straight bouts by kayos. He has a marvelous style of defense and is a terrific hitter. Sylvester also has some good boys' scalps on his record book. He trimmed Young Papke and boxed Willie O'Brien to a six-round draw. He also held Young Sam Langford to a six-round draw at the Assembly Club two weeks ago. Eddie has starred many times at Vernon and Hollywood.

Sailor Carroll and Sailor Bogardus will clash in the other ten-round main event. The two heavyweights are well known on the Coast and some real action should develop. The winner of the bout meets Victor Alexander in next week's main event. Alexander has been out of opponents for five months.

Danny Carlson and "Cosey" Smith furnish the special event over the six-round route. That should be another good battle. Frankie Mansus and Warren Walker open the show with a four-rounder. Musical entertainment will also be on hand.

Roman Tennis Team Defeats Grizzly Frosh

Winning everything but the second doubles match, the L. A. High tennis team took another practice match unto itself yesterday, defeating the local University of California freshmen 14 to 3 on the Grizzly courts. Rearer and Winans defeated DeShields and Maine of L. A. in the last match of the day, and thereby saved the college team from complete ruination. All the matches were hard fought, the Grizzlies usually forcing things into deuce games and sets. Gorchakoff, Kussman, DeShields and Maine composed the Blue and White squad. Stanford, Purrington, Rearer and Winans represented the college.

Capt. Ben Gorchakoff of L. A. started off the fray with a hard-won victory over Stanford by scores of 3-6, 6-4, 6-4. Kussman defeated Purrington, 6-1, 1-6, 6-2. DeShields won over Rearer, 1-6, 7-5, 6-2. Winans lost to Maine, 9-7, 0-6, 6-4. In the doubles Gorchakoff and Kussman defeated Stanford and Purrington, 6-1, 6-3, and L. A. High lost its only match when Winans and Rearer trimmed DeShields and Maine, 6-3, 6-2.

NEBRASKA STAR DOES SECOND FASTEST MILE

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

NEW YORK, Feb. 17.—The world's indoor mile race at Madison Square Garden Saturday night won by Lloyd Hahn, Nebraska product of the Boston A. A., was the second fastest performance at that distance ever checked up by an American competitor, indoors or outdoors. His time of 4:11 2-5 was only four-fifths of a second slower than the mark of 4:12 3-5 made by Norman Taber in 1915, which stood as the outdoor standard until 1923, when Paavo Nurmi covered the course in 4:10 2-5.

Hahn's performance emphasizes the improvement in the feats of American track athletes stimulated by Nurmi.

Hahn had never beaten 4:15 for a mile before. Joie Ray recently ran the fastest mile of his career, 4:13 3-5.

However, he is giving Walker his best workouts, neither sparing himself nor the welter king in an endeavor to make it interesting.

One of the real good boys from the East who will appear in a local ring in the near future is Jack Rapaport, a junior welterweight.

We understand he was practically carded for Hollywood two weeks from Friday night, with Mushy Callahan, but after seeing Rapaport work out at the Newsboys' Club Mushy's manager is reported not quite so anxious for the match.

Rapaport has a splendid record, but one knockout has gained him more notoriety than all the rest of his fights put together. Unfortunately for him, the notoriety was not altogether desirable.

We refer to his knockout at the hands of Bobby Barrett just before the latter came to the Coast. Rapaport was leading up to the time of the K.O., according to the newspaper accounts, and would have won the verdict easily. But he got careless and a right overhand swing from Barrett's paw as he ducked low caught him right behind the ear and he went kicking head first onto the canvas. This was in the eighth round, with only two more rounds to go.

Rapaport is a young fellow—21—has been fighting about five years and had won thirty-nine straight fights up to the time he was bumped off by Barrett. He has beaten a lot of good ones, including Jack Britton, J. O. Dundee and Kid Wagner, the latter being an entrant in the lightweight elimination tourney now going on in New York.

mark for qualifying time in the history of all automobile racing but equalled the official track record. This does not affect Bennett Hill's unofficial record of 137.3 miles an hour established Monday.

Fred Comer stepped into second place in the qualifying tests by turning his timed lap at a speed of 133.1 miles an hour. To do this he turned the lap in 33 4-5 seconds. Comer is driving the same car in which Hartz finished second at Culver two months ago while Hartz has the car that Antoine Mourre formerly drove.

Peter DePaolo narrowly escaped wrecking his rebuilt Duesenberg Special in qualifying the race when a left rear tire went soft on the back stretch, causing the machine to wobble badly. DePaolo straightened it up and despite the loss of time, turned the qualifying lap in

LA BARBA FACES FILIPINO

Young Nationalista Tackles Fidel at Hollywood in Ten-Round Main Bout Friday Night

It isn't always champions that make the greatest fights. Many and many a time the near-champs have come through with the sensational battles. Never has a world's champion boxed at the Hollywood American Legion stadium, but they have had shows that made local ring history.

Friday night Fidel La Barba and Young Nationalista will smack each other around for ten rounds. The bout may and may not go the distance, though neither of these lads has ever been kayoed. This seems to be the big chance of Fidel to come through and make the grade. Fidel was so good an amateur that his friends thought all he had to do when he turned pro. was to crawl through the ropes and romp home to victory.

FIDEL LA BARBA

He was pitted against the toughest of the lot when Jimmy McLarnin was picked as his opponent. He dropped two close verdicts to the little Irishman from the Northwest. The losses were due to inexperience, some said.

Young Nationalista has been beaten, but not badly. His fights have been pleasing, and he is just the type of battler to make Fidel La Barba a wonder. Nationalista isn't clever. He is fast and has a style all his own. He is known as one of the freaks of the ring. Nobody knows from where he is going to uncork a haymaker, but he lets plenty of them fly through the air, some of which find their mark.

La Barba is a greatly improved boxer. Billy Oates, a good judge of boxing flesh, says that La Barba in his workouts looks lots better now than when he last fought McLarnin. Bud Hamilton, who boxes Tommy Celle in the semi-wind-up, has a newspaper decision over Ace Hudkins, gained in a ten-round go at Alliance, Neb., about a year ago. Bud gave away about eight pounds that night and still beat Hudkins.

The semi-wind-up should be a corker, as Celle is looking for a main event. Before he has a chance to get on top he must show plenty of class, as there is lots of talent leafing in Los Angeles right now.

Frankie Osner and Teddy Seidman box for six rounds in what should be another sweet fracas. Seidman is a jumping jack fighter, who always gets a cheer. With his funny style of milling he is a tough guy to beat. Osner is good, but he will have to be exceptionally good Friday night to cop the decision over Seidman.

Bercot Meets Young Papke in Star Ring Go

Dode Bercot, the Seattle logger, and Young Papke will open the new San Fernando stadium tonight when they meet in the ten-round main event. Bercott, fresh from his victory at Hollywood over Morris Schlaifer, will enter the ring a hot favorite, but the peppery Papke is scheduled to give him a tough argument.

The Austin stable, of which Dode Bercot is the shining light, is well represented on the program. Roy Cliffe, a promising light-heavy, battles Jack McGreer, San Fernando pride, in the six-round semi-wind-up; Bud Bercot, Dode's kid brother, fights Eddie Shannon at 118 pounds in the special event of six rounds. Henry Marcus battles Sailor Carter at 135 pounds, and Wild Man Carrasco scrape Young Magdelena at 118 pounds in the first two battles of the evening.

HORSESHOE CHAMPION IN TOP POSITION

(BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE)

LAKE WORTH (Fla.) Feb. 17. Frank "War Horse" Jackson of Kellerton, Iowa, of many national tournaments, and twice holder of the world's horse shoe crown, advanced to first position in the second day's play of the mid-winter national horse-shoe pitchers' tournament here today. To do this Jackson defeated Putt Mossman, present champion of Eldorado, Iowa, by 50-34, tossing 47 ringers and 17 doubles on 76 shoes pitched, while Mossman put over 41 ringers and 13 doubles.

Mississippi in Close Win Over West Virginia

The U.S.S. Mississippi boxing team won the Pacific Fleet championship last night by defeating the U.S.S. West Virginia scrappers in five of the eight bouts scheduled. The smoker was held on the West Virginia, with about 2800 gobs looking on.

In the feature battle of the evening, Pedro De La Cruz, plucky little West Virginia glove tosser, bested Jerry Agilbey of the Missey after six fast rounds. De La Cruz was outweighed, but made up in pluck and scrappiness what he lacked in weight. The men fought in the bantamweight class.

Sergt. Ted Schneider, who has won the all-Navy heavyweight championship for the last four years, had a tough time beating Jess Stafford, West Virginia, but finally brought home a Mississippi victory. Stafford is a newcomer at the boxing racket, but made Schneider know he was in a fight all the way.

Joe Levy of the Mississippi trimmed "Sheik" Arabe for the featherweight crown, while Wardynski of the Mississippi beat Mahler of the West Virginia in the lightweight class. Jack Stevens, West Virginia welter, beat Charley Lamb after an extra round of going, and Jack Perry of the West Virginia took the middleweight honors from Tony Paeleeze, the referee stopping the bout in the third. The flyweight battle ended in the first with Lucas of the Missey stopping Batalane. Eddie Huffman, Mississippi, won the light-heavy tilt by default.

The increase of wolves in Italy, especially in the central and southern provinces, is becoming a cause of serious concern on the part of the authorities.

DUNLAP CELEBRATED HATS FOR SPRING 1925

The "Metropolitan" has the lines of youth. With the wide brim that fashion has made popular and in the soft grays and tans that well-dressed men everywhere are wearing, the Dunlap designers have caught the one best style for Spring.

The Dunlap "Tonbridge" A CAP is more than a cap when it has Dunlap style. Dunlap caps for 1925 are made of the softest imported materials, with the flat, square-cut visor our designers have brought from England.

The "Metropolitan Special" is a variation of the "Metropolitan"—for the man who looks better in a hat with a less pronounced brim. It keeps the snap of the "Metropolitan" and makes it possible for every man to be in style.

Heavy Buying Support Sends Bears to Cover

Ground Lost on Previous Day Partly Recovered

Court Ruling Brings Break in American Smelter

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

NEW YORK, Feb. 17.—Speculators for the decline succeeded in bringing about another sharp reaction in today's market, but they were unable to maintain their advantage and finally rushed to cover when strong buying support appeared. Most of the standard industrials and rails succeeded in recovering part of the ground lost in yesterday's drastic decline. The day's sales again ran above 2,000,000 shares.

Chief speculative interest centered in the sharp break in American Smelting and Refining, which dropped from $100 a share to around $92.75 on the announcement from San Francisco that the United States Court of Appeal had decided that the company had infringed the patent of George Campbell Carson, a miner, on ore smelting devices and that his claims against that and other copper companies would reach $20,000,000.

The stock railied about $96 a share before the close, after local officials of the company had announced that an appeal would be taken and that the amount of the claims was grossly exaggerated.

Heavy buying of Baldwin Locomotive, following an earlier reaction based on the publication of the unfavorable 1924 earnings report, started a rally in the general list. Special strength also developed in Atchison Railroad, which soared 6 points to 124, the highest price in fifteen years. United States Cast Iron Pipe, whose violent and erratic fluctuations have been one of the features of recent markets, closed 8 3-4 points higher at 218 3-4, after having sold as high as 221.

Among the many popular issues to close 2 or more points above yesterday's final prices were Allis Chalmers, American Can, American Locomotive, American Sugar Refining, American Woolen, Crucible Steel, and General Petroleum.

CAPTURE OF BUCCANEERS IS SOUGHT

Purported Message of Missing Baker Starts Search of Ships

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

NEW YORK, Feb. 17.—While the wife and children of Benjamin Levy, 45 years of age, driver of a bakery wagon, were tortured by Stevensonian visions of Levy languishing in a ship's damp hold, at the mercy of modern pirates, three police boats cruised the waters around New York searching for the vessel near High Bridge on which he may be held captive. High Bridge is at One Hundred and Seventieth street, across the Harlem.

Levy disappeared from his home at 96 Buffalo avenue, Brooklyn, some time after 2:30 a.m., January 29. A note purporting to have come from a bottle which he cast overboard from a ship was received at police headquarters Saturday.

The note could not be traced, but on the chance that it had been washed ashore in such a manner, the police boats were at work. It said he could see High Bridge through a crack in the ship's side.

"If they would only let him come home I would be happy and forgive whoever has been responsible," Mrs. Levy cried. She thought she had a safe ordinary bakery-wagon driver for a husband and the shock of discovering him in the light of a hero in a story-book tale is troubling her.

Levy was working for the B. A. Cushman Baking Company when he disappeared. He had posted a $100 bond with the company and had only $8 in his pocket, Mrs. Levy said.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

WASHINGTON, Feb. 17.—Director Hines of the Veterans' Bureau, appearing today before a House committee investigating the National Disabled Soldiers' League, said that all the reports he had received about the organization were unfavorable.

Mr. Hines emphasized that he had no personal contact with the league or its officials, but said he had been furnished information concerning its activities whoch convinced him it was not making bona fide efforts to aid former service men. x

Bird S. Coler, welfare commissioner in New York City, told the committee that former service men are being "swindled and made catspaws by irresponsible persons."

TEXAS RAILROADS' EARNINGS INCREASE

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

AUSTIN (Tex.) Feb. 17.—Figures just compiled by the State Railroad Commission show that the net operating revenue of Texas railroads for the eleven months' period, ending November 30, 1924, amounted to $52,962,765. This is an increase of 35.93 per cent over the same period the previous year, net operating revenue for 1923 being $38,528,996. Total operating revenue for the eleven months was $204,310,340, an increase of $17,138,342 over the previous year, while total operating expenses in the 1924 period were $151,947,575, or an increase of $3,298,667 over that of 1923.

Maybe your teeth are gloriously clear, simply clouded with a film coat. Make this remarkable test and find out.

Just run your tongue across your teeth

You'll feel a film—that's what makes your teeth look "off color" and invites decay and gum troubles

Old methods fail to remove it successfully. Beneath it are the dazzling white teeth you envy. Make this remarkable dental test—you may have beautiful teeth and not realize it.

THE test that's offered here has been made by thousands with remarkable results. Authorities pronounce it the most unique of all dental methods.

You want clear, beautiful teeth. You can have them—quickly. For this new way goes to the basis of "off color" teeth, the source of most tooth and gum troubles.

In a few years, largely on dental advice, it has changed the tooth cleansing habits of the world. In justice to yourself, use the coupon below.

It removes that stubborn film, the great enemy of teeth and gums

Run your tongue across your teeth, and you will feel a film . . . a viscous coat that covers them.

That film is an enemy to your teeth—and your gums. You must remove it.

It clings to teeth, gets into crevices and stays. It absorbs discolorations and gives your teeth that cloudy "off color" look. Germs by the millions breed in it, and they, with tartar, are a chief cause of pyorrhea.

Tooth troubles and gum troubles now are largely traced to that film. Old-time methods fail in successfully combating it. That's why, regardless of the care you take now, your teeth remain dull and unattractive.

New methods remove it And Firm the Gums

Now, in a new type dentifrice called Pepsodent, dental science has discovered effective combatants. Their action is to curdle the film and remove it, then to firm the gums.

Now what you see when that film is removed—the whiteness of your teeth—will amaze you.

Ordinary methods fail in these results.

Harsh, gritty substances are judged dangerous to enamel.

CLASHES MARK HACKFELD SUIT

Former Governor of Hawaii on Stand

Asserts A. Mitchell Palmer Was Misinformed

Letter Written in 1908 is Read in Record

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 17.—Frequent clashes between opposing counsel featured today's session of the $17,500,000 Hackfeld accounting suit in which former stockholders in the once powerful German-Hawaiian sugar concern ask recovery of $10,000,000 from certain purchasers of Hackfeld assets on the ground that the property was fraudulently disposed of in 1918 for $7,500,000.

Over objection of counsel for the respondents there was read into the record a lengthy letter from former Gov. W. F. Frear of Hawaii to Walter F. Dillingham, February 8, 1918, in which Frear assailed the motives of Richard H. Trent, representative in Hawaii of the Alien Property Custodian, in the matter of the appointment of the Trent Trust Company as depositary for the Hackfeld properties.

Frear, who was in Washington, D. C., in the interest of the Hawaiian Trust Company, which had attempted unsuccessfully to secure the appointment as depositary, also communicated to Dillingham that he and others with whom he had conferred were "struck with the large amount of misinformation on which A. Mitchell Palmer, Alien Property Custodian, had acted "in turning down the petition of the Hawaiian Trust Company and appointing the Trent Trust Company depositary.

POLITICS CHARGED

"We are also disgusted with the amount of politics which apparently govern the action of the Alien Property Custodian," Frear wrote.

Indications that Palmer was not in accord with the views of the late President Wilson as to the matter of handling seized enemy property also appeared in the letter of Frear to Dillingham. Frear wrote: "Palmer desires to clean out the German interests in American business, while Wilson wishes to conserve them so that, when the war is over, he can say to Germany: 'We have protected your interests; what have you done with America's interests?'"

Palmer, Frear further stated in his letter, had adopted a policy of "bringing certain pressure to bear on enemy alien property owners" to induce them to offer to place their holdings in his hands, instead of compelling the Alien Property Custodian to take the initiative under the Trading with the Enemy Act, which Frear quoted Palmer as characterizing as a "faulty and inadequate" measure.

ENMITY CROPS OUT

Frear's enmity toward Trent cropped out during his testimony and in correspondence introduced in evidence.

"Trent's actions make it impossible for you to unscramble the January 11 reorganization of H. Hackfeld & Co., with honor," one paragraph of Frear's letter read.

"Palmer either was an active participant in the alleged conspiracy to turn the Hackfeld properties over to competitors for much less than their actual value, or else he was woefully misled in many of his acts," Attorney Barry Ulrich interjected during one clash with Attorney Oscar Sutro, counsel for the respondents.

The defense succeeded in excluding from evidence certain of the Frear correspondence which the plaintiffs sought to introduce.

In his letter of February 8, Frear expressed amazement at the "vast amount of erroneous information" supplied the Alien Property Custodian. The plaintiffs contend that Trent was largely responsible for supplying Palmer with the information referred to as erroneous and misleading.

Frear will resume the stand tomorrow as one of the principal witnesses for the plaintiffs.

Travel with the weariness all left out!

When you go by Admiral Line steamer—the "Travel-by-Water" way—you have your choice of a dozen delightful diversions.

There's deck games and dancing; a "sea mile" on the broad, trim decks; the run of the great ship—a small city afloat; the ever-changing panorama of sea and shore and sky.

Then, when you're so inclined, there's a sheltered nook on the deck—a restful steamer chair—a book or late magazine—and, perhaps, a friend to share the pleasure.

"This isn't travel!" our passengers say: "It's an outing at sea!" And port of destination finds them rested, refreshed, and ready for work or play.

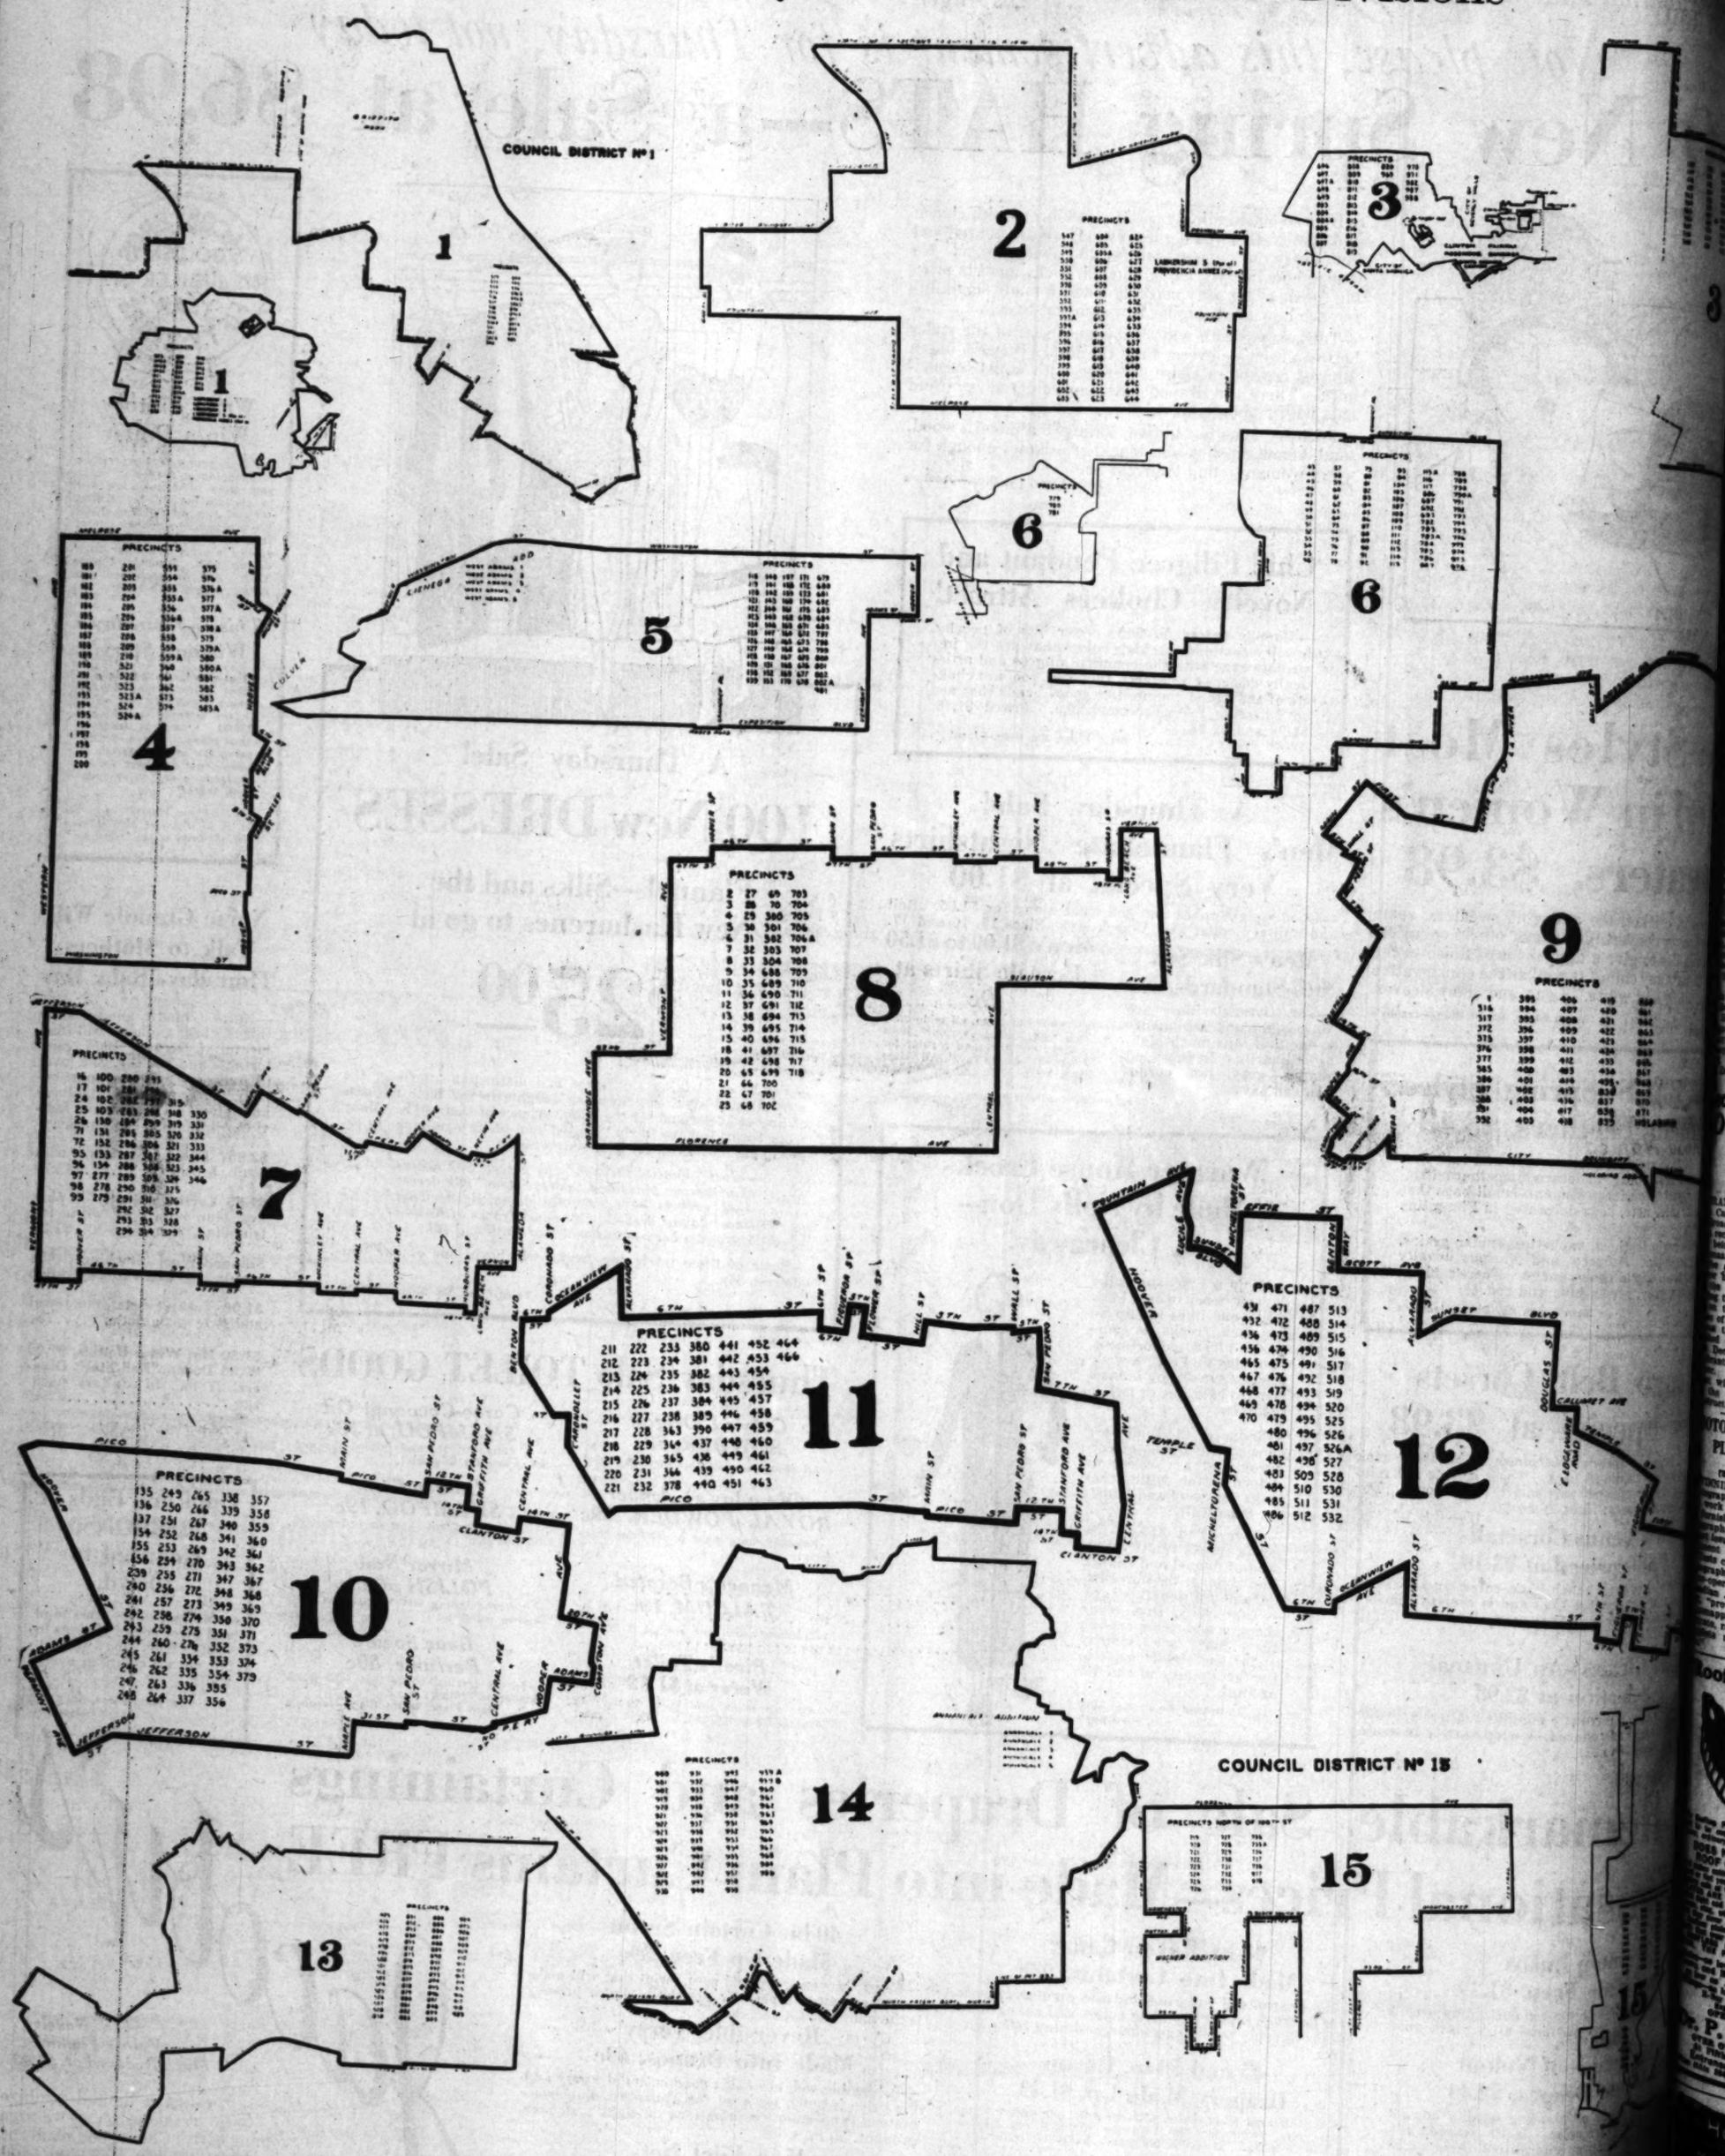
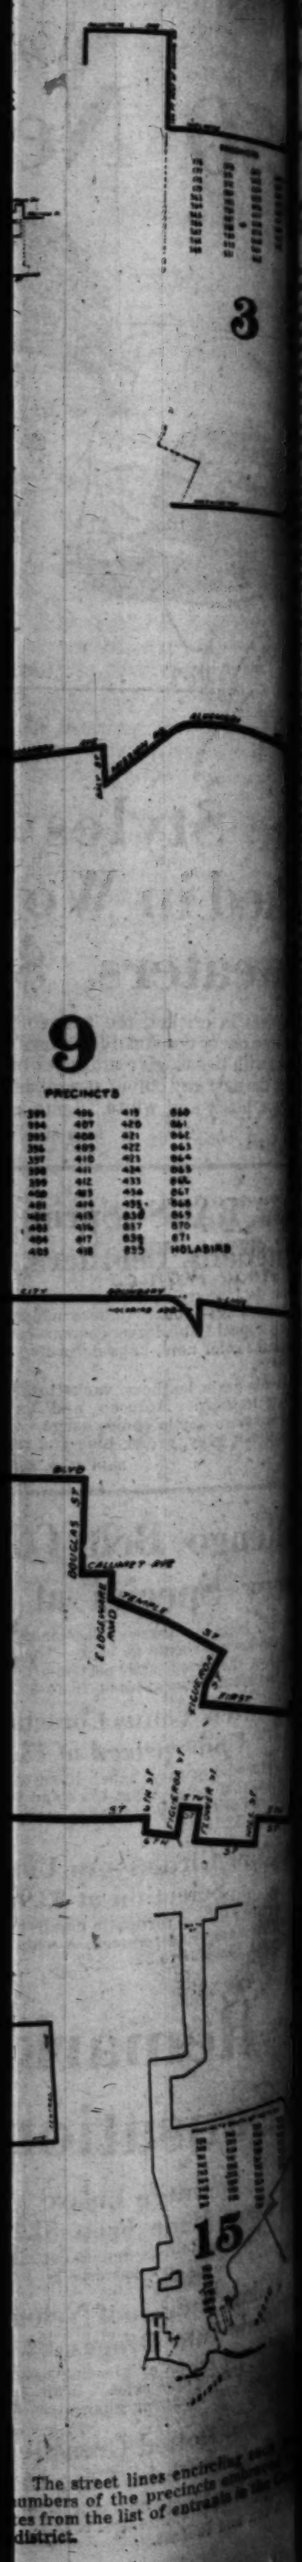
Division of City Into Councilmanic Divisions



Outline of Boundaries of New Districts—Above are the official maps of the fifteen councilmanic districts prepared by City Clerk Dominguez from the boundaries established by the City Council. The street lines are the boundaries of that district, and all territory within these lines is a part of that district. The official number of each councilmanic district is shown within the boundary lines, as are the numbers of the precincts district. Precincts remain unchanged. The next City Council will consists of fifteen Councilmen chosen at the June 2 election, one from each district. At the primaries on May 5, two candidates from the list of each manic race will be chosen, the two receiving the largest number of votes to be placed on the June ballot. Registered voters may now vote for only one candidate—a candidate representing his district.



The street lines encircling each of the numbers of the precincts embrace streets from the list of entrants in the precinct district.

Black Satin and Beige Lace

A DELIGHTFUL example of the costume without fur is this Black Satin Ensemble.

Wide, very full ruchings of the satin form the collar and edge the circular drapery of the Coat.

And beige lace, of very open mesh, forms a long-waisted effect for the front of the frock—the back of which is plain, and the lower part of which is circular.

Ensemble—priced at $225.

Fashions For Spring at Robinson's

THAT Spring brings renewal to a waiting world is evident everywhere in Fashions. The colors of garden and forest bloom again in little flower frocks.

Slender lines and graceful draperies are but a reflection of the spirit which animates all nature and is brilliantly expressed in colorful costumes for sports; in flower-tinted chiffon dance frocks; in the delicately toned wraps; in all the smart Apparel introduced for Spring by Robinson's.

Separate and complete sections for: the Ensemble, Sportswear, Wraps, Gowns, Millinery, Furs.

THIRD FLOOR

Black Silk and White Kasha

THE combination of black and white, smarter this spring than ever before, appears to full advantage in the Ensemble sketched above.

The Coat—left—of heavy, corded black silk, is lined with white kasha—and decorated with white fox cuffs and border.

White Kasha fashions the accompanying frock. Tailored in style, with long sleeves and straight high collar, it buttons in one straight line from neck to hem.

Ensemble—priced at $295.

THIRD FLOOR

Cyclamen Georgette

JUST one of many other exclusive models for spring evening wear now shown at Robinson's is the exquisite dance Frock sketched. Of cyclamen georgette, with heavily beaded panels alternating with circular panels of plain chiffon forming the graceful skirt. $225.

For less formal wear there are Frocks of blonde georgette, printed chiffons—of black satin, of heavy silk crepes. Many beautiful models for the young girl or the older women.

THIRD FLOOR

White and Gold

ONE of the very smart combinations for spring evening wear appears in the Frock above. White chiffon is brocaded in gold metal flowers and edged with gold beads. $195.

Other Evening Frocks, of taffeta in bouffant style; of metal fabrics or beaded crepes in slender, straight styles; of lace and satin and chiffon; in black, white, the bright shades and the pastel tints just launched for spring.

THIRD FLOOR

Spring's Confirmation of "Robinson's for Yard Goods"

ONE would almost suppose that fairy looms had been at work to spin the marvelously lovely weaves exhibited in Robinson's Yard Goods Sections.

Prints—in Silk or Cotton—declare more brilliantly than in any previous season for the unstinted use of color. Cotton Prints in the original English patterns and Silk Prints in dots and other designs. Cotton Prints at 75c. Printed Silks at $4, $4.75, $8.25 and $8.50.

French Embroidered Crepes from Rodier are so rich with embroidered designs that they assume an almost medieval magnificence. Beginning at $3.75.

SECOND FLOOR

Exhibition and Sale Hand-Embroidered French Shawls

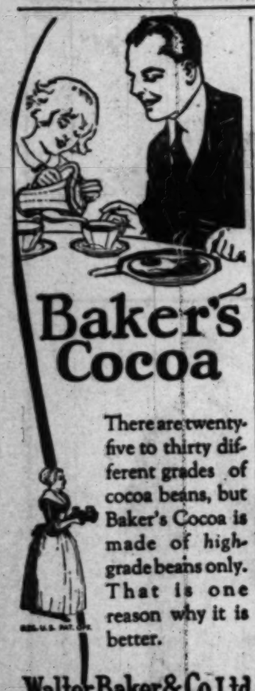
BY THIS exceptional event at Robinson's Wednesday, shoppers will be enabled to secure magnificent Silk Shawls for a fraction of what they would ordinarily pay.

Made in France—hand-embroidered on silk crepe of rich, beautiful quality, with hand-tied silk twist or ribbonzine fringe.

Conventional or flower designs are richly embroidered in brilliant colors on the plain background.

In black, white, gold, rose or blue, these beautiful Shawls will be amazingly low priced Wednesday, at just $79.50.

FIRST FLOOR



Baker's Cocoa

There are twenty-five to thirty different grades of cocoa beans, but Baker's Cocoa is made of high-grade beans only. That is one reason why it is better.

Throat germs—destroy them at the start

TO prevent sore throat—to cure it—you must destroy the germs that cause it.

Formamint destroys throat germs—as no gargle or spray can do—because it releases in the throat a powerful yet safe antiseptic that acts continuously and long enough really to kill germs.

Every hour or so whenever the throat feels raw, or whenever you are exposed to infection, dissolve one of the pleasant-tasting tablets in the mouth. This continuous antiseptic treatment speedily clears out germs. Ask your druggist.

Vast Depots of Supplies in France Discounted

Accumulation Offered Ally at Fractional Value

Need Vanished, Disposition Becomes Problem

BY WILLIAM P. HELM, JR.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

NEW YORK, Feb. 17.—Picture, if you can, the supplies needed to maintain 2,000,000 American soldiers in the field. Lay the scene in France and over that far-flung panorama scatter the huge depots of supplies. Visualize, if possible, 150,000 installations of barracks, camps, hospitals, warehouses, machine shops, docks, telephone and telegraph offices, railroad yards and other enterprises. Here are more than 1100 modern locomotives; there are more than 14,000 freight cars—all made in the United States.

Everywhere behind the lines lie products of American mills and factories, bought in America by the American government out of funds raised through the Liberty loans and transported 3000 miles to the theater of war. Day and night, at fever heat, American establishments turned out their maximum to win the war. Over a clear right of way—for all other things properly had to take second place—American railroads hurried the finished product to the seaboard. And there, guarded by American soldiers and convoyed by American warships, they were carried where they would do the most good—to France.

NEEDED NO MORE

They were a mighty factor in winning the war, but the day the armistice was signed they became so much supplies. They had been needed to keep men in the field, but they were not needed to bring American soldiers home. At 11 a.m. on November 11, 1918, far and away the great bulk of this huge accumulation became merely surplus materials.

That accumulation of materials, almost in its entirety, is a part of the French debt today.

France bought those supplies. She gave us in return her ten-year bonds for $407,000,000, which we now hold. What did she get for her promise to pay?

There was an inventory taken, hurriedly but fairly accurately, of these great stores some six months or more after the armistice had been signed. They were somewhat depleted at that time, for our forces had been drawing on them since the armistice, but even when the inventory was taken the total rolled up to the imposing figure of $1,739,159,362.65. That represented cost to American taxpayers.

Under one inventory heading there were clothing, caps, boots, wearing—apparel, blankets, mattresses, pillows, bedding, carpet, rugs, linoleum, draperies, tents, tarpaulins, jute, bagging, sacks and burlaps costing $323,000,000. Under another heading was $259,000,000 worth of flour, meats, canned goods, fresh fruits and vegetables, tobacco, cigars, cigarettes, hay, feed, coal, coke and other fuel.

UNCOUNTED MILLIONS

There were also $92,000,000 worth of machinery and supplies, $14,000,000 worth of kitchen utensils and household furniture; $14,000,000 worth of building materials; $8,000,000 worth of lumber; $66,000,000 worth of hospital and toilet supplies and chemicals; $15,000,000 worth of office fixtures, stationery and supplies; nearly $5,000,000 worth of hides and leather; $14,000,000 worth of oils, gasoline and paints; $9,000,000 worth of electrical supplies.

Automobiles and motor trucks by the tens of thousands; great stocks of tires and tubes, automobile parts, accessories and tools, bicycles and motorcycles and supplies, wagons, carts and trailers, and harness and saddlery, as well as hundreds of thousands of horses and mules, were inventoried under the heading of transport equipment at more than $352,000,000.

In addition there were locomotives and cars, rail, frogs and switches and other track material, locomotive cranes, hoisting and conveying machinery, railroad and dock equipment and other floating equipment costing more than $186,000,000.

We had, too, a goodly share of surplus munitions. They included guns and accessories, gun carriages and caissons, rifles and pistols, ammunition, target supplies, gas masks, flame throwers, hand grenades and gas bombs. All this deadly machinery of war stood the American taxpayers at more than $76,000,000.

Of these France had no need whatever. She was not in the market for fine rifles or hand grenades immediately after the war.

FRANCE NEEDED THEM

Most of the surplus supplies, however, France needed sorely. The American problem was to dispose of the entire lot and the authorities in whose hands was placed the problem wisely decided to sell the whole accumulation in bulk. Thus France acquired the good and the bad together, the things she needed and the things for which she had no use whatever. And the United States government got the whole accumulation off its hands at one transaction.

How it was done, in itself an absorbing story, will be left to a subsequent installment. The general policy, however, was substantially as follows:

Having ascertained by inventory that the cost price of the surplus materials ran to more than $1,700,000,000, the United States Liquidation Commission, taking into consideration all the circumstances, attempted to fix a fair value on the whole. It scaled down each item. On clothing, for instance, it fixed the fair value at $10,000,000, or one-fourth less than cost. It knocked one-third off the cost of the railroad equipment, 60 per cent off the cost of automobiles and other transport equipment, 70 per cent off the cost of household furniture, and so on. The $76,000,000 store of munitions it cut more than 95 per cent, fixing $3,000,000 as a fair value.

All told, the commission placed a fair value of $969,000,000 on the supplies which had cost $1,739,000,000—a 44 per cent reduction. From that it deducted $220,000,000 as the fair value of supplies needed for our own forces or disposed of elsewhere. That left a fair value of $749,000,000 on the supplies for sale to France.

And then, as a further inducement, that figure was cut another 25 per cent or to $562,220,800. That was the sum—nearly 60 per cent below cost—which the commission named to France as the price.

How France bargained will be told later. Eventually she bought—at another reduction. The point here made is that these supplies, sold at give-away prices, are included in the present French debt which some persons believe should be canceled.

The Private Beach

The 212 feet of ocean frontage acquired by the Edgewater Club directly in front of the club building insures a private beach where members and their friends may bathe and enjoy the pleasures of the beach in absolute seclusion. So rapidly has the population increased and so popular are the close-in beaches that full enjoyment is today practically impossible because of the crowds. The Edgewater Club offers a logical solution to this—its private beach is now fenced in for members only. Located where Pico meets the ocean, at Santa Monica.

Recreation

To belong to the Edgewater Club immediately establishes you as one who appreciates the better things in life, and establishes the social status definitely. But not only is the social advantages of such a membership desirable—but the many recreations both outdoors and in, make such a membership beneficial from every standpoint. Truly the Edgewater Club will take its place among the great clubs of the country—a name to be known throughout the country as the ideal combination of all the desired attributes of club life.

Class "A" limit-height Club building now under construction and to be ready on or about June 15th

A limit height reinforced concrete building for the Edgewater Club will contain the following proposed outstanding features: An indoor swimming plunge 42x128, heated for winter; a complete gymnasium; separate floor and sleeping quarters for women; separate floor of sleeping quarters for men; one floor of sleeping quarters for married members; dining rooms, bathers' grill, assembly hall, private banquet rooms, card, billiard and mah jong rooms, private lockers, beauty parlor, barber shop—and complete appointments.

An all year athletic, social and beach club

Membership consists of both Men and Women

CIVIL WAR VETERAN PLANNING ON PARTY

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

SAN ANTONIO (Tex.) Feb. 17.—M. D. L. Sellers, Civil War veteran, will entertain San Antonio veterans with a party on his ninety-seventh birthday. Mr. Sellers is a native of Harrison county, Ind. He entered the Army as a member of an Indiana militia unit, served under Sherman and made the march to the sea. Later he was in the Army of the Potomac and was engaged at Fredericksburg, Petersburg, Gettysburg and the second battle of Bull Run. At Fredericksburg he was wounded seriously, and although he remained active past the lifetime of an ordinary man, this wound has kept him confined to his bed during the last three years.

Unusual Feature in Compensation Case in Arizona

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

PHOENIX, Feb. 17.—So many damage claims are being made upon the State at the present session of the Legislature, most of them based upon accident or death to employees of the Highway Department, that one member has suggested that employment by the State be listed hereafter under the head of "hazardous occupations."

Unusual features attend the claim for $6000 by the widow of Noel P. Hunt, killed by accident on the Fossill Creek county highway, Gila county. It was developed that Gila county had taken out accident insurance for its workers and that, following Hunt's death, the bonding company had refused to pay a $5000 policy on his life. This refusal is based on what several lawyers call good grounds, to the effect that the policy guaranteed the county against loss and that the county could not be sued on account of Hunt's accident.

Legislators, however, express the opinion that a bond is a bond, and that the insurance company should pay the claim. So the Hunt claim was sent back to the committee, with instructions to consult the Attorney-General and Corporation Commission, and find some way of compelling payment.

BETTER THAN CALOMEL

Thousands Have Discovered Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are a Harmless Substitute

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets—the substitute for calomel—are a mild but sure laxative, and their effect on the liver is almost instantaneous. These little olive-colored tablets are the result of Dr. Edwards' determination not to treat liver and bowel complaints with calomel.

The pleasant little tablets do the good that calomel does, but have no bad after effects. They don't injure the teeth like strong liquids or calomel. They take hold of the trouble and quickly correct it. Why cure the liver at the expense of the teeth? Calomel sometimes plays havoc with the gums. So do strong liquids. It is best not to take calomel. Let Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets take its place.

Headaches, "dullness" and that lazy feeling come from constipation and a disordered liver. Take Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets when you feel "logy" and "heavy." They "clear" clouded brain and "perk up" the spirits. 15c and 30c. —[Advertisement.

WHEAT POOL PAYING

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

ELDORADO (Okla.) Feb. 17.—Payments for wheat marketed under the pooling arrangement of the Texas Wheat Growers' Association have totaled $1.05 per bushel to date, according to members of the association in the Texas Panhandle. A payment of 20 cents a bushel was made recently. Members believe that payments will total $1.40 per bushel.

Knocked Out by Gas

While standing on a busy street corner, just after partaking of a hearty meal, a middle-aged man suddenly collapsed and fell upon the sidewalk. At the emergency hospital he was found to be suffering from an acute attack of stomach gas, which had pressed against the heart and seriously disturbed its action.

Pain around the heart, palpitation, shortness of breath, faintness and dizzy spells are often due entirely to a nervous, gassy stomach. To obtain complete relief in such cases, it is only necessary to get rid of the gas.

Eupa Gas Tablets, taken before and after meals, will soon put an end to the disagreeable effects of stomach gas. They usually give prompt relief from that tense, nervous feeling, burning in the stomach or other annoying symptoms. Guaranteed to be perfectly harmless. A generous package costs but $1.00. Sold in Los Angeles by the Owl and Sun Drug Stores and all leading druggists. Boericke & Runyon Co., Mfrs., San Francisco.—[Advertisement.

VERDICT FOR EYE

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

SAN ANTONIO (Tex.) Feb. 17.—Gilbert J. Contois was given $10,000 for his right eye in District Court when a jury awarded him that sum in damages from the Southern Pacific System. Contois, who was an employee of the railroad, lost the eye as a result of a piece of iron flying in it while working with a bridge gang more than a year ago.

FURNITURE FIRM HAS GOOD YEAR

Barker Bros., Inc., Reports Favorable Earnings

Investment Syndicates Bid on City Bonds

Credit Men to Hear Address by Goodcell

Barker Brothers, Inc., in 1924 earned 6.3 times the dividend requirements on 23,697 shares of 7 1-2 per cent first preferred stock outstanding, according to the annual financial statement of the company, prepared by Price, Waterhouse & Co., and released through Hunter, Dulin & Co. and Bond and Goodwin and Tucker, Inc. Net earnings were figured after allowing for depreciation and Federal income taxes.

Net sales for 1924 totaled $14,632,207.31, or at the rate of more than $1,200,000 a month.

The balance sheet as of December 31, indicates total current assets of $6,823,115; current liabilities of $1,889,390, a ratio of 3.6 to 1. Net current assets as of the same date total $4,933,725, or approximately $208 a share on the first preferred stock, while total net assets aggregate $7,436,759, or more than $313 a share on the same stock.

The statement also reveals that $130,300 of the first preferred 7 1-2 per cent stock outstanding was taken in during the year through retirement by operation of a sinking fund.

Anglo-London Leads

Five investment syndicates offered bids to the City Council yesterday for lines in the Laurel Canyon improvement district, which embraces 10,000 acres. Interest and sinking fund charges on the bonds will be paid by the municipal water department from revenues.

The bids were Anglo-London-Paris Company, par and a premium of $20,057; R. H. Moulton Company, premium of $18,438; First Securities Company, premium of $7530; Bank of Italy, premium of $5888; California Company, premium of $16,540. Under all of these bids the bonds were to bear interest at the rate of 5 1-4 per cent.

The Bank of Italy syndicate also offered a premium of $40,488 if the bonds bore 5 1-2 per cent interest. The bids were referred to the City Council's Finance Committee, which will report today.

Program Planned

The Los Angeles Credit Men's Association will meet tomorrow evening at the Alexandria. Following dinner the president and secretary will report. Wallace Beery, star of numerous film productions, will be introduced; George Eberle will give a short discussion on the business outlook, and Rex B. Goodcell, collector of internal revenue, will deliver the principal address of the evening.

Gold Strike Reported

Reports received yesterday by Los Angeles stock brokers told of the entrance by the Gold Dust Mining Company into its vein on the 300-foot level. The messages stated that the vein had been penetrated five feet and the other wall had not yet been found. The vein was first encountered on the 200-foot level.

COTTON FUTURES UP ON TRADE FORECASTS

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

NEW YORK, Feb. 17.—Cotton futures were slightly lower today. Liquidation yesterday having corrected the technical position. The list displayed a firmer tone from the outset, with optimistic trade forecasts and unfavorable weather reports encouraging both speculative and trade buying. Despite some scattered profit taking, which caused a moderate recession in midsession, final prices were bid a few points under the day's top and 27 to 36 points net higher. Spot cotton closed 25 points up, at 25.70.

BUSINESS MAKES PROGRESS

Steady Increase in Population Continues; Building Activity Gains; Florida Faces Problem

BY EARLE E. CROWE

As business in Los Angeles proceeds further in the new year it becomes increasingly evident that a satisfactory basis of stabilization has been reached. This point is not on a level with the business volume of the abnormal year of 1923, but manifestly is higher than the level of the previous years. Probably the most cheerful note in the situation is the virtual conclusion of the intense speculation that characterized particularly the business in 1923.

The migration to Los Angeles and the contiguous territory in the past few years naturally had to bring its evils as well as its benefits. In the influx of people and of money this region was given an abundance of the tools in which previously it had been deficient. But when so many people gather in a place as liberally endowed with resources as this territory, the resultant confusion is liable to work injury in several quarters. In this instance, the vehicles elected were oil development and the subdivision of land to provide housing facilities.

SPECULATION CURBED

Speculation in oil was a fortuitous occurrence, but the wholesale activity in real estate was a corollary typical of any great migratory movement. Both of these speculative activities were overdone, and in the rebound from the unwarranted levels to which values were carried, a kind of a penalty was exacted from the participants. It is significant, however, that the price would have been much dearer if far-sighted individuals and organizations had not utilized this land movement to exploit the basic resources of the city and the hinterland.

In the development of industries, of water commerce and of agriculture a cushion of unexpected strength was built, on which the reaction from the speculative frenzy was sharply halted. Banks pursued a cautious policy in anything pertaining to speculation and the cessation of the boom left the financial strength of the city unimpaired. There were no failures similar to the crashes which have echoed from other great land movements in history.

The recovery may not reach the level of 1923, but all the requisites, however, are present for the maintenance of a business volume supported on a sound foundation of economic strength. The greater proportion of the immigrants who participated in the westward trek are now listed as permanent residents. The city is richer by the amount of money brought with them and wisely invested. The expansion of factory development and the settlement of agricultural lands testifies to the application of this capital.

As long as people continue to come here to live and invest there is no danger of stagnant business. A conservative estimate made by a Los Angeles economic service is that the total population increase in 1924 was 93,000, and that the total of all classes of week-day population now is 1,352,000.

BUILDING ACTIVITIES

Even in spite of the tremendous building activity in the past two years the demands for housing facilities of the people now arriving here are stimulating renewed interest in real estate and building. The sale of residence lots is showing marked revival and the erection of small homes is particularly an active business. The financing of home building is once again an important outlet for investment funds.

After glancing back over the record of the last few years, it evidently is considerable of an achievement to have retained the best of the influences brought by the population movement, and mitigated the effects of the worst. Florida now is going through a similar transition of development.

WESTERN SECURITIES

Famous Players-Lasky Corporation

FAMOUS PLAYERS-LASKY CORPORATION, a pioneer in the motion-picture producing and exhibiting field, a corporation with more than $50,000,000 in assets, one of the most prolific film producers in history and controlling or having an interest in the world's largest chain of picture houses—numbering more than 350—was incorporated July 19, 1916, in New York.

It acquired the stock of the Famous Players Film Company, a Maine corporation, and the Jesse L. Lasky Feature Play Company, Inc., a New York Corporation. In October, 1916, it acquired the Oliver Morosco Photoplay Company and Bosworth, Inc., and in December, 1917, the Paramount Pictures Corporation, Artcraft Picture Corporation and the Cardinal Film Company. In 1919 it acquired Charles Frohman, Inc., and in January, 1920, organized the Famous Players Canadian Corporation.

Briefly, the corporation is engaged in producing, leasing and exhibiting motion-picture negatives and positives, and erecting, purchasing, leasing and operating amusement enterprises of all kinds. Studios and laboratories are located in Hollywood and Los Angeles, and in Borough of Queens, New York City.

Officers are: Adolph Zukor, president; Jesse L. Lasky, first vice-president and director of production; Frank A. Garbutt, vice-president; Elek John Ludvigh, secretary and treasurer; Richard W. Saunders, comptroller.

Directors are Adolph Zukor, Jesse L. Lasky, Elek John Ludvigh, Emil E. Shauer, H. B. Franklin, R. A. Kohn, Sir William Wiseman, Jules Brulatour, William H. English, Eugene J. Zukor, Felix E. Kahn, Frank Bailey, Daniel Frohman, Maurice Wertheim, Sidney R. Kent, Frank A. Garbutt, Cecil B. De Mille and Albert A. Kaufman.

General offices are at 485 Fifth avenue, New York City.

ROYALTIES LEVIED

The history of the Famous Players-Lasky Corporation goes beyond its incorporation and back into the period when the Motion Picture Patents Company was forcing every user of a film-projection machine to pay a royalty in the form of a license fee. The fee averaged slightly less than 1 cent a night for each person paying admission. This organization was at its height from 1910 to 1913.

In 1913 Adolph Zukor, then treasurer of Loew's, Inc., and owner of a small comedy theater on Fourteenth street, New York City, purchased "Queen Elizabeth," a film featuring Sarah Bernhardt, and with this picture started exhibiting it at various legitimate theaters to the derision of the theatrical world.

Albert A. Kaufman, a director of Famous Players-Lasky Corporation, operator of a small theater similar to Zukor's at that time, and now president of the New York and Pacific Coast Amusement Company, which controls Grauman's Metropolitan, Million Dollar and Rialto theaters in Los Angeles, took the picture to Cleveland and exhibited it in the old Colonial Theater. This was the start of this form of exhibition and paved the way for the future enormous development.

PRODUCTION STARTED

Now satisfied that the money to be made from motion pictures was in production, Zukor, Kaufman and several others definitely set their course and opened a studio on Twenty-sixth street, New York City, in the loft of an old armory building. They contracted with thirty exhibitors for an agreed number of pictures a year.

Zukor soon came to the realization that a picture a week was needed to supply the exhibitors, and to make the company more or less independent of them by creating enough films to attract other exhibitors. He cast about for a company which to him was making more than 350—was incorporated about the best pictures of the day, and he decided upon Jesse Lasky. Negotiations were opened and the two organizations merged in 1916.

As the production phase developed these men who had forsaken the exhibiting field discovered that to be freed of the menace of a theater strike to force prices lower, or any other similar combination antagonistic to the producer they must return to the exhibiting field. Within eight or nine years they achieved this aim and Famous Players-Lasky Corporation is now assured of proper presentation of its pictures through an enormous chain of show houses.

PREFERRED CALLABLE

The corporation has an authorized issue of 200,000 shares of 8 per cent cumulative preferred, par $100, and an authorized issue of 450,000 shares of common stock of no par value. At the close of 1923 225,931 shares of common and 86,300 preferred were outstanding. The preferred is entitled to consideration ahead of common both as to assets and 8 per cent cumulative dividends. It is callable at 120 and accrued dividends upon sixty days' notice on any dividend date. There is a sinking fund for the purchase or redemption of stock of a sum of 3 per cent of stock issued, less stock converted. No prior obligations may be issued without consent of two-thirds of the preferred stockholders. The preferred has equal voting power with the common, and is convertible at par into common at $120 a share. The initial dividend was paid on February 1, 1920. Regular dividends have been paid quarterly since then.

An initial dividend of $2.50 a share was paid on the common January 2, 1917, and the same rate was maintained on April 2, July 1 and October 2, 1917. In 1918 no disbursements were made; in 1919, $5.50; 1920 to 1923, inclusive, $8 per annum; January and April, 1924, $2 each. During 1924 Famous Players-Lasky Corporation had its best year, earning about $20 a share on all outstanding stock.

Common stock of the corporation was listed on the New York Stock Exchange on May 28, 1919, the first theatrical stock ever to be listed on this board. Preferred followed on January 28, 1920.

The common stock in 1919 was high at 123, and low at 49; 1920, high at 95 and low at 40; 1921, high at 82 and low at 44; 1922, high at 107¾ and low at 91½; 1923, high at 93 and low at 52.

The preferred in 1920 was high at 91¾ and low at 69; 1921, high at 97 and low at 74; 1922, high at 107 and low at 76½; 1923, high at 99¾, and low at 82.

Common yesterday on the New York Stock Exchange was bid at 91½ and preferred at 103⅞.

Long Beach Port Bonds Awarded to Anglo London

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE]

LONG BEACH, Feb. 17.—Anglo London Paris Co. was today awarded a $500,000 block of Long Beach municipal harbor bonds on a bid of a premium of $145, the bonds bearing 4 1-2 per cent. The Security Trust and Savings Bank's bid was similar with a premium of $51.

In all, sixteen bids were offered on the bonds which the Council recently ordered marketed. The only other bid accepted for consideration was that of R. H. Moulton & Co.

Common Stock	50,000 shares	30,000 shares
First Mortgage Bonds	$15,000,000	$5,000,000

From a letter to us from H. F. Alexander, Esq., President of the Company, he has summarized as follows:

DESCRIPTION OF STOCK

This preferred stock has preference as to assets and dividends. Dividends will be payable quarterly February 1, May 1, August 1, and November 1 in each year. This preferred stock consists of non-assessable shares of $100 par value callable at $110 and accumulated dividends, non-voting unless the Company shall fail to declare and pay four quarterly dividends, in which event the preferred stockholders have the right to elect a majority of the Company's Board of Directors, to be continued in office until such default is cured.

PARTICIPATION

If in any year the aggregate cash dividends distributed on the securities of the Company junior to this preferred stock exceed in amount the sum necessary to pay the regular $7 per share dividend on all this preferred stock outstanding January 1st of that year, the Company must distribute pro rata to such preferred shares an amount equal to such excess until the preferred shares shall have received in that year dividends which with the $7 per share cumulative dividend will aggregate $10 per share for such year.

RESTRICTIONS

1. No cash dividends shall be paid on any securities junior to this preferred stock unless all conditions of the Company's First Mortgage Deed of Trust have been fully complied with, all dividends on this preferred stock paid in full and the next two ensuing quarterly preferred stock dividends have been set aside. Also no dividends shall be paid on securities junior to the preferred stock if the aggregate book value of such securities is thereby reduced below the Company's net worth for its common stock as shown by the balance sheet as of September 30, 1924.

2. The Company shall incur no indebtedness other than current bank loans and present authorized first mortgage bonds, or create any securities senior or equal to this preferred stock without the consent in writing of two-thirds of the then outstanding preferred shares.

3. When this $2,250,000 of preferred stock shall have been issued no additional preferred shares may be issued unless net earnings equal or exceed twice the annual dividend requirements on the then outstanding preferred shares plus those proposed to be issued.

ASSETS

The Company's balance sheet as of September 30, 1924, prepared by Messrs. E. G. Shorrock & Co., Certified Public Accountants, after giving effect to the application of the proceeds of $2,250,000 of preferred stock, shows net assets of over $210 for each share of preferred stock.

EARNINGS

The Company's net earnings for the period of five years and nine months ending September 30, 1924, based on maximum interest and depreciation charges after recent financing, and Income Tax on basis of 1924 rate, have averaged $427,813.90, or over two and one-half times dividend requirements on this Preferred Stock.

SUPPLY OF GOLD STILL UNIMPAIRED

Credits, Stocks, Bonds and Commodities Attain High Marks

Moody's Weekly Review of Financial Conditions, in its current issue, says in part:

"Day by day, gold is flowing out, but instead of the predicted sharp contraction of credits, and liquidation in bonds, stocks and commodities, we are witnessing new high records. The outflow of gold cannot eliminate our plentitude of capital.

"Unfilled steel orders in January were about 140,000 tons in excess of the estimated normal for the month; and, in view of the high rate of production, January was really the peak month of steel prosperity thus far.

"The so-called profit-taking in high-grade, long-term bonds appears more fictitious than genuine, because of the great difficulty of reinvesting the funds. It seems well nigh impossible to find any satisfactory reinvestment which will actually nail down the profits supposedly taken.

"Sugar-refining companies are in a much better situation than sugar producers. The margin between raw and refined has rhymes and rules of its own, and all of these now point to the indefinite continuance of a fairly wide margin, regardless of the weakness of sugar prices.

"New York transit bonds look rather good for the present if only one takes profits in due course. Hopes are warranted, but investors can afford to discount slowly."

TRADING IN WOOL IS AT STANDSTILL

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

BOSTON, Feb. 17.—Wool trading is practically at a standstill. At the same time there is less inclination to make concessions. Fulled wools continued to show some activity. Some real choice "B" supers have moved at 1.25@1.37. A sizable quantity of Montevideo 50s have also moved at recent price levels. British Colonial markets are still showing a slightly easy tendency.

Armour Stock Sale Expected for Tomorrow

Final details of the public offering of Armour & Co., Class "A" and Class "B" stock have been completed and it is reported that the subscription books will be opened tomorrow at the offices of Blair & Co., Inc., managers of a nation-wide group which has been organized to handle the offering.

Reports from the East yesterday stated that unsolicited subscriptions running into large amounts have already been received from various parts of the country in advance.

Voting trust certificates of the stock have already been listed on the Chicago Stock Exchange, and it is expected that listing on the New York exchange will take place within a short time.

This offering does not represent new financing by the company, but is a part of the issue already outstanding.

BOND QUOTATIONS

Prices Stronger

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

NEW YORK, Feb. 17.—Bonds offered good resistance to selling pressure today, and prices made irregular recovery from yesterday's drastic decline. The trend of trading followed closely the action of the stock market, the effects of early unsettlement being overcome by brisk rallies in several issues at the close.

Moderate improvement in French obligations was attributed to the favorable impression created by Premier Herriot's firm stand against an inflationary policy. The quick recovery of the franc also was influential in bringing about support for French bonds.

High grade investment rail bonds withstood the recent reactionary tendencies in the market much better than the speculative mortgages. The latter continued to drift irregularly lower today, but New York Central and Southern Railway 6s scored substantial gains. Chicago Union Station 5s moved up 3 points.

Conflicting movements marked trading in oil company liens. Pan-American 6s, which broke sharply yesterday, snapped back 2 points, but Sinclair and California Petroleum issues were heavy, despite a rally in oil shares. Copper bonds lost further ground, Magma 7s yielding 2½ points and Anaconda 7s about a point.

Prospective new financing was said to include a $15,000,000 loan for a Japanese public utility, for which negotiations recently have been opened. The offering, however, may not be made until next month.

[Following are yesterday's high, low and closing prices of bonds on the New York Stock Exchange, and the total sales of each bond. These quotations are received over Associated Press wires, and to expedite transmission the closing is omitted when it is the same as the low, and both low and close are omitted when they are the same as the high.]

RALLIES CHECK PRICE LOSSES

Court Ruling Hits American Smelting Stock

Baldwin Comes Back; Leads General Recovery

Atchison Features Rail List With New High

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

NEW YORK, Feb. 17.—Stock prices went through another period of sharp reaction early today during which a number of popular issues sold down 1 to 7 points, but strong buying support made its appearance in the late afternoon, and the general list closed irregularly higher. Total sales again exceeded 2,000,000 shares.

One of the features of the session was a sharp break in American Smelting and Refining, which dropped from par to below 93, on selling inspired by an unfavorable Federal court decision in California involving the use of its smelter process. The stock rallied above 96 later on the announcement of company officials that an appeal would be taken and that the damages involved about $250,000 and not several million as reported in news dispatches from the West.

Weakness also was shown by the Commercial Solvents issues, Laclede Gas, Commercial Investment Trust, Federal Light and Traction, International Harvester, Sears Roebuck, Stromberg Carburetor, Virginia Railway and Power, and West Penn Power, the declines in which ran from 2 to 7 points.

Baldwin was carried down to a new low for the year at 126 1-4 on selling influenced by the publication of the annual report for 1924 showing net profit of $1,220,026, or less than the preferred dividend requirements as compared with $6,516,485 the year before. Fresh buying developed in that issue later, however, when attention was drawn to the possibilities of the new Diesel engine locomotive, the stock rallying to above 131 and then easing to 130 5-8 for a net gain of 3 5-8 on the day. This started a rally in the general list, which was still under way when the market closed.

U. S. Steel common closed fractionally higher at 123 1-4 after having sold as low as 122 1-8. American Can fluctuated between 172 and 166 1-8, closing at 170 1-4 for a net gain of 2 1-4. Studebaker closed fractionally higher at 43 1-4.

Atchison was the outstanding feature of the railroad group, soaring 6 points to 124, the highest price since 1910. New York Central moved up nearly 2 points to 121¼, while Southern Railway, New Haven, Texas and Pacific, Wabash preferred "A," Atlantic Coast Line, Erie first preferred, the Missouri Pacific issues and Western Pacific moved up a point or so. Lackawanna was heavy, dropping 1 3-4 to 136.

Sharp recovery also took place in some of the high-priced specialties. United States Cast Iron Pipe soared to 221 and then it slipped back to 218 3-4, up 8 3-4, while net gains of 3 to 7½ points were recorded by Nash Motors, New York Shipbuilding, Postum Cereal, Tobacco Products and United Cigars.

The rally in the oils was stimulated by another increase in Mid-Continent crude prices. General Petroleum, the Pan-American issues, and Independent Oil and Gas each closed about 2 points higher, while a number of others improved a point or more.

Substantial gains also were recorded by such popular industrials as American Locomotive, American Sugar Refining, American Woolen, Maxwell Motors "A" and "B," Allis Chalmers, Associated Dry goods, Continental Can, Crucible Steel, International Paper, and Universal Pipe and Radiator preferred, the net gain in each case being 2 points or more.

Call money renewed at 4 per cent and then dropped to 3½. Time money and commercial paper rates held firm with business in moderate volume. A further recovery in French francs, which carried the demand rate to around 5.28 cents, was the feature of the irregular foreign exchange market. Buying of the French currency was prompted by the reassuring statements of Premier Herriot. Demand sterling was heavy, again falling below $4.77. Most of the European rates showed only minor changes.

Stock Market Averages:

Date	Twenty Industrials	Twenty Rails
Tuesday	117.25	101.89
Monday	117.93	101.89
Week ago	120.03	103.48
High, 1924	122.97	101.54
Low, 1924	117.93	101.00

WELL-KNOWN WOMAN FLUTIST SUMMONED

Miss Marguerite De Forest Anderson, 35 years of age, well known in musical circles, died at the home of Miss Maud Rockwell, 826 South Coronado street, yesterday. Miss Anderson, who had often been referred to as the world's greatest woman flutist, achieved considerable success in her chosen profession and had appeared before the late King Edward of England. Funeral arrangements, which have not been completed, will be announced later.

MARKET REVIEW

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

NEW YORK, Feb. 17.—Pretty much all the active markets showed today that they have reached a state in which they are groping more or less blindly for the correction of overdone speculation. The selling under which Monday's stock exchange market staggered was of exactly the same character, and provoked by the same causes, as the even more spectacular break in wheat a week before. In each case the purely speculative community had reached its highest pitch of excitement long after sober and experienced judges of values had withdrawn from participation.

The pyramiding of values which then occurred, at New York as at Chicago, had no solid basis; it was discounting a wholly imaginary future. Even if the bears had a hand in each reaction, that would only mean that professional bears had seen further into the realities of the situation than professional bulls. It does not follow at such times, as Wall Street often concludes, that the hopes on which the preceding rise was based have turned out groundless.

There was precisely such a downward reaction in the first two months of 1901, that year of stock exchange tradition, with declines of 15 to 20 points; but that did not interfere with the real beginning of trade expansion in the spring time, with notable results. Whatever the trade results are to be on the present occasion premature discounting of an as yet invisible future has only had the violent familiar in all Wall Street experiences.

Today's movement of stock exchange prices was exceedingly confused. Declines running from 3 to 6 points were as numerous as advances of the same scope; declines of extreme violence would be followed by equally violent recoveries. As a rule most of the early downward reaction was cancelled before the close, but the real trend of the market was left sufficiently doubtful. The wheat market was as uncertain as the stock exchange, falling 5 cents a bushel and then recovering all the loss. To anyone who watched either market it was evident that the facts of the financial or agricultural position had nothing whatever to do with the swing of prices, which was governed altogether by the effort to close out speculative commitments both by sellers and buyers.

Both at London and New York the franc scored further recovery today; leaving it a matter of some uncertainty how much of the rise from Saturday's low figure was due to Herriot's speech in the chamber and how much to judicious use of the $100,000,000 protective fund on the foreign exchange markets. Probably the markets will watch, as they did when the franc was falling from 5 cents to 3 5-8 last February, not only for the protective maneuvers in the market, but for the French government's tangible actions and policies.

Of the three difficulties which now surround the situation; the two last mentioned were even more urgent when Poincare faced the dilemma. But the bank circulation was not then increased and the recent pace and margin between it and the legal maximum was nearly 2,000,000,000 francs greater.

CHICAGO STEEL MILLS OPERATE AT HIGH RATE

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

CLEVELAND (O.) Feb. 17.—Daily Metal Trade today reported:

"Chicago steel mills are keeping up operating rates which are considered unusual for this time of year and are likely to continue to do so because of heavy bookings. Market on semi-finished steel in the Central West is just as inactive as is pig iron. Youngstown district sheet mills operate unchanged at 73 per cent as last week. Copper is lower at New York at 14¾ cents to 14⅝ cents; zinc drops to 7.55 cents; lead quiet at 7½ cents, St. Louis; tin down to 31½ cents."

FLAXSEED DECLINES ON HEAVY OFFERINGS

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

DULUTH (Minn.) Feb. 17.—No flaxseed was received at this market from country points today and the fairly heavy offerings were from holders of seed at elevators and speculative operators who sought to ignore the recommendations. The market was without support early and prices faded rapidly. At the low spots crushers came into the market and caused a slight rally but final quotations showed losses of 3 to 5¼ cents with the spot month suffering the maximum loss. Close: February, 2.97; March and July, 2.98½; May, 3.00; track, 2.97@3.00; arrive, 2.97.

Minneapolis flaxseed demand was good for No. 1 seed on cash, quoted at 3.02@3.04; to arrive, at 2.92@3.04; receipts, 21 cars.

Investing Scientifically in First Mortgages

AFTER all details in negotiating a first mortgage real estate investment have been attended to, and the mortgage is in force, there remains the collection of interest as it falls due.

This detail can be most satisfactorily handled by the mortgage concern which negotiated the loan.

We collect the interest from mortgagors for all our investors. Remittances are made with our own checks, always on time.

No detail disturbs the convenience of investors in our Individual Real Estate First Mortgages.

At the present time we have a few Individual First Mortgages secured by exceptionally high class Los Angeles properties and yielding as high as 8%.

If you are interested in a SAFE investment yielding 8% and free from all investment care, we suggest immediate action, as safe investments yielding as high a return as this are quickly absorbed by wise investors. A call at our office places you under no obligation.

"Lightning"

Have you used it? Or have our SERVICE STATIONS been too crowded for you to drive into.

Since "LIGHTNING GAS" went on the market two weeks ago, our retail sales have jumped from 20,000 gallons a day to nearly 60,000 gallons a day, and once the masses of the people give this "LIGHTNING" just one trial, our daily retail sales should run over 200,000 gallons every day, and what I mean to tell you is, you don't have to measure your gas to know how much further you go on a gallon of "LIGHTNING" than you can on any other brand on the market.

You can shut your eyes and notice how much smoother your motor runs.

After using this product for ten days, I defy anyone to make their motor knock, no matter how hard the pull.

Until February 19th "LIGHTNING" sells at 18½ cents a gallon, and after that date, 21½ cents a gallon, and I'd just like to have the money that "LIGHTNING" will save every motorist that uses it during the year 1925.

Every day you hang back on giving it a trial you are losing money for you, saying nothing about what you're losing for us.

OIL NEWS

BY HOWARD C. KEGLEY

The Petroleum Securities Company expects to have its Cone No. 1 in the Baldwin Hills field on production today, according to field reports. The crew was running tubing yesterday, after setting the oil string.

The Doheny interests are expecting to begin drilling five more wells as soon as derricks can be built and work started, according to field reports. On the Cone lease the Petroleum Securities Company is building a rig for its Cone No. 3, and is grading for Cone 2, No. 4 and No. 6. These are line wells. No. 3 offsetting the Petroleum Midway Company and Associated Oil Company, No. 2 offsetting the Association, No. 4 the Petroleum Midway, and No. 6 the Dabney property.

The Pan-American Petroleum Company is rigging up to start its Sentous No. 7, also a line well.

The Mohawk Oil and Gas Syndicate's discovery well in the northwest section of the Baldwin Hills field has developed sufficient pressure to flow steadily without pumping, and is making about 300 barrels a day, it was reported yesterday by Mohawk officials. The well was brought in by swabbing several weeks ago, and due to sanding up and other troubles, was considerably delayed in going on regular production, and produced for some time by means of agitation on the pump.

The Mohawk expects to spud its second well on this lease today, northeast of its producing well, as an offset to the Petroleum Midway Company's Smith No. 1, and the Standard Oil Company's Vickers 2-1.

The Petroleum Midway is down about 1800 feet in its Smith well, and expects to spud its Moyniers No. 1 in the same area within a few days.

Oscar Howard, drilling on the Peacock lease, south of the Mohawk, is down 2200 feet, and has been coring oil sand almost continuously since about 1800 feet, according to field reports. This well is located about 500 feet southwest of the Mohawk, and correlation of formations in the two wells show it to be about sixty feet lower down on the structure than the Mohawk well.

The Associated Oil Company is showing signs of activity on its Vickers lease. Locations have been made for two wells, one offsetting the Mohawk property, and one offsetting the Standard Oil Company's Vickers lease, but no actual construction work in the way of building derricks has been started.

To Spud Newlin

The Union Oil Company is rigging up and installing machinery in its Newlin wildcat well in the Ocean Park Heights field, and expects to spud in the hole today or tomorrow.

Near Completion

The United Oil Company expects to complete its Henderson No. 3 in the southwestern section of the Dominguez field within a few days. An effective water shutoff was made at 4291 feet, and the crew is now drilling into the sand. The well will be completed at 4267 feet.

To Deepen Star

The Star Petroleum Company has killed its Shoemaker well in the central part of the Rosecrans field, and will drill deeper, according to field reports. Several attempts have been made to complete this well in the upper sands, but water trouble has interfered in each instance. The company plans to put the well down to the deeper sands, which have proven more productive in other wells in this field.

Stands Cemented

E. J. Miley's Athens No. 3 in the northern part of the Rosecrans field is standing with eight-inch casing cemented at 5119 feet, according to official reports.

This well was drilled to a total depth of 5150 feet, and penetrated thirty feet of good oil sand. It is 500 feet west of Miley's No. 1 well, which originally went on production at about 4950 feet in the Potter sand. Geologists are uncertain whether the sand in Athens No. 3 is the Potter sand, or the sand which Miley's No. 1 well discovered below the Potter zone.

A record for fast drilling was made on the Athens No. 3, the hole being drilled to 5150 feet, and a string of eight inch casing landed and cemented in the elapsed time of two months and fourteen days.

Heads Marketers

W. L. Standard of the Union Oil Company was re-elected president of the Independent Petroleum Marketers' Association of California at a recent meeting. Other officers are J. A. Brower, Vernon Oil Refining Company, vice-president, H. H. Maxon, South Coast Oil Company, secretary-treasurer, and C. S. Beesemyer, Gilmore Oil Company, D. J. Peters, Rio Grande Oil Company, E. R. Sheldon, Sierra Refining Company, George Zeeman, Harbor Refining Company and John Vordermark, Torrance Gasoline Company, directors.

To Hold Banquet

Oil men and mining men from all sections of the southwest will gather on Thursday evening, March 5, for the annual banquet of the Chamber of Mines and Oil, which will be held at the Biltmore, Los Angeles. Last year's attendance was above 600, and the management expects even more will be present this year.

D. M. Folsom of San Francisco, assistant to the president, General Petroleum Corporation, will act as toastmaster. J. Edgar Pew, president of the American Petroleum Institute and vice-president of the Sun Oil Company, will deliver the principal address on "The Oil Industry and its Relation to the Public."

Other speakers and the subjects they will treat are as follows: A. C. McLaughlin, retiring president of the Chamber of Mines and Oil and vice-president and general manager of the Associated Oil Company, "1924—A Retrospect;" A. B. Macbeth, president-elect of the organization and vice-president and general manager of the Southern California Gas Company, "The Future;" Robert E. Tally, general manager of the United Verde Copper Company, "Mining in the Southwest;" and W. W. Orcutt, vice-president of the Union Oil Company of California, "Our Petroleum Pioneers."

W. R. Guiberson, vice-president of the Guiberson Corporation and a great favorite at gatherings of oil men, will amuse with stories and songs. Instrumental music will be furnished by Art Hickman's Biltmore String Sextet. Gage Christopher, well-known Los Angeles vocal director, will conduct in ensemble singing. An act from one of the local vaudeville houses will complete the bill.

SHIPPING and Los Angeles Harbor NEWS

LOCAL HAWAIIAN TRADE GROWING

City of Los Angeles is Given Cargo Contract

Liner to Bring 9000 Barrels on Each Voyage

Pacific Mail is Building Two New Motorships

Stimulus to the rapidly growing trade between the Hawaiian Islands and Los Angeles was given yesterday by the announcement that the Los Angeles Steamship Company has contracted to bring 9000 barrels of island molasses here each future trip on the liner City of Los Angeles. The first such cargo will arrive on that liner on the 20th inst., to be delivered to the California Hawaii Sugar Company. The molasses will be forwarded to buyers and made into stock food.

The shipments are deemed a happy utilization of the liner's deep tanks, which heretofore have been used one way, in taking oil to the islands from here. The vessel is bringing a heavy cargo of other island products and has aboard 310 passengers.

TWO NEW LINERS ON WAYS FOR GRACE & CO.

Construction is underway in Sweden for two more motorship liners for W. R. Grace & Co., and prospects are that another may be put on the Pacific Mail's intercoastal run, or on the New York-South American run, this relieving steamers on that run for service to the intercoastal service. These are in addition to the two new steamers now in service between California and Panama, and those now on the Grace Diesel vessels will gradually replace all its steamers with motorships.

The vessels on the New York-South American route, are believed to be destined for service between Mollendo and the Santa Ana, Santa Rosa, Santa Leonor and Santa Teresa, one of the three sister ships for mariners. The Rosanda, sister ship to the Santa Rosa, discharged a station yesterday.

The taking over of his two steamers, the Annette Boldt and the Georgina Boldt, was announced yesterday by Lorenzo Boldt, Jr., Mayor Ralph, who has been operating the vessels, which in the coastwise trade between Portland and San Francisco and Los Angeles by the Columbia Steamship Company, of which he is one of the first purchase of nine Shipping Board freighters, and has been linked in rumors to a combine said to be contemplating purchase of thirty-nine vessels. He also recently was appointed general agent for the Mexican Free Ports Steamship Line.

Attesting the unusually heavy lumber trade between the Northwest and the Atlantic Coast, the freighter Fresno Luckenbach arrived here with 4,000,000 feet of lumber, practically 500 tons of ore, also for New York delivery, and 500 tons of deck supplies, Capt. W. H. Robertson, deck superintendent, for the Lucken-bach Line, operating for the Lewis Luckenbach will load 8,000,000 feet more lumber for the Atlantic, the largest lumber cargo ever carried by any ship.

The Pacific Mail freighter Santa Malta, losing four days by storm in the Atlantic, made up three days, arriving yesterday with a sustained speed of 10.5 knots all the way. She will be docked in San Francisco with a large trans-shipment for a transpacific sailing Saturday.

Aboard her, arriving here yesterday, were James H. Preston, former Mayor of San Francisco, Hart Hank Benson, Alfred Hart, president of the Bohemian Club, and Mrs. Hart, also of Baltimore, both old friends of Capt. H. Ford, master. As the vessel is listed as a freighter and not authorized to carry passengers, they had to sign on as members of the crew. The Prestons were here, proceeding to Catalina Island and plan to motor up-coast before taking the train home.

A change in routing of Mitsui & Co.'s Japan-coast officials, the Los Angeles Steamship Company has cut two or three days off their transpacific run. The vessel bring much freight to Los Angeles for transhipment to the Far East and to Europe. At present the vessel is discharging here, then proceeding to San Francisco, where local cargo, and trans-shipment cargo are discharged. The vessels then proceed to Seattle, where perhaps 1000 tons of cargo, then to Vancouver, B. C., for bunkers, calls fast oil, because it is cheapest here, and return to Seattle, Puget Sound ports and then direct to Japan. The Pacific ports load here direct for Yokohama, discharge local cargo, and trans-shipment cargo, and then go north, to Los Angeles, Capt. E. C. Sanders, port traffic manager, was in consultation yesterday with H. Hasaki of Mitsui, and Capt. Ryoichi, master of the line, on the subject of a change. Vessels of the line call here twice monthly.

The steamer Georgian, returned to the American-Hawaiian service to meet heavier island trade, will load here for the east coast tomorrow with 1600 tons for local discharge, and on the west coast the Kentucky will dock with an equal amount, also from the Atlantic.

Two more new tankers are en route here to enter the stimulated oil trade. The Gulf Refining Company will place the Gulf Wayfarer, which will follow, according to Capt. Ed Hickman, of the W. R. Grace & Co. Hickenbaum of the British tanker office, both of the Standard Oil Company, also is a member of the standard Transportation Company, operating the Standard Oil Company's tankers.

Christine of the Hungry Heart

by Kathleen Norris

"Alan said that to me the other day," Dan said, offering her his big, clean handkerchief. "He said, 'Dan—from her ninth year she had no mother!' And speaking of mothers," he added, putting his hand in his pocket. "Something interrupted me, as we were talking about Mrs. Knight!"

"As if we hadn't interrupted each other a thousand times!" Christie said, with a shaken smile.

"When I told her about Stuart," Dan resumed, "she sat perfectly still for a long time, then she said: 'You're going out there, Daniel?'"

"Daniel! Always her name for you!" Chris interrupted, "and you said—"

"I said, 'Oh, yes.' And she went to her secretary, Chris—"

"You were in the upstairs sitting-room?"

"Yes. It's just the same. And she brought me a little box, Chris, and said, 'Take that to Christine. And tell her it comes with her mother's love. Tell her that I will repay her some day, for what she has done for my son!'"

Chris blinked and tried to smile, and she took the box. But her lips trembled, and she flung her head back for freer breath, and stood up. She walked away, paused, and came back, displaying upon her hard, stained little palm an old-fashioned sapphire ring set with small diamonds.

"That's her engagement ring, Dan, she can't wear it because of her rheumatism. But she values it more than anything in the world!"

"Then it shows you what she is feeling, Chris."

Chris was silent a long time. Then she said:

"Thank God she will never see him as he is now!"

"She wanted to come, of course, but the colonel hasn't gotten out of his wheel chair for months now, and she would not leave him. She told me to bring you and Stuart home!"

Chris smiled sadly shaking her head.

"He's going on a longer journey, Dan! But you can take her a report and tell her that he does not suffer. And you came all this way to comfort her, and me! I wonder who'll ever make it up to you—this, and so many things!"

"You have, a hundredfold," he said. "And I didn't make the trip alone."

Her look, instantly terrified, met his.

"Not Betty Lou? You wouldn't—"

"Not. But somebody who wanted to come. Somebody who would not let me leave him behind!"

Chris's face, flooded in this wonderful hour with unwonted color, turned white again.

"Dan—is Alan in San Francisco?" she asked, suffocating.

"No," he said.

"Oh, how you frightened me!" she said, relieved. "Was it—but you're not married, Dan? Hark!" she said suddenly, listening, "he's awake!"

She went inside the cabin and Dan went with her and saw her minister to the terrible thing on the bed as a mother might have done.

"Dan, I can't give you much, but you must lunch with me," she said presently when the invalid had fallen into a half-sleep again. She drew a tattered shade against the streaming noonday light and rinsed the cup and spoon at the sink.

She dropped four unpeeled potatoes into a black pot of boiling water and sat down at the end of the dark little table opposite Dan.

"You'll be gone presently you know, and I shall be frantic to think of the things I should have asked you and didn't! We were talking about Jeffy. You say that he's a—a silent little fellow? It doesn't sound like him!"

"Very quiet. I took him to the Hippodrome, he was perfectly self-contained. He reads a lot—too much, Alan thinks. They've put him in reading glasses."

"Jeffy! But he was such a gay baby. He needs—" she looked anxious and distressed. "He needs picnics and swimming and running about!" she mused in a worried tone.

"Alan's sold the Friends Crossing place, you know, and last summer he bought a rambling old farm way up beyond—well, it's just on the State line of Connecticut. It's a lovely place, stream and old barns, the house needs fixing—but it has a Jones doorway, that seems to be important. Betty Lou and I were up there for August."

"And is that to be the summer home, Dan?"

"Well—" Dan hesitated, and raised his arms so that she might spread a thin, clean little tablecloth over the darkened wood. "I think perhaps that he hopes some day you'll be there, Chris, with an orchard and a garden, and the children coming up now and then!" he suggested uncertainly.

"Dan, it makes my heart turn to water even to think of seeing him again," she said. "And the children are better without me. My one chance of pulling out is work. I've died, and come back to life! Don't worry about me—and don't let him."

"He's deeply interested now in the co-operative nursery scheme," Dan remarked presently, after an interval of silence. "Did I tell you of that?"

"Up in the country?"

"Oh, no—no. Down in the dirtiest and most congested district of the city."

"A settlement house? Like a charity?"

"No, for it's self-supporting—or supposed to be. He's taken an old house—he has to move, by the way, it's to be torn down. It began by his finding a few mothers of small families who wanted, or were forced, to go into some kind of work. This house has a nursery, refectory, and so on, and about half the mothers come every day. They pay something, too—a dollar a week, I believe, per child. Of course, it's all in the experimental stage—"

"No, but go on! And do they have a cook?"

"No, they do the cooking. Of course they're ignorant, some of them, and they fight, and some don't pay—and the nurse he had there didn't get along very well. But it's interesting."

"Oh, interesting!" Christine breathed.

"Then Alan went to a couple of the big shops and talked to them about having certain women as saleswomen only on alternate days—do you see? None of it has worked out yet—"

"But Dan, you tell him that he's got to have rules—just as the army has!" Chris said, authoritatively. "You know Alan used to talk about that scheme years ago. It came from his intense interest in the care of small babies, I think." She stopped, and for a moment her eyes were far away. "I wonder why I never was interested!" she said shaking her head. "But I've been thinking a lot about it lately," she went on. "I have a wonderful neighbor here, a Mrs. Duncan, with six children, and it has come to me so—so forcibly that she is doing the one vital, important thing in the world, and that neither civilization nor the nation, nor society, gives her the least encouragement, or help! If there was some place where she could go, taking the babies, to talk about bottles and rompers—nuns have come the nearest to that sort of community living." Christie diverged, her eyes bright with enthusiasm, "and of course they are not what you might call the producers. They're middlemen, at best."

TO ERADICATE PESTS

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

PHOENIX, Feb. 17.—The Phoenix Chamber of Commerce and a number of Salt River Valley agricultural societies have joined in appeal to the Legislature for an appropriation of $110,000 to be used in better quarantine methods against introduction of insect pests. At Tempe the Woman's Club has started a campaign toward extermination of the San Jose scale, which is said to have obtained a foothold on trees and shrubs. It is proposed to spray all vegetation on which the pest may be found.

NOTICIAS MUNDIALES DE ULTIMA HORA

En obsequio a nuestros numerosos amigos de habla española, y para beneficio de los lectores americanos de "The Times" que estudien esa lengua, publicamos diariamente esta columna en castellano, con un extracto de las más importantes noticias de última hora.

Buena parte del futuro progreso de Los Angeles, que es la metrópoli de los Estados Unidos que más cercana se halla a territorio latino-americano, habrá de depender de las relaciones que logremos establecer con nuestras hermanas, las repúblicas del sur. Para que lleguen a ser enteramente cordiales, no hay nada tan importante como que nuestros ciudadanos se familiaricen con la lengua castellana. Tan se dan cuenta de este hecho nuestros habitantes, que hay al presente más de 25,000 personas que estudian español en Los Angeles. A ellas les conviene leer todos los días esta columna, en la que encontrarán español correcto y enteramente moderno.

Seis Peligrosos Bandidos Ejecutados en Méjico

CIUDAD DE MEJICO, Febrero 17.—Con la ejecución sumaria de ayer, en la que fueron fusilados los últimos seis bandidos de una cuadrilla famosa, el Estado de Morelos ha quedado libre de la amenaza de estos bandoleros, que lo han mantenido varios años en continuo sobresalto, y fueron responsables de casi todas las enojosas cuestiones entre el gobierno de Méjico y el de los Estados Unidos.

Los bandidos fueron ejecutados por las tropas en el sitio donde cometieron muchos de sus crímenes. Se habían enviado fuerzas al Estado con órdenes de limpiarlo a toda costa de salteadores.

El fusilamiento de los forajidos ha descorrido el velo de muchos de los crímenes que cometieron, y que el gobierno había mantenido en reserva en interés de las buenas relaciones internacionales.

Bien conocido fue el plagio de A. Bruce Bielaski, del Departamento de Justicia de los Estados Unidos; pero se guardó reserva sobre muchos otros crímenes de la misma banda, y hasta ahora, y por primera vez, los han publicado los periódicos de aquí. Habían éstos de un ataque de los bandidos a Manuel C. Tellez, su esposa y un grupo de amigos de ambos, poco antes de la partida del embajador mejicano rumbo a Washington. El señor Tellez y sus acompañantes fueron alcanzados por los bandidos entre Cuernavaca, capital del Estado de Morelos, y las imponentes grutas de Cacahuamilpa, lugar que atrae a millares de turistas.

Los excursionistas fueron despojados de sus autos y, de cuanto traían, y abandonados en el mismo sitio donde fue plagiado Bielaski. Desde allí, y como Dios les dió a entender, se dirigieron las víctimas a la capital del Estado. También han revelado los periódicos los ataques de que fueron víctimas, Horacio Casasús, conocido millonario de esta sociedad, el Conde de Polignac, de París, y el Conde de Gabriac.

El Mar Arroja un Cadáver de Mujer a la Playa de Venecia

Hoy fue arrojado por el mar, al pie de la Avenida 26 en Venecia, el cuerpo de una mujer de edad madura, que no llevaba más ropa que la interior, los zapatos y las medias. Trátase tal vez de algún crimen misterioso que tendrá que esclarecer la policía.

Fue hallado el cadáver por Edward Rueter, corredor de inmuebles. Estaba sumergido en parte y presentaba huellas de violencia. Alrededor de la cabeza observaron los agentes de policía que había erosiones y cortaduras que pueden ser resultado de repetidos golpes con un palo. Las muñecas estaban descoloridas, lo que acentúa las presunciones de que la lucha haya precedido a la muerte; y se encontró también un pequeño agujero en la cabeza, arriba de la sien izquierda.

Con todo, el Detective Peterson y el "Constable" Patton, encargados del sumario, dijeron que las marcas de violencia pueden haber sido causadas al dar el cuerpo, impulsado por las olas, contra los pilotes de un muelle abandonado y en ruinas, que se halla no lejos del sitio donde fue arrojado el cadáver. Va a procederse desde luego a la autopsia del cuerpo, según se nos dijo, a efecto de determinar si hay agua en los pulmones. Con esto se decidirá si la mujer puso fin a sus días saltando al mar, o si fue asesinada y el cadáver arrojado al agua por sus matadores.

El cadáver es el de una mujer como de 50 años de edad. Cuando se le encontró, ya llevaba de dos a tres días en el agua, al decir de la policía. El cabello de la mujer es color de alhelía, con franjas canosas. La estatura es de 5 pies y la complexión era débil.

La policía está compulsando las listas de personas desaparecidas, para ver si las señas de alguna de ellas coinciden con las de la muerta. El cadáver fue llevado a la sala mortuoria de Sharp y Nolan, y fue notificado el forense.

DEPORTES

Autódromo

El Capitán Lowell H. Smith, comandante del histórico vuelo de circunnavegación realizado por los heroicos aviadores militares americanos, que desafió a la muerte mil veces al día, en un viaje que lo llevó desde las nieves del Artico hasta las ardientes maniguas de la India, tuvo ayer, según su propia expresión, las más intensa emoción de su vida.

El famoso aviador hizo ayer esta declaración en los momentos que se apeaba de un automóvil de carrera, en el autódromo de Culver City. Acababa de terminar un recorrido de cincuenta millas sentado ante el volante de su coche.

La famosa carrera del ilustre hombre del aire, y una notable marca realizada por Harry Hartz para calificarse, fueron ayer el ciou para los espectadores presentes en el autódromo.

Hartz corrió a razón de 125.5 millas por hora, habiendo igualado el record oficial de la pista.

El Capitán Smith, haciendo gala de sus nervios de acero, piloteó un Duesenberg especial, a velocidad de más de 100 millas por hora durante más de cuarenta vueltas. Su vuelta más rapida arrojó 105.6 millas por hora, lo que no es mooo de pavo en punto de velocidad, si se tiene en cuenta que es la primera vez que el aviador corre sobre una pista de madera, al volante de un coche de carrera.

Don't Fuss With Mustard Plasters!

Musterole Works Without the Blister—Easier, Quicker

There's no sense in mixing a mess of mustard, flour and water when you can easily relieve pain, soreness or stiffness with a little clean, white Musterole.

Musterole is made of pure oil of mustard and other helpful ingredients, combined in the form of the present white ointment. It takes the place of mustard plasters, and will not blister.

Musterole usually gives prompt relief from sore throat, bronchitis, tonsillitis, croup, stiff neck, asthma, neuralgia, headache, congestion, pleurisy, rheumatism, lumbago, pains and aches of the back or joints, sprains, sore muscles, bruises, chilblains, frosted feet, colds of the chest (it may prevent pneumonia).

TO MOTHERS: Musterole is also made in milder form for babies and small children. Ask for Children's Musterole.

REDWOOD FIGHT SUCCESS TOLD

Three-quarters of Million Available for Purchase

Artist Brings Word of Fund in League's Treasury

Two-Year Effort of 70,000 Club Women at End

BY MYRA NYE

To acquire property that will pay dividends forever was the consummation yesterday of two years of concerted effort on the part of 70,000 clubwomen, composing the California Federation of Women's Clubs.

Redwoods felled and made into lumber pay but one dividend which is soon spent. California redwoods, known the world over as the most wonderful growing thing, priceless for antiquity and still growing, magnificent for beauty, yet staunchly strong, preserved as a park for the people, will yield increasingly annual income forever in inspiration and loveliness.

Three-quarters of a million dollars are, since last Saturday, in the treasury of the Save the Redwoods League, with which the State Federation has been working in this definite movement looking toward the purchase of two miles of virgin forest, North and South Dyerville Flats and Bull Creek Flat in Humboldt county, the finest stand of timber in the entire tract of Sequoia Sempervirens, which is 450 miles in length. This was reported in this city yesterday by Mrs. Martella Cone Lane, renowned artist, noted for her paintings of redwood forests in Humboldt county, where she lives, and who is prominent in Fortuna women's clubs.

ZEALOUS WORKERS

It is a significant fact that with the exception of Mrs. Lane and Mrs. James P. Mahan, president of the Women's Save the Redwoods League, also a member of the C.F.W.C., and called the Joan of Arc in this movement by the people of the northern part of the State, the women who have worked most zealously recognizing this as a State-wide, and even national interest do not live near the big trees.

Mrs. John C. Urquhart of this city, president of the C.F.W.C., received a redwood gavel from the retiring president, Mrs. William Fitzgerald, made from the burl of a giant tree near where they stood knee deep in ferns. Both of these leaders of women, at the memorable session two years ago near Eureka, made pleas for the preservation of the forests. It was the highlight of a conservation program lasting nearly a week. It was there in the green cathedral aisles of the redwoods that Mrs. Urquhart in her installation service pledged herself to this movement of saving the redwoods for California.

At Santa Cruz this coming May when the State convention is conducted, among other redwood trees she states that she will fulfill that pledge.

LEGAL VICTORY

It was a magnificent fight to save the grove for all time and was rewarded by an imposing legal victory at the end of last week. Mrs. Mahan led for the women. She bore sheaths of telegrams from leading club women not only of California, but the entire Union. The most important one was from Mrs. John D. Sherman, president of the General Federation of Women's Clubs, pledging the support of the entire federation numbering 3,000,000 women. The sides of this conflict were the Pacific Lumber Company, owners of this part of the grove; the Supervisors of Humboldt county, before whom the hearing was to be conducted and who were on the eve of giving a decision in favor of the lumber company, and representatives of the Save the Redwoods League.

The league, with which the State federation was a silent and working partner, offered in writing a proposal in effect as follows: "We will buy North and South Dyerville Flats, paying a fair price, allowing ample right of way privileges. If we cannot buy on these

RECORD YEAR IN FILMDOM

Warners Have Huge Program

Harry and Jack Warner of the Warner Brothers, arrived yesterday from New York, where they have been conferring with other officials of the company, and made several announcements in connection with the $7,000,000 production program of the company for 1925.

The Warners admitted negotiations with Gloria Swanson are still pending. The Warners are reported to have offered her $17,500 a week, believing her the greatest box office attraction now appearing in pictures.

The $7,000,000 production schedule for the new season is already under way. This calls for thirty pictures, including two Ernst Lubitsch productions, to be made at an approximate cost of $700,000 each. Stories, the most difficult thing to obtain in pictures today, have already been purchased, and include "The Pleasure Buyers," by Arthur Somers Roche; "The Passionate Quest," by E. Phillips Oppenheim; "The Golden Cocoon," by Ruth Cross; "The Gay Ones," by Charles Hanson Towne; "Hell Bent for Heaven," by Thatcher Hughes; "The Limited Mail," by Elmer Vance; "Compromise," by Mrs. Jay Gelzer, and "Bobbed Hair," the story written by twenty famous authors.

BIG YEAR FORECASTS

"This all means," said Harry Warner, "that we intend to put forth every possible effort to make our pictures for the coming year stand out above anything we have yet attempted, and we are getting the best talent in actors, directors and stories that money can obtain. It is my belief that 1925 is to be the biggest year the motion-picture industry has yet seen, both in production and big pictures. The public today demands the ultimate, and we are doing our share to see that they get it."

Lowell Sherman, famous stage and screen star, has been signed and will appear in two of the above stories. His contract takes effect June 1, and he will report to the studio ready for work on that date.

"It is also our hope," continued Harry Warner, "to have John Barrymore at the completion of his present stage affiliations come to the Coast and be starred in a series of productions equal to the magnitude of "Beau Brummel." We already have some stories in mind for him and negotiations with Barrymore are in progress.

HARLAN IS SIGNED

"Kenneth Harlan was signed to a Warner contract on his recent trip to New York.

"Huntly Gordon and John Harron were signed by Bennie Ziedman during our absence. These additions to our already good-sized roster of stars gives us one of the best stock companies in the business today."

Harry M. and Sam L. Warner will return to New York in about two weeks, where they will remain indefinitely to carry out the distribution and supervise the plans for the chain of Warner theaters. They were emphatic in their statement that no theaters were contemplated or to be built in territories where Warner Brothers pictures are receiving proper exhibition.

The Warners' New York office is to be moved shortly to larger quarters on Fifth avenue, where two entire floors have been leased.

Cecil De Mille Plans All Laid

Three things vitally important to the independent producer of motion pictures, financing a distribution system and production facilities, will be offered by the newly organized Cinema Corporation of America, according to Cecil B. De Mille, owner of half the stock of the organization, who arrived here yesterday to plan a series of productions to be filmed at the Thomas H. Ince studios in Culver City.

This provision for the independent producer is characterized by De Mille as the most important result of his break with Famous Players-Lasky and subsequent alignment with Producers' Distributing Corporation, which is owned by the new holding company, the Cinema Corporation of America.

"All the pictures of the corporation will be made in Southern California, that's final," declared De Mille as he stepped off a Union Pacific train yesterday to greet the largest welcoming committee that has assembled in honor of a film executive this year.

DETAILS WITHHELD

The details of his own program were not revealed by De Mille, but he said he will direct two pictures himself during the coming year and supervise ten others. Production on the first of these, to star Leatrice Joy, will start early in April, De Mille said.

The purchase of four Broadway plays and eight novels for his own use was announced by De Mille, but he deferred the naming of these until his detailed program is given out two weeks later.

Two prominent stars also have been approached, but their names are not to be announced yet, either, according to the producer. The nucleus of the stock company of actors, which he intends to build up are Leatrice Joy, Rod La Rocque, Vera Reynolds, Edmund Burns, Warner Baxter, Julia Faye and Robert Edeson, De Mille stated. These players, he said, already are under contract.

ALIGNED WITH HAYS

Officials in the De Mille organization will be Fred Kley, general manager; Lou Goodstadt, in charge of the De Mille stock company; Jeanie McPherson, scenarist; Bertram Millhauser, first production editor, and Barrett Kiesling, director of publicity.

The Cinema Corporation of America is aligned with the Motion-Picture Producers and Distributors of America, and will support the Will Hays organization, De Mille declared.

Frederick C. Munroe, president of the Producers' Distributing Corporation, who accompanied De Mille to California, declared that the Cinema Corporation of America does not want to enter the exhibiting field, but is prepared to do so if there is any difficulty in securing releases. Neither Munroe nor De Mille will admit that the organization is considering the purchase of several theaters in Los Angeles.

MEMBERS OF PARTY

McGROARTY GETS THREE NEW OFFERS

Author of Mission Play Refuses Texas, Florida and Oregon Drama Bids

Offers from three States to write historical dramas on the lines of the Mission Play at San Gabriel have come to John S. McGroarty recently and have been refused, for the present, at least, Mr. McGroarty said yesterday.

San Antonio has asked him to write the drama of the Alamo. Paul Gilmore and a syndicate of Florida real estate men have asked him to write a historical drama to be produced there and Portland wants a pageant drama of Oregon and the Northwest.

Instead, Mr. McGroarty intends to write his third California drama, entitled "El Dorado," this summer. It will be based on the gold rush of '49. The other two have already been produced, the Mission Play, which is now in its fourteenth season, and La Golondrina.

Sunday Closing Fight Brings 70 Per Cent of Vote

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

POMONA, Feb. 17.—Pomona today voted to repeal the blue law or Sunday-closing ordinance.

The wildest demonstration since the day the Armistice was signed—with cow bells, automobile horns and every available noise-making machine in full blast accompanied the announcement of complete unofficial returns.

An automobile parade was immediately organized by the celebrants, and picture shows were centers of wild cheering throngs.

COMPLETE RETURNS

Complete, but unofficial, returns from all precincts showed the vote to be 3007 to 2441 in favor of repeal of the ordinance. The election passed quietly until the result was known. The vote was heavy, estimated at 70 per cent of the total registration.

In the early hours the church forces, led by W. W. Casselberry of 629 North Ardmore avenue, Los Angeles, acting general secretary of the Lord's Day Alliance, polled a heavy vote in favor of the present ordinance, but the later hours, when stores and business places were closed, were believed to have brought out heavy opposition to the law. The American Legion led the fight for repeal of the ordinance and the Civic Betterment League for its retention. The latter organization published a weekly newspaper, the Sunday Campaign News, each Saturday during the campaign.

Mr. Casselberry's part in the campaign was not revealed until today, when it was learned he had been here several days organizing his forces.

BLUE LAW ORDINANCE

The blue law ordinance, closing theaters and all places of amusement on Sunday, was passed in 1921 with a majority of 56 votes at the polls. It was at once held up by injunction granted by Judge Burnell of Superior Court and following litigation never went into effect until November, 1924, when the Supreme Court upheld the ordinance and dissolved the injunction. On December 20, 1924, the Pomona theaters closed for the first time and the campaign for the repeal of the ordinance was started.

Several voters were taken to the polls in wheel chairs today and one on a stretcher.

SEWER BONDS GET LARGE MAJORITY

By a majority of more than 13 to 1, voters of Sanitation District No. 1 yesterday approved the issuance of $3,630,000 in bonds to defray the district's portion of the cost of the $12,500,000 metropolitan sewer system for Los Angeles County outside the City of Los Angeles.

With the thirty-three precincts counted last night the vote stood 6183 to 458 in favor of the bond issue. Huntington Park voted more than 40-to-1 for the bonds, the figures showed.

The district includes Huntington Park, Maywood, Southgate, Lynwood, Watts, Compton, Bell, Cudahy, Florence, Graham, Walnut Park, Home Gardens and Willowbrook. It has an area of 88.4 square miles.

This is the second district election that has approved the campaign, District No. 2, having voted 3½ to 1 for the bonds in an election last week. District No. 5, the

BUT why all the poppycock and the pomposity and the fixed bayonets and the sentinels and the military courts-martial?

When the poor crushed body of Floyd Collins was found in the Kentucky cave, it certainly required a lot of melodrama to slip that sad fact to the waiting world.

The high admiral of the fleet of the State of Kentucky had to inform the Lord High Lieutenant of the forces who, in turn, informed the Sheriff of Nottingham and lord high executioner.

Only the pity of this tragedy has saved the State of Kentucky from being the blue-grass heroine of an extremely ridiculous farce.

MILLIONAIRE JOE

Years ago — not so many —I used to know an eager, agreeable young Jewish boy who was a door man and usher and whatever-there-was-to-do man at the old Mason Operahouse. His name was Joe Toplitzky.

Monday night I went, as his guest, to the reopening of the old theater; Joe owns it now.

Joe's career is one of the miracle stories of Los Angeles. I don't suppose that the whole history of the world has witnessed so many dramas of wealth and fame. This boy happened to be a financial genius; but nearly anybody can make good here. It's an open door.

HOW TO INVEST

Joe Schenck, the movie magnate — who also made a fortune from nothing — tells me that the way to invest in Los Angeles real estate is to fill your pockets with beans; then make a hole in the pocket. Wherever a bean drops out, buy the place where it lit. In other words, it is the only sure-thing game in the world.

POLLYANNA PLAYS

But, oh, Joe! Oh, Mister Toplitzky! I thank you for inviting me to the party and all that. But, oh, Joe! That play! "The Seventh Heaven"!

I know it's been the big hit of New York. And all the movie millionaires bid a couple of million for the screen rights. But, oh, gosh!

That other Broadway, back among the chewing gum electric light signs and the subways, seems incurably addicted to Pollyanna tales, where Paris apaches from the sewers are chivalrous knights of the pure heart; and gutter young ladies are more immaculate of soul than a plaster saint.

AS TO HELEN

John Golden is the most successful producer in America. And he ought to know about actresses. And he said that Helen Menken is the finest emotional actress in America. That's what he said in a speech in the theater.

Well, John, mebbe so, mebbe so.

But oh, John, hunt around America. Find us another Duse. Someone whose emotion will be the emotion of restraint. Whose every motion of hands and face mean something. Who will seem to send her thoughts to our hearts without doing anything.

I know that you know your own stuff — John and Joe. But honest, are we really just nursery children, who must be fed crude and impossible fairy stories—with lurid overacting?

Midgie Miller, Will Morrisey, Wed in Chicago

Will Morrisey and Midgie Miller, who until about two months ago played leads in "Pickings," at the Orange Grove Theater, were married in Chicago yesterday, according to news dispatches.

The ceremony took place in the Cook county courthouse, with Claiborne Foster and Allan Dinehart of "Applesauce" as maid of honor and best man. They came here last fall from New York and recently decided to return East.

HIGHWAYS TO BE DISCUSSED

Civic Bodies, Editors and County Officials to Meet Tomorrow; Plan Southland Program

Acceptances from nearly 300 editors, County Supervisors, civic bodies officials and community leaders have been received for the Southern California highway conference to be held tomorrow night at the headquarters of the Automobile Club of West Adams streets.

This meeting is regarded as the most important of its kind in recent years, in view of the problems now confronting the State relative to a highway program. Various bills have been introduced in the State Legislature which are designed to raise funds for new highway work. These call for an increase in the gasoline tax, an increase in automobile license fees, placing a weight tax on automobiles and a bond issue. Although it is realized generally that if new highway construction is to go forward the funds must be provided, there has developed a sharp division of sentiment in the State as to means of raising a budget for this purpose.

Decided opposition is being manifested in many quarters to the plan proposed of further increasing the tax on motorists following the doubling of their taxes by the Legislature in 1923.

It is expected that the meeting tomorrow night will not only bring out the views of all of the counties of Southern California, but will formulate a definite expression of sentiment from this part of the State for the guidance of legislators who will have the preparing of the State highway program for the next two years.

Other public improvements considered by the Council yesterday were petitions for the paving of Seventh street west of Gaffey street and of Third street from Beacon street and Pacific avenue, in the Harbor District.

NAVY PLANES SET FOR TEST

Five Aircraft to Bomb Target Off Harbor Today; Departure of Fleet for South Delayed

With great bombs in place of their motors tuned to maximum efficiency, the five monster naval planes which are to participate in bomb-dropping practice off Los Angeles Harbor this morning are ready for their task.

The planes are awaiting the starting signal on the sandy beach at Dead Man's Island. Each has been equipped with ten 117-pound TNT bombs. They will each carry a crew of five men and two observers, when they take off for a spot about 700 yards west of the breakwater to send down a stream of bombs on a target towed by the aircraft tender Gannett, 6000 feet below.

The entire battle fleet will witness the test of air power, which has attracted unusual interest in view of the controversy stirred up by Brig.-Gen. Mitchell at Washington.

The great naval planes are expected to take off at 9 a.m. They are expected to reach the high elevation set for them about 11 a.m. They will then form in battle alignment and will drop their bombs on the target below.

Among the official spectators of the test will be Admiral Robert E. Coontz, commander-in-chief of the entire fleet, who is expected to arrive at the harbor aboard his flagship, the Seattle, at 7 a.m., today; Admiral Samuel S. Robinson, commander-in-chief of the Battle Fleet; Capt. Stanford E. Moses, commander of the air squadron of the Battle Fleet, and Lieutenant-Commander R. D. Kirkpatrick, aviation officer of the Battle Fleet, under whose supervision the tests are to be conducted.

More than twenty naval planes, carrying observers, will escort the bombers. The tests will be in full view of the entire Battle Fleet and the fleet's antiaircraft guns will be trained on the bombers during the flight.

FLEET'S DEPARTURE FOR SOUTH DELAYED

A week's delay in the departure of the Battle Fleet for southern waters was announced yesterday from the U.S.S. California, flagship of the fleet. Originally scheduled to leave the 26th inst. the battleships will not get away till March 2 because of gunnery practice, it was said. Only nine of the twelve battleships

ALLAN STRIKES AT VICE

Councilman Admits Charges of Ministers That Laws Are Openly Violated in Los Angeles

Councilman Robert Allan, from the floor of the City Council, yesterday declared to be true the charges that the laws against gambling and other forms of vice were being openly violated in Los Angeles, as stated in the resolutions adopted by the Ministerial Union at its meeting on Monday. The union forwarded a copy of its resolutions to the City Council and they were read to the Council yesterday. Following the reading, Councilman Allan said:

"These charges are true. These conditions do exist. I long ago made an investigation and furnished the Mayor with definite information, names of gamblers, addresses of their places, including one on Third street run by 'Farmer' Page. I furnished information as to how entrance could be secured to these places. As far as I know, nothing was done. These conditions are a crime against the city. As for the Council, its hands are tied."

Councilman Gregory asked that the Police Commission and Chief of Police be called upon to furnish a report in answer to the Ministerial Union charges; and the letter from the union was finally referred to the Police Commission.

Mayor Cryer said that Councilman Allan had furnished information and that it had been carefully investigated by the police department, and at least one raid made from this information. The Mayor said that the law enforcement was up to the Chief of Police, and the Mayor said that he had every confidence in the Chief. The Mayor said that Chief Heath had informed him (the Mayor) that last month more than 1000 arrests had been made for violation of the laws against gambling and other forms of vice.

DROP WILSHIRE WIDENING PLAN

Development Association and Council Step Out

Show Drive of America to be Elsewhere

Opposition is Cause of Withdrawal

Henry W. O'Melveny, attorney for the Community Development Association, yesterday informed the Public Works Committee of the City Council, that the association had withdrawn its support from the project of widening Wilshire Boulevard to 200 feet and extending it to the sea, but that it will continue to work for some other great scenic thoroughfare from the city to the ocean. The association has withdrawn from the Wilshire project, Mr. O'Melveny indicated, because of the controversy and opposition which has arisen over the plan.

"The Community Development Association," said Mr. O'Melveny, in addressing yesterday afternoon the Public Works Committee, of which Councilman Wheeler is chairman, "has not abandoned the plan of sponsoring and assisting in the development of a great scenic boulevard from Los Angeles to the sea and will continue its efforts along this line. But in view of the opposition to the 200-foot Wilshire Boulevard from Rimpau Boulevard to the city limits, connecting there with a 200-foot boulevard through Beverly Hills and Santa Monica to the ocean, the association steps aside. We feel that it is not fair to put the property owners in the district who are in favor of the project, which we believe would be a wonderful thing for Los Angeles, to the expense of opposing these protests and then carrying on the long litigation which was threatened. In any further matters involving the widening of Wilshire Boulevard, please consider the Community Development Association as having withdrawn from the entire matter."

WILL PAY EXPENSES

The association, in lieu of a majority property owners' petition asking for the 200-foot widening, had deposited with the city a bond of $7500 to reimburse the city for preliminary expenses should the engineering plans be prepared under the ordinance of intention and then protested out. The association will, of course, said Mr. O'Melveny, pay the city for expenses incurred to date. The ordinance of intention has not been prepared and will not now be prepared, in view of Mr. O'Melveny's statement. The Public Works Committee will report to the Council this morning the substance of the statement made by Mr. O'Melveny with the recommendation that the 200-foot project be dropped. The Council will adopt the committee's report.

Following Mr. O'Melveny's statement, Attorney A. J. Hill, representing the protestants against the 200-foot widening, stated to the Council that the opposition was not fighting a widening of Wilshire Boulevard and he filed a petition, which, he said, represented a majority of the frontage on Wilshire from Rimpau to the city limits, asking for the cutting back of the curbs seven feet on each side of the street so as to make a uniform seventy-foot roadway in line with a similar cutting back of the curbs ordered by the Council from Westlake Park to Rimpau Boulevard.

The proposal to make of Wilshire Boulevard from Westlake Park to the ocean, a 200-foot scenic drive was early sponsored by the Community Development Association and the initial announcement of the project met with immediate approval by the people of the city and of the adjacent communities through which the boulevard passes.

TWO YEARS ON PROJECT

For two years the association has given its time and money to the preliminary steps necessary to put the project under way. This hard, detailed work was handled for the association by Attorney Henry W. O'Melveny, and required the preparation of necessary petitions and additional State legislation as well as many conferences with property owners and Los Angeles, Santa Monica, Beverly Hills and county officials to lay the necessary ground work for the improvement.

The plan originally called for the 200-foot width to begin at Westlake Park, but large apartment-houses were built in the path of the proposed widening, and to remove these would have made the cost of the widened street excessive. The proceedings were then started to cut back the curbs ten feet on each side of the street from Westlake Park to Rimpau Boulevard, and these proceedings are now under way. The 200 foot street was to start at Rimpau and proceed to the ocean. The 200-foot measurement would have been the distance from property line to property line and would have included the sidewalks and curbs, two roadways with ornamental landscaping on both sides of each roadway, as well as in the wide central portion, which would also include a bridle path for horseback riders. As originally planned by the Community Development Association, Wilshire Boulevard would have been one of the "show" drives of America and unsurpassed by any city, for nowhere but Los Angeles could a drive start at the center of the city and proceed through the residential part to the hills directly to the ocean.

The co-operation shown by many property owners was demonstrated at sections of Wilshire Boulevard, as for example at Carthay Center where frontage for the widened boulevard was deeded free for street purposes and the people who now use Wilshire Boulevard may see the actual benefits of the widened street.

BENEFITS OF WIDENING

The necessity for saving Wilshire Boulevard for beautification before it was too late and buildings had been constructed in the path of the improvement was apparent, and many property owners realizing this and realizing also that their property would increase in value far beyond their assessments for the improvement assisted Mr. O'Melveny and the Community Development Association to give to Los Angeles one great scenic boulevard which would be the pride of the city forever.

The ground work having been prepared, the next step was the filing with the City Council of a petition for the starting of the 200-foot widening proceedings at Rimpau Boulevard, or at Muirfield Drive, one block eastward, and continuing to the Beverly city limits, where the street development would continue and thence through the county to Santa Monica and the ocean. As usual in Los Angeles with all public improvements, at once opposition was started, and property owners were urged to sign protests to be forwarded to the City Council opposing the improvement. The usual arguments were advanced that the cost would be excessive, but nothing was said of the fact that all property condemned would be paid for and that condemnation awards are always at top values, and nothing was said of the increase in property values in the assessment district which would inevitably follow the improvement and in amount many times greater than the assessments that would be paid. Property owners being in ignorance of the true facts signed the protests, thus unwittingly enrolling in the army of protestants against beautiful, widened streets.

SAWTELLE WIDENING NOW IS CONTEMPLATED

Widening and extension of Sawtelle Boulevard from Inglewood to Sepulveda Canyon is contemplated in a plan to be outlined at a meeting of property owners Friday night at the Westward Ho Golf Club, Sawtelle and Venice Boulevards.

J. O. Stephenson, president of the club, will preside as chairman and will explain the campaign tentatively agreed on by a citizen's committee. It is the aim of the project to open Sawtelle Boulevard at the present end at the Soldier's Home to connect with a new road planned to extend through Sepulveda Canyon to Mulholland High Way and connect with Ventura Boulevard and San Fernando Valley roads at a point near Encino. At the Culver City end of the boulevard it is planned to open a road that will run directly to the center of Inglewood.

CALLED GLORIA HIS QUEEN

Stenographer Arrested at Swanson Home Placed in Psycopathic Ward; Wanted to Live There

Charles Wesley Brinks, who would be "king of the League of Nations" with Gloria Swanson as queen, is scheduled to be removed to the psychopathic ward of the General Hospital today for observation as to his sanity.

The self-invited ruler of the destinies of nations, who is a stenographer in private life, was arrested by Beverly Hills police Sunday night after he appeared at the screen star's home at 904 Crescent Drive, Beverly Hills, and announced his intention of living there pending the return of his "queen."

Brinks' arrest disclosed the fact that he has been sought for some time by the Hollywood police as the sender of telegrams to Jesse Lasky in New York in which he besought the film executive to cable Gloria Swanson to desert the Marquis de Falais, her new husband, and return to the "American who aided her in becoming a woman who came up out of the crowd."

"I have written Miss Swanson a number of times and although she has not answered my letters I know from her actions and her acting in certain motion pictures that she has been co-operating with me all the time," Brinks said yesterday, as he discussed his modified plan of the League of Nations in which there was to be a king and queen with the league machinery to do the actual work of the body.

Brinks submitted his proposed modification to the Council of the League and to prominent delegates in letters written in December of which copies are in the hands of the police, according to Chief Charles C. Blair, of the Beverly Hills police and City Recorder M. J. Cavanaugh. The details of the strange delusion under which the stenographer suffers were revealed to these officers during Brink's stay in the Beverly Hills jail.

It was also revealed yesterday that Brinks has sought to enter the Swanson home before, but has been driven away by servants. Last year, he was taken to the County Jail after an attempt to see the screen star, but was released on the promise of a brother that he would be looked after, Chief Blair declared.

The proposed modification to the League of Nations was written on stationary bearing Brinks's name, but dated, "Swanbrink," which is the name Brinks has given the Swanson home in Beverly Hills.

Brinks exhibited great interest yesterday in the approaching return of Gloria Swanson. He asked officers to wire her as soon as she landed and tell her of his plight.

The stenographer is a blond, sturdily built, has blue eyes, and is dressed very neatly even in his cell. He gives his birthplace as Redlands, Okla., and says he is 35 years of age.

During the war he served in the Air Service at Morrison, Va., and later at the officers' training camp at Jacksonville, Fla., he says.

He has been working at a downtown firm and has lived at 1025 South Hope street.

Oscar A. Brinks, a brother, of 1545 East Tenth street, Long Beach, came to Los Angeles yesterday and, after a conference with Chief Blair and City Recorder Kavanaugh of Beverly Hills, agreed that it is best his brother be removed to the psychopathic ward for observation, according to the Beverly Hills police. This probably will be done today.

RED AIDS CRIME INSTINCT

Boys and Girls Susceptible to Radical Colors, Says Advertising Expert; Values are Discussed

That red toys, red clothes and the predominance of that radical color in the lives of children tend to increase the criminal tendencies of boys and girls is the opinion voiced by Charles Duncan of San Francisco in an address given yesterday before the Advertising Club at the Biltmore.

"If you fathers don't believe this, set your babies down in a garden full of flaming red roses and listen to them scream, or take your boy, dressed in a red suit, into a toy store and watch him behave like a bull in a china shop," said Mr. Duncan.

Following Mr. Duncan's address on "Color in Advertising," Bert Butterworth admitted that from now on he will be afraid to look a respectable rainbow in the face. For the speaker said many "fearful and wonderful things" about colors, illustrating many of his statements with charts, proving, among other things, that the mind can discover in all objects those colors desired and which, apparently, are lacking.

Explaining how and why anemic and weak-stomached soldiers had regained their appetites when their food had been changed in color, the speaker also said that he had been instrumental in increasing the income of certain cafeterias merely by rearrangement of the color scheme of the tables, napkins, dishes and foods.

"The color green is especially restful to the eyes and to the mind after one has been concentrating on black and white, as the stenographer must do," continued the speaker. "If one is feeling 'blue,' he can find rest for his soul and stimulation for his mind by sitting under one of the colorful shower-baths with which the sky-gods baptise the western world at the close of each glorious day."

The meeting was in charge of A. D. Smith, president of the club, and A. L. Lathrop, chairman of the day. The program included community singing led by Ray Whitten, with Ferris Miller at the piano, tenor solos by Richard Hart, accompanied by Jack Chapeau, and an address on "Advertising for Good Will" by J. G. Jeffery, director of public relations for the Los Angeles Railway Company and editor of the Blue Pencil, official news organ of the Advertising Club.

MUCH INTEREST

The Pacific Lumber Company had already proposed that the county, State and league sign away their rights of future condemnation suits in return for certain privileges, to enjoy the groves while they stood. This the Supervisors were about to agree to, but the trial as it proceeded in the Superior Court attracted so much interest that the entire courthouse and even the streets about it were thronged with people, many of them club women intent upon saving the redwoods. What had been considered a dry legal battle aroused much human interest and every paper in the county last Thursday blazoned its progress with headline stories.

Dist.-Atty. Arthur W. Hill made a forceful presentation of the people's side, Attorney Irwin T. Quinn, Humboldt Post No. 4, American Legion, appeared also as an advocate of the save-the-redwoods movement. Attorney Lawrence T. Mahan appeared for Save-the-Redwoods League. Senator H. C. Nelson represented the timber interests. Donald MacDonald, treasurer of the Pacific Lumber Company, appeared for the company. The entire Board of Supervisors served as jury.

LAST SHOT

Newton T. Drury, secretary of the Save-the-Redwoods League, was the Goliath who hurled the last shot to crystalize the decision. A question had been raised as to the financial standing of the league and its ability to pay the $750,000 had been questioned. At this moment three telegrams in succession were handed to Mr. Drury. Each one read: "$750,000 to buy the redwoods," and each one was signed by an eminent San Francisco banker.

Local women prominent in this movement, in addition to those already mentioned, are: Mrs. Russell J. Waters, a past president of the State federation, now treasurer of the fund to buy a portion of the redwoods; Mrs. J. B. Lorbeer, vice-president of the Los Angeles district; Mrs. Charles H. Toll, the president of Los Angeles Ebell, where she started a pronounced agitation in favor of the purchase; Mrs. W. J. Meeker, present chairman of conservation for this district, who will make announcement of this victory at the president council in Highland Park Thursday.

Sunday and yesterday there came to this portion of the groves at the same place where the women held their closing session of the Eureka convention two years ago, men and women prominent in the great save-the-redwoods movement, which is now engaging the attention of nature and conservation lovers throughout the country. Included among them are Albert Atwood, whose name is known to millions of readers of the Saturday Evening Post, and who is preparing a magazine article about the grove, with the help of Mrs. Mahan and Mrs. Lane.

Warning Given Citrus Growers on Frozen Fruit

A warning to citrus growers of Southern California against the shipment of fruit frozen during the freezes earlier in the winter was issued by Wendell Vincent, chief of the western district of the United States Bureau of Chemistry, upon his arrival here yesterday from San Francisco to make a survey of the citrus situation.

The shipment of damaged fruit has made necessary the confiscation of a number of carloads in the larger market centers of the country, Vincent said.

Citrus growers and shippers themselves recently inaugurated a move to obtain State legislation to regulate the shipment of frost-damaged fruit.

Secret Marriage Performed in New Jersey

Pastor Admits Ceremony; Won't Give Ages

Couple Feared Publicity Would Hurt Careers

Lou Tellegen, theatrical star and former husband of Geraldine Farrar, has been married for more than a year, it was disclosed yesterday. His bride, who gave her name on the marriage license as Isabel Craven Dilworth, has a professional name of Nina Romano, and since her marriage has become well known both to Los Angeles film fans and lovers of the legitimate stage.

Fear that a knowledge of their marriage might hurt the dramatic careers of both was given as the reason for the secrecy surrounding the ceremony. Nina Romano recently appeared at the Playhouse Theater here as the star in "The Whole Town's Talking."

Mrs. Lou Tellegen

MARRIED IN NEW JERSEY

Lou Tellegen and Isabel Dilworth were married by Rev. Ferdinand N. Kohler, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church at Carlstadt, N. J., near Rutherford, N. J., the pastor admitted when questioned last night, New York dispatches stated.

The ceremony, he said, took place in the home of Paul Koch, attorney for Tellegen, in Rutherford, on the night of December 17, 1923. There were only two other persons present beside Dr. Kohler and the couple, they being Paul Koch and his wife, Mrs. Etta Koch. Their names were attached to Dr. Kohler's record as witnesses to the secret marriage.

According to the pastor, about a week before the wedding Koch came to him and asked whether he (Kohler) was free to perform a marriage ceremony on December 17, 1923. Dr. Kohler said he was, and after examining the papers, which, he said, conformed in every way to the New Jersey State laws, agreed to perform the ceremony. The time set was 8 p.m. The clergyman said he was favorably impressed with the groom, who, he said, gave his home, according to the record, as Holland.

AGES NOT REVEALED

Although Dr. Kohler refused to disclose the ages the couple gave, he said the pair were evenly matched. He further declared that he was not pledged to secrecy after performing the ceremony, but that he went on his way, retaining his knowledge of the affair until queried about it tonight. Where the couple went on their honeymoon, the pastor couldn't say.

Paul Koch, when called on the telephone in regard to the marriage was noncommittal, according to the dispatches, and said he knew nothing about the marriage and had nothing to say.

Geraldine Farrar, the noted opera singer, was granted a divorce from Tellegen in New York on June 27, 1923. According to the terms of the decree, Tellegen would be free to marry legally three months after that date.

GLENDALE SCHOOL BOND DEFEAT FORESEEN

(EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH)

GLENDALE, Feb. 17.—On the face of complete returns from five of seven city precincts defeat of the bond issues of $2,400 for high and elementary schools is certain, the issues failing to receive the necessary two-thirds majority.

On the high school proposition the vote tonight stood: Yes, 1509, and no, 1419.

The vote in the elementary proposition was: Yes, 1699, and no, 1226.

The proposed bond issues were $1,200,000 each for the high and elementary schools for the improvement of present plants and extensions.

The two precincts not counted tonight cannot alter the result, it is stated.

HIBERNIAN RECEPTION

A joint reception will be given by the Ancient Order of Hibernians and its women's auxiliary this evening at the Eagles' Hall, Sixteenth and Figueroa streets, in honor of Mrs. Annie Christey, president of the women's auxiliary, and Mrs. Mary McWhorter, past president of the auxiliary.

GRAND JURY IS DRAWN

First Meeting of County Inquisitorial Body for 1925 is Called for Tomorrow Morning

With seven members from Los Angeles, four from Pasadena, two each from South Pasadena, Long Beach and Santa Monica, and one each from Alhambra and Norwalk, the 1925 grand jury was selected and sworn in yesterday in Judge Hahn's court. They will have their first meeting tomorrow at 9:30 a.m. in the grand jury room and will be addressed by Dist.-Atty. Keyes and Chief Deputy District-Attorney Fitts, who will explain the law governing grand juries and their functions and powers.

Clayton R. Taylor of 113 South Hudson avenue, Pasadena, is foreman of the new investigating body. The Los Angeles members are Arthur Wolff, Van Nuys Hotel; A. M. RECORD YEAR IN FILMDOM

A good portion of this space will be devoted to the theater interests. Production on the Coast is in the hands of Jack Warner and his associate, Bennie Ziedman, with Harry Edwards as studio manager. Five companies are now at work, and four more are in preparation, to be started shortly.

NAVAL PLANES SET FOR TEST

will make the trip. The U.S.S. Pennsylvania is undergoing repairs at Puget Sound navy yard, the U.S.S. New Mexico leaves for Puget Sound March 3, and the U.S.S. Tennessee, now undergoing overhaul at Los Angeles Harbor, will not be completed in time.

Contact of the Battle Fleet with the scouting fleet from the Atlantic is expected to be established March 3. The scouting fleet will be based on Magdalena Bay and will simulate an attack on the Southern California coast, which will be defended by the Battle Fleet and the aircraft and destroyer squadrons. Admiral Coontz, commander of the United States Fleet, will accompany the Battle Fleet in the U.S.S. Seattle, his flagship.

After these maneuvers, the combined fleets, about 100 vessels, will arrive at San Diego March 12 and anchor in San Diego Bay until March 16, when they will sail for Los Angeles to prepare for force practice. In this practice, scheduled for the week of March 23, all arms of the service, battleships, cruisers, destroyers, aircraft and subs will "cut loose with all they have." All the fleet except destroyers will be at Los Angeles Harbor, the destroyers coming from San Diego. On April 3, as previously announced, the entire fleet will leave for Hawaii.

The U.S.S. Mississippi tomorrow will make a test of a new aircraft launching device, a catapult operated by smokeless powder instead of compressed air, by launching an Immel monoplane weighing three tons. The pilot will be Lieut. Carl E. Hayden and Lieut. James Sellers from the naval aircraft factory at Philadelphia, will be aboard as observer. This plane is three times the size of any heretofore launched by this method.

McPherson, scenarist for De Mille, will return in three days with a partially prepared script of one of De Mille's new pictures.

CIVIC BODIES TO ATTEND PARLEY

gram base their objections largely on the following premises:

That the motorist is now sufficiently taxed and, while it is proper for him to pay for the maintenance of the highways he uses, he should not be made to bear the burden of new highway construction.

That the gasoline tax at present shows 57 per cent collected from Southern California and only 33 per cent expended there in the last ten years.

That the present legislative program includes the addition of many miles of new highway in the present State system of 6500 miles when there remains 40 per cent of the present system to be completed at an estimated cost of more than $200,000,000.

That new highway construction, if undertaken, should be regarded as a capital investment and the expense shared by the abutting and adjacent property owners, who are deeply benefited.

That as the State highways carry only about 11 per cent of the vehicular travel there is danger of becoming involved too deeply in these at a sacrifice of county and city roads.

That roads of purely local character are scheduled for inclusion in the State highway system to be built and maintained by the State when in fact they are exclusively of community benefit.

That of the $105,000,000 already expended on the State highway system only 34 per cent has come to Southern California, which has 48 per cent of the State's area and paid 50 per cent of the cost of State construction.

That it will be a mistake to provide more funds at this time for State highway construction until it is assured that there will be a more equitable expenditure of funds.

Keen interest has been manifested in the coming meeting in all parts of the State. Any concerted action taken at this time by representative citizens of Southern California is regarded as highly important in view of the fact that this is the thirty-day period during which the State is given an opportunity of surveying the bills before the Legislature and deciding upon which are desirable. The Legislature is adjourned until March 2, when it will reconvene to enact legislation for the coming two years.

FILM ACTOR ILL

Charles E. Stevenson, motion-picture actor, who has played in the Harold Lloyd pictures for several years, is very ill, it was learned yesterday. He is at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Bruce Stevenson, and is under the care of three physicians.

BLEDSOE TO HEAD OPERA ASSOCIATION

Plans Made for Season at Luncheon; Armitage Renamed Manager

United States District Judge Bledsoe was elected to head the Los Angeles Grand Opera Association for a second year at a luncheon of the civic opera body given yesterday at the Van Nuys Hotel.

This year's season of opera is to be much greater than last, according to plans made by the directors. The season will be given in the Philharmonic Auditorium. A number of men prominent in the business world were elected to the governing body. They include Henry E. Huntington, honorary vice-president; William A. Clark, Jr., second honorary vice-president; William Lee Woollett and W. I. Hollingsworth, vice-presidents.

Those elected as board of directors were Judge Bledsoe, Charles F. Stearn, George Leslie Smith, Louis M. Cole, E. H. Furman, R. T. Burge, Walter P. Story, Harry Culver and R. I. Rogers.

Merle Armitage, who successfully managed the first season of civic opera, was reappointed general manager.

The campaign now on to raise a minimum of $25,000 as a revolving fund for the association has reached the $9300 mark with evidence that before nightfall it will go beyond $10,000.

JUDGE CLOSES CAFE

Order Issued Against Seal Beach Resort Under Volstead Act

Federal Judge McCormick yesterday ordered the Jewel Cafe at Seal Beach closed for one year under the nuisance provision of the Volstead Act. The order did not affect the basement nor the second floor of the building containing the cafe, nor will it prevent use of the cafe space for other business providing lessees give bond to insure that the Volstead Act will not be violated. Jack Smith, former proprietor of the cafe, has pleaded guilty to six charges of violating the prohibition law. A stipulation agreeing to the closing order was entered into by counsel for Smith.

KEARNS WINS POINT IN TRIAL

Attack Suit in East Admitted by Woman Accuser

Evidence Given After Bitter Fight by Counsel

Mrs. Tenney Says She Saw No Wrong in Her Actions

A confession from Mrs. Mary Tenney, a motion-picture "extra," whose damage suit against Jack Kearns is on trial in Superior Judge Monroe's court, that she had accepted a financial settlement from another man on similar charges was obtained during her cross-examination yesterday afternoon by Defense Attorney Milton Cohn.

Mrs. Tenney, 21 years of age and a divorcee, is suing Jack Dempsey's manager for $200,000 because of an asserted attack upon her by Kearns last May, at which time, according to her suit, Kearns enticed her to the home of Bill Russell, a motion picture director, drugged her and then attacked her.

For six and a half hours Mrs. Tenney had been on the witness stand when a recess was taken yesterday. For four hours of that time she was submitted to a gruelling cross-examination by Kearns's attorneys, Milton Cohen and C. O. Bacon, which produced the confession from Mrs. Tenney.

ATTORNEYS PROTEST

After a lengthy argument, during which Mrs. Tenney's attorneys strove to keep the other attack case from the records, Mrs. Tenney was instructed by Judge Monroe to relate the circumstances of the other case.

"Were you ever attacked before you met Mr. Kearns?" she was asked.

Mrs. Tenney, after her attorneys' numerous objections were overruled, admitted that she had been.

"In Baltimore, Md.?"

She replied in the affirmative.

Again, Mrs. Tenney's lawyers attempted to prevent the reading of Mrs. Tenney's deposition, taken by Defense Attorney Cohen several months ago, from being admitted into the records of the trial. Again, Judge Monroe overruled their objections and the details of the Baltimore case involving Mrs. Tenny were read to the jury of ten men and two women.

SETTLEMENT TOLD

According to the testimony, Mrs. Tenny filed charges against a Baltimore piano dealer in 1922, charging him with attempting to assault her. A suit for $45,000 was filed by her Baltimore attorney but before the case came to trial she accepted the $700 settlement, half of which was kept by her attorney. With the remaining $350 she came to California.

"Defense counsel is going to try to show that this plaintiff is in the habit of blackmailing wealthy persons," Attorney Salzman, representing Mrs. Tenney, stated, "and because of this I would like to have the witness tell the circumstances surrounding the Baltimore case."

This Mrs. Tenney did, which did not deviate materially from the testimony in her deposition.

Under cross-examination, Mrs. Tenney admitted she did not see nor experience an attack upon her by Kearns, explaining that she had fallen asleep—apparently from the effects of a drug which she assumed might have been placed in a glass of water which she had drunk.

SAW NOTHING WRONG

"Why didn't you leave the house when you had the opportunity to do so?" she was asked.

"I wanted to talk to Mr. Kearns," she replied.

"And you saw nothing wrong in going to a strange and empty house with a man whom you had never met before?" Judge Monroe asked her.

She replied that she did not. The witness also admitted that she had not related all of the happenings—asserted incidents which she had never mentioned before her trip to the witness stand—to Dist.-Atty. Keyes when she first sought a complaint against Mr. Kearns and which was denied her.

"I didn't think it was necessary," she said.

Mrs. Tenney also testified that she had never met Kearns prior to the time she accompanied him to the Hollywood house.

NOT TO BE SCARED
One good thing may be said of a Ford. It doesn't get frightened at a bass drum.

REFRESHMENT NOTE
The scientist tells us that fleas can go without eating for two weeks. The Humane Society need not worry, however; they never have to.

AS WAS FEARED
Paavo Nurmi doesn't spend all his time running races and breaking records. As was feared, he already has mastered the English language and begun writing articles about himself.

GLOOMY OMEN
A Lankershim hen hatched a brood of chicks in a nest well up in a tree. It doesn't take a goosebone prophet to deduce from this that chickens are going to be higher. Any housewife can do that.

NATURAL DEATH
Insanity said to have been induced by his devotion to radio was given as the cause of an Arizona man's suicide. Anyone who cannot endure "interference" philosophically had better not get the radio habit.

THE PEOPLE'S DEBTS
The total public debt of the people is seven times as much as it was twelve years ago. This pyramiding of obligations would scare a man to death did it happen in his own business, but as a citizen he goes optimistically on, voting for more bonds to dress up the county, doll up his city or brighten his school district.

THE YOUNG IDEA
Inquiries made in New York State by educators concerning the drift of the child mind show that children are more interested in animals than anything else. Examinations that go over a period of three years prove that the little ones are more concerned with the habits and movements of dogs, cats, lions and bears than they are with the mental attainments of the ancient Egyptians—or anything else, for that matter. Next to the beasts comes their interest in the birds and by these stages they gradually work up to an interest in the welfare of their brothers and sisters. The child mind likes to know what makes things move and how the miracle is accomplished.

POWDER AND SMOKE
One of the brigadiers of the Salvation Army insists that few girls become habitual smokers. They take to cigarettes through a spirit of mischief or because they think they are a part of the life in the smart set. But they seldom smoke them when alone or from sheer love of the weed. There is nothing to worry about. The brigadier doesn't raise any objection to the girl with the fags, but he does have a knock for the shameless manner in which some maids and matrons do their making-up on the street. When a girl will halt in the midst of the street parade to embellish her cheeks with rouge or pencil her eyebrows there isn't much maidenly modesty left. If war paint must be applied let the decorating be done behind the walls of the fortress we call home. That is the way it looks to the brigadier.

SOME LEGAL POINTS
A boy playing lately in a ruined and abandoned house fell through a dilapidated hatchway into the cellar, broke his leg and may be crippled for life. Now the parents of the lad are suing the owner of the house for $10,000 damages. They aver that he has no business leaving dismantled homes lying around where children can fall over them and break their bones. The court must decide. It may be that a man cannot leave an ancient house and its responsibilities behind. He may be compelled to protect trespassers against tragedies to themselves. First thing we know the burglar who skins his shins in running from a strange house in the dark will be suing the landlord for his hospital bill as well as punitive damages for careless construction of doors and landings. There are new problems for the law with each recurring day.

EVERYTHING HELPS
The public as well as the medical profession shows unusual interest in the reports covering the use of the new antiseptic in Johns Hopkins Hospital. If it can live up to its press notices it will be a real benefaction to the human race. The new preparation travels under the imposing name of hexylresorcinal, which, to the chemically informed mind, will promptly suggest something of its origin and use. It is said to be many times more powerful than carbolic acid in its capacity for destroying noxious germs and yet it is not poisonous. The doctors have themselves taken liberal internal potions of the drug without any ill effects. It might even be left for baby to play with—according to some of the testimony. Yet it is highly efficient in its business of obliterating pernicious germs. Ancient cases of infection are said to have been cleared up in a single day. Every one hopes that the advance judgments will be certified. It would mean much for the future of medicine and surgery.

POLITICIANS AND WAR
The latest assignment of victory in the great war goes to the politicians by decision of an authority no less than Lloyd George himself. He writes:

> The countries with the best politicians won the war. I am not speaking about myself, but speaking generally. What happened in the four countries that had no politicians? Russia went first, then Turkey, Austria and Germany.
> Germany was run during the war by third-rate politicians. If anyone is inclined to think evil of politicians, let them remember that it was the countries with politicians that lasted to the end.

With all due respect to Lloyd George, it might be suggested that the greatest part which politicians played in the war was to cause it. The war could and would have been avoided if politicians had taken time and pains to avert it.

The war was a premeditated political event which all the nations which took part in it, except the United States, had planned for years. They drilled their armies and navies for it.

At the eleventh hour the politicians could have stopped mobilization and refused to do it.

The Kaiser, Lord Grey, Poincare and Clemenceau were politicians of no mean order. Political parties both in France and Germany had paved the way for the inevitable; and it is an open question whether the immediate, visible cause was not a mere pretext. Alliances and ententes were the outcome of political negotiations entered into and completed with a view to align the best available forces to make the fight a most bitter one. The peoples who took part in the war from the start had been politically educated to make the inhuman sacrifices which were demanded of them.

The history of the two peoples principally concerned in the war was a history of hate which politicians had fanned not only from 1871 till 1914, but for generations and centuries before. Political intrigue blocked all friendly approach between the two nations. Political science fostered but one ambition: to lay, fuse by fuse, a net over the two countries which could ultimately be set to explode and blast Western Europe. To that end all economic and political efforts were bent. Conscription and preparedness were political institutions paramount over all national interests.

Once the political way had been paved the war itself became a military and financial contest. Lord Kitchener claimed at the outset that victory would go where the last $500,000,000 could be raised. The money was not raised by politicians, but by financiers.

The war could have been finished long before it did end actually had it not been prolonged by the bungling of politicians. Kitchener, Haig and Foch were in despair until Foch won the day over all politicians and made further interference from political headquarters impossible.

If military sentiment and judgment is to be credited, politicians made the final blunder in the treaty signed at Paris instead of in Berlin. Be the correctness of that opinion a question of doubt or not, it is certain that politicians did not make the best of that armistice, nor of the Versailles Treaty, which has given rise to more problems to be solved in the future than any former treaty known to history. The slip-shod manner in which billions of dollars passed across the counter in loans handled by politicians without leaving an impression of obligation is only one of the instances of political blundering.

As Senator Borah said: "Lloyd George went home with the bacon and Democrats came back with the squeal." Lloyd George played a clever hand, but it had little to do with ending the war. The ending of the war was a finis of attrition and wearing out of finances and morale in Germany. Military tactics and military morale of the victorious armies put in the finishing touches.

To maintain that "the countries with politicians lasted till the end" might be paralleled with "the armies with the best cooks won." Both cooks and politicians were incidental elements that just happened to be in at the finish. The war was ended in the trenches, not in London, Paris or Washington. The armies brought the war to a close. Honor to whom honor is due.

ARMY AND NAVY CLUB
By subscribing funds last fall for the erection of a Y.M.C.A. clubhouse on Beacon Hill, San Pedro, the citizens of Southern California recognized the duty they owe to the enlisted men of the Army and Navy. Our people cheerfully fulfilled this patriotic service in accordance with the laws of western hospitality.

But Southern California's recognition of the debt owed to the defense of the nation does not end with hospitality for the enlisted men alone. The officers of both arms of the service also need to be brought into closer touch with the business men of the Southwest. For this purpose a new organization, the Army and Navy Club of Southern California, is projected. It will provide the best features of a home and a hotel for all classes of governmental officials, will foster higher social ideals and build for a patriotic understanding of national service.

In brief, the new Army and Navy Club aims to make Los Angeles the Washington of the West. There are in Los Angeles and vicinity 10,000 Army and Navy men eligible to membership and in addition some 2000 officials in the judicial, consular and diplomatic services. We must see that these guardians of the nation's safety are supplied with a social and sympathetic atmosphere in keeping with their rank and importance.

How much such a club will add to the prestige of Los Angeles itself is evident to all who know what similar social organizations have effected at Washington, making the capital city of the nation the fashionable rendezvous of the world. As the importance of the Pacific ranks every year higher and higher, so must this city be ever better prepared to play the part of host to the leaders in the higher walks of life. In this connection the Army and Navy Club may become the center of a new brilliant circle.

In many features this proposed service organization will depart from the old-fashioned club notions. It will incorporate the American home ideal as its leading feature. In fact, it will provide many social advantages that are becoming all too scarce in modern family life. Ladies' and children's departments will be added to the usual reading rooms, gymnasium, swimming pools, recreation grounds, lounge rooms, etc., enabling the whole family to indulge in these privileges.

Our home community will benefit especially from this club, formed as a headquarters for all movements of a national scope or a patriotic character. Such a home for the active Army and Navy officers will influence the Navy to base here and spend its $75,000,000 or more annually in Southern California. National and international notables will in consequence be more frequent visitors to Los Angeles and the metropolis of the Southwest will expand into the cosmopolitan capital of the Pacific.

In addition this Army and Navy Club will afford a common meeting ground for officials from every branch of the national service and the thinkers and planners who are developing the resources of Western America. The benefits of such co-ordination in times of peace are incalculable. In case of war it would prove a powerful agency for mobilizing both our industrial and military forces.

Opening the doors of a club, organized on so high a plane of social hospitality, to representative foreign visitors will induce them to place a higher valuation on American courtesy and American good will, a precedent not to be despised in cementing friendly relationships with sister nations. In fact, every phase of the new Army and Navy Club will tend to stimulate patriotic service and inculcate true American ideals.

But the finest reason for the co-operation of Southern California in the building of a clubhouse for the 10,000 or more Army and Navy officers at present without any suitable recognition of their needs in this essential particular is that our duty to our government and our flag permits us to do no less. Not what the Army and Navy can do for Los Angeles, but what Los Angeles can do for the Army and Navy is the call that should have irresistible force with every loyal Californian. President Coolidge, Secretary of War Weeks and Secretary of the Navy Wilbur have accepted honorary memberships and have promised to help promote its patriotic purpose. There should be no doubt as to what Los Angeles will do.

HOT DOGS HERE
A resourceful paragrapher suggests that, instead of "Stop, Look and Listen" signs, the railways make this announcement at the crossings: "Hot Dogs Here."

This would bring all cars to a dead stop without hard feelings. Sensitive nerves would not be racked at the approaches. There would also be sufficient time for any suspicious members of the party to make full investigation.

Youths would cease to race with the limited; for the zest of the race would be absorbed by the sign. Railway crossings would become resorts instead of shambles.

Furthermore, all this would be along the line of modern educational ideas and the Montessori system. At present the method of notification of the approach of trains is old-fashioned. It is not in harmony with any up-to-date philosophy to cry "Don't." This but stimulates men to take chances. It is now proper to seek for some delectable substitute and then sweetly say "Do." In this specific case the mere suggestion, "Hot Dogs Here," will have a soothing and pleasant effect.

The idea might be further developed. The company could install its own stands on its own lands under the Harvey or some other system. And, instead of having indemnity factories, the railways would have vast sources of revenue.

The idea might even be expanded for city traffic signals. A hot-dog stand at every corner would prevent jaywalking. It would act as a magnet to draw traffic to a focus at the legal point. This would automatically eliminate many police and thus reduce taxes. In the interests of economy the traffic officers might be employed by the city to serve the stands, thus making the position self-supporting.

We hesitate to suggest further innovation; but it widens into limitless possibilities. Groundhog day might even come into its own and be celebrated as a national institution.

Just About It

BOOK SELLING IN SPAIN

When a novelist hungers for fame,
In the land of the brave and the free;
When he hopes to awaken acclaim,
A snappy best-seller writes he.
The publisher boosts it for all it is worth,
The critics all rip it to pieces,
And soon it is sold to the ends of the earth,
And the writer gets richer than Croesus.

In Spain, when a novelist writes
A book, it will bring him no pelf,
Unless he goes out and excites
The interest of readers himself.
Emotional boosts and sarcastic reviews
Do not serve in the least to promote it,
Until the dear public is thrilled by the news
Of the deeds of the fellow that wrote it.

Ibanez, for instance, each day
Strolls into the palace alone,
Tells the King he is getting too gay,
And ought to be chucked off the throne.
He urges the people to come and support
The great but extinct constitution,
Suggesting by way of a live outdoor sport
A glorious red revolution.

Then he moves from Alfonso's domains,
Sits down by the murmuring brooks,
And counts up the incoming gains
That are made by the sale of his books.
These strenuous methods of writing appear
To go great in monarchial nations,
But if they were needful as boosts over here,
Our books would have small circulations.

EXPERTS NEEDED
Floyd Collins has not survived his imprisonment in Sand Cave, near Cave City, Ky. With all entrances blocked he was a doomed man.

There will be a disposition on the part of some to say that fate intervened. Fate always intervenes when people do not think. Behind the question of family troubles; behind the crumbling tunneled roof and the fumbled attempts at rescue, lies the fact that no expert was called when an expert would have been of service. That rescue job from the beginning has been a job for a miner, an engineer, or better still a mining engineer or a sapper, accustomed to such work. It needed an expert, that's all.

If an expert had been called and put in charge Collins would be a free man. But amateurs, however well intentioned, have a way of messing things up so that when an expert does take charge of a job his work is twice as hard.

The same rule holds all the way through, whether it's sinking a shaft or sinking a battleship.

THE EASIEST WAY
An Ohio man hanged himself because the world did not come to an end on the promised day. After all, he has found the way to achieve results. Those who want the world to come to an end may have their way—so far as they are concerned—by turning on the gas or taking a snifter of wood alcohol. What happens to others does not matter. If they foolishly persist in carrying on the world that is their business.

NOBODY KNOWS

Chiefs in state write a slate,
Candidates selected;
Public speakers, office-seekers
Rush to be elected;
Crisis grave—parties rave—
Politicians spout—
We don't know, you don't know,
They don't know, no one knows
What it's all about!

War at hand, three meals banned,
Gas masks fixed each head on;
Bombs passed 'round, bugles sound,
Off to Armageddon!
Hark, the drum! Patriots come,
Put the foe to rout!
We don't know, you don't know,
They don't know, no one knows
What it's all about!

Crowded court, lots of sport,
Famous case to handle;
Tense veins throbbing, sisters sobbing,
Big names, blood and scandal;
Judge is muzzled, jury puzzled,
Verdict still in doubt—
We don't know, you don't know,
They don't know, no one knows
What it's all about!

Come new creeds, thick as weeds,
Mystic, weird advisers;
Occult thinkers, Bible tinkers,
Psychoanalyzers;
Old truths changed, minds deranged,
Faith turned inside out—
We don't know, you don't know,
They don't know, no one knows
What it's all about!

EN PASSANT

BY J. J. LOWMAN

She is a woman of great erudition and very pronounced in York and Los Angeles literary circles. She told me this week that the great danger is in the summer. She had seen the spring was dead and cold—it seemed hopeless—yet a winter and all was well again; but in the summer a single hour and rich fields lie dead and broken.

She went on to tell me it was so with many of us mortals. The spring of life may seem hopeless. It is like the tears of a child, but when in the summer of your life there is a man or woman for whose sake you would give up home and country, would leave father, mother, brothers, sisters——

Be honest. Has this ever happened to you?

He has only been here six months. Constantly does he contrast his old eastern home and the spirit of the people here in Los Angeles.

He told me that he thought that the spirit that prevailed here was to live and let live. That back in his town people still had the first $5 note they ever earned tucked away somewhere in a teapot.

There still remained a certain loyalty to his old home town, however. He claimed that his little town had a charm all its own. For more than 200 years the town had taken this as a matter of course. He went on to tell me that the people were just five-foot-five kind of people. That they worked and played and poked their noses into other people's business just as is done here in Los Angeles.

He told me that particular attention was always given to antecedents and the Dun and Bradstreet ratings were considered of vital import.

But it seems that in this God-given atmosphere of quiet and peace there was no calm security. Greed and envy, enmity and maliciousness seemed the whole motif.

From their beds kindness and the spirit of love had been divorced, for their laws unto themselves were inexorable and irrevocable.

It would be impossible, he continued, to tell these far eastern people of the spirit of brotherly love that exists in Los Angeles, the cordial, friendly atmosphere that prevails and permeates.

He was fed up with all the artificialities of life in the East. He didn't care about Hollywood or the industrial and commercial enterprises. But he felt that Los Angeles should take as its slogan: "You pass this way but once. To a stranger within our gates we are kindly and hospitable and we will act toward these strangers in a far, far better way than we have ever done before."

Without fail, every morning for two years Tony has brought me my Times.

He is a most lovable little chap, so the other day I asked him to tell me something of his life.

He is always up before dawn and at prayer; has his breakfast, then runs his mother's errands. There is the distribution of his morning papers; school until noon, dinner in haste; for there are dishes to wash and pans to scrape; school again and then evening papers to peddle.

Long after dark his supper, a chat or story with his mother over her knitting; night prayers and then to bed. Tony was too old to play. A child of 10, you say? As if age had anything to do with years!

When other children were at their games Tony pondered gravely upon the question of rent money or paper money, and he and his mother laid their heads together like a pair of old cronies, busily reckoning by what means and schemes and devices they might lay by a little each day.

There were times, Tony told me, during the days before the rent fell due when the mother's laughter, which came readily and often, would subside midway and end in a sigh. Then she would open the big drawer and draw forth from under the linen the little gray bag containing the rent money. Tony would watch anxiously, and a dull, gnawing ache, whose name was care, though he did not yet know it, crept into his heart, for the rent money meant a full bag and the mother, loosening the string, disclosed a great ebb therein. When food was precious and clothes were not to be had at all Tony learned the bitterness of want.

But Tony was well and fit and his mother, through her tears, clicked her needles and sat twinkling and thanked God that her boy was in good health and would live long.

This is why Tony, my little paper boy of Los Angeles, never played.

Recently, a friend of mine and I had lunch at the Marine Cafe. Very good lunch it was, too, and quite reasonable, otherwise I would not have eaten there.

In one of the Pullman sections sat a lady and gentleman. The woman did not hurt one's eyes in looking at her; she was, in fact, quite delightful and vivacious.

That they were both married—but not to each other—was at once in evidence, for they were too deeply interested.

As my friend and I started for the door a gentle tap on the shoulder of my friend, profuse apologies for intrusion and, ahem—would she—ahem kindly not mention the fact that she had witnessed the little luncheon tete a tete—ahem.

The gentleman was assured that his little indiscretion, as he termed it, would readily be forgotten. But why an indiscretion?

The man was to be envied, for she was a glorious creature, truly. Things have come to a fine point, I thought, when a man and woman cannot break bread together. It was excruciatingly funny; and it set me to thinking where otherwise I would never have given the matter a second thought. The poor boob. It is none of my business, but, do you know, I do w-o-n-d-e-r.

OFFICER SEEKS TO FOIL HOLD-UP

Desperadoes Open Fire When Remner Hurries Up

P. G. Watson, Shot in Lung, Dies in Hospital

Robber Believed Wounded is Sought by Police

Paul G. Watson, 30 years of age, mortally wounded in a gun duel between two bandits who sought to rob him and a police officer who hastened to block the robbery, died yesterday morning at the General Hospital as detectives combed the city for the pair of gunmen.

The slain man, an employee of the Southern California Edison Company, was halted by the two killers late Monday night at Avenue 47 and York Boulevard. The desperadoes were in an automobile.

BANDITS OPEN FIRE

As they stepped out of the machine and trained their guns on the victim, Patrolman Remner turned the corner, noticed at a glance what was occurring and raced toward the bandits. They immediately opened fire on the officer and the victim. Watson fell to the sidewalk with a bullet through his lung.

The officer, drawing his own gun, fired repeatedly at the gunmen. They sped to their car. One, apparently hit, stumbled and fell forward. His companion, firing as rapidly as he could at the oncoming officer, stooped over, picked up his companion and helped him to the machine, which sped away.

SEEK WOUNDED MAN

Watson, who lives in Long Beach, was hurried to the Receiving Hospital where he received emergency treatment. Later he was removed to the General Hospital, where he died of his wounds.

Patrolman Remner is convinced that the bandit who fell was struck by one of his bullets and a sharp lookout is being maintained by police on hospitals and roominghouses in the belief that the wounded gunmen will be forced to apply for medical attention in a short time.

KNIGHTS TO HAVE BISHOP AT BANQUET

Rt. Rev. John J. Cantwell Will Address Columbus Order in Patriotic Affair

All reservations for the banquet to be given by the Fourth Degree Knights of Columbus at the Biltmore at 7 p.m. next Sunday will close tomorrow night. These banquet tickets may be obtained at the Knights of Columbus Auditorium at Sixth and South Flower streets.

The banquet will be one of the important features of the three-day patriotic celebration to be conducted in this city by the Knights, beginning with church services at the cathedral, Second and South Main streets, next Sunday morning at 10 o'clock, and ending with a big charity ball Tuesday night at the Ambassador Auditorium. B. J. Leonard, Master of the Fourth Degree of the Knights of Columbus, will welcome the guests at the banquet.

It was announced last night by Mr. Leonard that the speakers at the banquet will be Rt. Rev. John J. Cantwell, bishop of the diocese of Los Angeles and San Diego; Joseph Scott, Knight of St. Gregory; former United States Senator Frank P. Flint; Admiral Henry Zigemier, U.S.S. Arizona, who will be a guest with his staff, and Maj. George Ruhlen, Jr., commanding Fort McArthur. The toastmaster will be Thomas F. White, State Deputy of the Knights of Columbus for California. A special program will be given by Harry Girard's Quartet.

Charles F. Dufrane, Mrs. Arnold Burkelman and H. William Doyle are chairmen of various reception and banquet committees for the event. Tickets for the charity ball may be obtained from Chairman M. W. Purcell at his offices in the Laughlin Building or at the Knights of Columbus Auditorium.

Engineers Honor Mulholland and Gen. Washington

A celebration in honor of the memory of the first American engineer, George Washington, and in tribute to the local engineer who is deemed to have rendered the most distinguished service to the community will be given by the Los Angeles Chapter of the American Association of Engineers at 8:15 p.m. Friday evening at the Athletic Club.

William Mulholland, builder of the Aqueduct, will be the guest of honor at the banquet and celebration. He has been designated by a special committee as the engineer who has done most for the city through his work in completing surveys and plans for bringing additional water to the city from the Colorado River.

The local celebration will be part of a festival by engineers throughout the nation. During the week virtually every chapter in the country will broadcast over the radio the part played by the professional engineer in the development of the community in which he resides. Each community also will honor the one engineer deemed to have rendered the most meritorious service during the preceding year.

TWO ROB HOLLYWOOD OIL STATION MANAGER

Entering an oil station at Hollywood Boulevard and Van Ness avenue late Monday night with drawn revolvers, two youthful bandits held up and robbed the attendant. W. E. Lange, of 370, detectives of the Hollywood Police Station were told shortly after the robbery. Both hold-up men wore black handkerchiefs across the lower part of their faces, Lange declared.

The Crime Against the Child of Three

Mothers are usually careful to wash the skin of very young babies with a pure, mild soap specially prepared for the baby's tender skin.

But when the child has grown to two or three years, this special care often ceases, and any old soap is thought good enough.

The skin of a child is soft, sensitive and tender until six or eight, sometimes longer.

It is therefore important to avoid soaps that are harsh, alkaline or rancid. It is as much a crime to use such soaps on the child of three as it would be on a new-born baby.

For all children, use Castolay, The Modern Castile Soap, which has all the good qualities of old, genuine Castile, and advantages that Castile at its best never had. It lathers freely, rinses quickly.

New Facial Tone Powder Not Affected By Perspiration

This entirely new kind of cold cream powder immediately blends so perfectly with the natural coloring, makes the pores invisible—and stays on until you want to take it off! Perspiration won't affect it—won't come through and cause an ugly shine. Yet it's so fine in texture, you can't detect it from the skin! Spreads evenly, suits any complexion, gives a marvelously soft, velvety complexion. We carry Mello-pie Powder, as it is called—come in and get it today. SOCIETY

BY JUANA NEAL LEVY

The wedding of Miss Kathryn Emery, attractive daughter of Mrs. Frank Whitney Emery of Pasadena, to Reese Hale Taylor, son of Mr. and Mrs. Waller Taylor of Harvard Boulevard, will be one of the charmingly arranged affairs of the late afternoon, the ceremony being read by Rt. Rev. Bishop Joseph Horsfell Johnson at the family residence on Hillcrest avenue, with only the immediate family and a few close friends attending. Mrs. Emery will give her daughter in marriage and there will be no attendants on the bride, but John Milner will serve Mr. Taylor as best man. After the ceremony Mr. Taylor will take his bride for an extended wedding trip and after their return they will make their home temporarily at the Emery home until their own plans are completed.

For Bride-Elect

Another charmingly arranged affair of the day will be the tea with which Miss Ruth Dockweiler and Miss Rosario Dockweiler are entertaining at the home of their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Isidor B. Dockweiler on West Adams, in honor of their prospective sister-in-law, Miss Angella Irene McManus, who will become the bride of John Francis Dockweiler soon after Easter. Spring flowers and foliage in profusion will be used in the house and tea-table decorations, fruit blossoms predominating. Two hundred and fifty invitations have been issued and the hours will be from 3 to 5 o'clock. Receiving with the charming young hostesses and honor guest will be Mrs. Isidor B. Dockweiler, Mrs. William Kenyon Young (Mary Gertrude Dockweiler,) Mrs. Thomas A. J. Dockweiler (Katherine Stearns,) and Mrs. Thomas H. McManus, who will also preside at the tea and coffee urns.

Going Abroad

Mrs. Melville G. Eshman of West Twenty-seventh street and her attractive daughter, Miss Caroline Louise Eshman, are leaving the first of the week for New York City, planning to sail aboard the Olympic March 7 on a five months' trip abroad. They will visit in Germany, Italy, France, Switzerland and take a run over to England and the British Isles.

Luncheon-Musicale

Mrs. Walter Perry Story is planning a delightful affair for Saturday afternoon, March 7, when she is entertaining with a luncheon and musicale at the Biltmore.

Studio Dinner

Mr. and Mrs. William Small of Beacon Hill, Boston, were guests of honor at a dinner given by Mrs. A. B. Wenzel in her studio, 3002 Wilshire Boulevard, Saturday evening. Covers were arranged for eight guests.

Double Wedding

Saturday in the Little Church of the Flowers a double wedding took place with Rev. John M. Schaefle officiating, Miss Mae Ackerman becoming the bride of Eric C. MacIntyre and Miss Dorothy Ellen Towne plighting her troth to Donald MacIntyre. One hundred guests witnessed the ceremony. Mrs. Cooper sang "I Love You Truly," preceding the ceremony, while Williams Gibbs presided at the organ.

Morning Musicales

Mrs. Thomas G. Patten of North Vine street, Hollywood, formerly of New York City, is responsible for a series of morning musicales which will be given in the music room of the Biltmore, under the auspices of the Southwest Museum, which will be the beneficiary for its upbuilding of the maintenance fund with which to carry on civic educational work. The opening concert of the series will be on Saturday morning, the 21st inst., at 11 o'clock, when Florence Easton will give the program. Immediately following Mrs. Patten will entertain with a luncheon of forty covers to meet Miss Patten and her accompanists, Miss Eleanor Remick Warren of Lafayette Park Place.

Those sponsoring the musicales and active patrons and patronesses are Mr. and Mrs. Allan C. Balch, Mr. and Mrs. Hancock Banning, Dr. and Mrs. Frank Barham, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Batchelder, Dr. and Mrs. Remsen D. Bird, Mrs. Norman Bridge, Dr. and Mrs. Ernest Albert Bryant, Rt. Rev. Bishop John J. Cantwell, Dr. and Mrs. Joseph J. Carter, Mr. and Mrs. Eli F. Clark, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Chandler, Mr. and Mrs. Louis M. Cole, Mr. and Mrs. John S. Cravens, Mr. and Mrs. J. Dabney Day, Mrs. Ernest Dickey, Mr. and Mrs. Donald H. Dickey, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Dickson, Mrs. Susan M. Dorsey, Mr. and Mrs. William May Garland, Mr. and Mrs. James M. Hixon, Marco Hellman, Mrs. Albert Sherman Hoyt, Dr. and Mrs. Milbank Johnson, Mr. and Mrs. F. E. Keeler, Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Keller, Mr. and Mrs. F. Engagement Announced

Mr. and Mrs. William George Lane of Bushnell avenue, Altadena, formally announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Wilma Freda Lane, to Thomas Phillip Herbert. The news was told by Mrs. Lane at a luncheon given Saturday afternoon at the San Gabriel Country Club. Those included were Mrs. Mary C. Herbert, Mrs. George Wardner, Mrs. William Comstock, Mrs. William Swartz, Mrs. Lane, Miss Nenetzen Scullin, Miss Eleanor Friend, Miss Susan Welton, Miss Beatrice Differ, Miss Josephine Oakford, Miss Loraine McDonald and Miss Lane. The bride-elect will be the honor guest at numerous attractive prenuptial affairs. Mr. Herbert is the son of Mrs. Mary C. Herbert of 3949½ Van Buren Place, Los Angeles. No date has been set for the wedding.

Going Abroad

Mr. and Mrs. John C. Bodger of 4087 Ingraham street left Wednesday for New York, where they are planning to sail aboard the Berengaria for a three months' sojourn in Europe. Their itinerary includes England, Scotland, France, Italy, Switzerland and Holland, returning to London from the continent in season to attend the annual flower show in May.

Eastern Trip

Mr. and Mrs. John Otis Haley of 112 South Manhattan Place left Monday for Miami, Fla., for a ten days' visit, before leaving for Washington, D. C., to enjoy the inaugural ball March 4, after which they will visit friends in New York and Boston. They are planning to return home by way of Canada and will be back about April 1.

Never stand the freshly washed milk bottles upside down. They will keep sweet and fresh if the air is permitted to enter them.

How Anyone Can Wear a Perfect Complexion

Many a famous beauty owes her lovely skin to ordinary mercolized wax. The secret of its success is very simple. Every woman has a beautiful complexion underneath—but alas! this young and healthy complexion is choked and concealed by the outer skin that has become dry and discolored. A little mercolized wax applied at night and washed off in the morning, gradually, easily, and imperceptibly dissolves away the old, muddy or blemished smart skin, and brings out all the beauty of the fresh, clear, spotless skin that has been lying underneath. The results are quick, and truly marvelous. Obtain an ounce of mercolized wax from your druggist and enjoy the wonderful complexion you really possess!—[Advertisement.

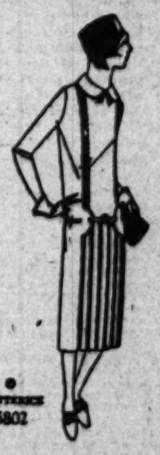
ARCHITECT TO LECTURE

An illustrated lecture on the new administrative center plan for Los Angeles as designed by the Allied Architects' Association, will be given by Edwin Bergstrom in the Touchstine auditorium, University of Southern California, tomorrow at 4 p.m. As Mr. Bergstrom is the president of the Allied Architects, much interest is attached to this lecture. Sumner P. Hunt, a member, will also make an address. The lecture, which is under the auspices of the department of architecture, will be open to the public.

FASHIONS & FOIBLES

by Shirley Sharon



BUTTERICK 5802

A divided front permits use to use the stripes beloved of youth in the lower part of a smart frock cut in one piece in back.

A RATHER unusual little frock of natural-colored batiste was shown recently in one of the smart Madison Avenue shops. Bands of castor-colored batiste were inserted in the front and stitched with tinsel thread. Striped batiste in castor and the natural color made the lower part of the front, and the narrow belt was of the plain batiste fastened with a small silt buckle. Almond-green flanged with stripes of green and gray would be delightful used in the same way, or one could use wool crepe, soft twill, etc. To be chic these frocks must fit the hip closely and should be worn short.

JUNIOR CLUB WOMEN

There is a great movement afoot to rope the girls into the women's clubs. They call them junior auxiliaries, and these girls really form a club within a club.

One large influential club in my city has the most flourishing junior auxiliary in the country. They brag about it. And they certainly are a bunch of delightful young girls. I should say that the idea works out very well—for the girls.

But something [illegible] intangible has happened to the women. From being [illegible] most lively, alert, [illegible] in the State, keenly [illegible] every modern movement, [illegible] curiously subdued, [illegible] lacking in "pep" [illegible]

And I believe the junior auxiliary is responsible. The girls collectively shepherd [illegible] dens, anxieties and [illegible] of motherhood.

TRAINING THE GIRLS

You see, the idea was [illegible] girls should be created [illegible] trained for the [illegible] —responsibilities that [illegible] theirs later on. But the [illegible] was to be alleviated [illegible] of fun and gayety [illegible] years.

So far so good. But it happened that pretty [illegible] fun and gayety is [illegible] youngsters, so that [illegible] gay occasions, the [illegible] feel very poignantly "[illegible] on." Not for a moment [illegible] escape the coldness [illegible] club motherhood.

Yet the whole [illegible] woman's club movement [illegible] founded upon the [illegible] created fine and [illegible] for older women, [illegible] raised their [illegible] term in home-making [illegible] new expand into other [illegible] varied interests. Or [illegible] childless women, [illegible] en, for whom public and [illegible] tual interests were [illegible] precious.

And the club women [illegible] who founded so well [illegible] for auxiliaries is "[illegible] the responsibilities and [illegible] not intellectual [illegible] theirs. They enjoyed [illegible] hood without clubs and [illegible] fluences. And they [illegible] club work with all the [illegible] of new interests [illegible] explore.

NOT REMINDED

They were not reminded [illegible] time that they were [illegible] and had left their [illegible] But that is [illegible] pened since the [illegible] junior auxiliaries. And [illegible] the honor of the [illegible] come to pass that the [illegible] merging (because [illegible] the oncoming [illegible]

Always, every day, the [illegible] against this other [illegible] age. Not one of [illegible] breathe it aloud, but [illegible] every year of their [illegible] the junior auxiliary [illegible]

The other [illegible] district has not [illegible] for auxiliary idea. And [illegible] ence is calling [illegible] club women of [illegible] youthful, [illegible] progressive in [illegible] the "youngest [illegible] interests and [illegible] and varied that [illegible] time to think of [illegible]

[illegible] So perhaps [illegible] reconsider the [illegible] junior auxiliary [illegible]

Are you getting all the coffee "mileage" you should? In other words—does your coffee money travel full distance—or does it stop half way?

THE money that buys "cheap" coffee doesn't go very far. It travels only half the coffee-distance. For two reasons: you don't get the full, fragrant flavor that makes coffee worth while and you have to use more coffee to get the strength you like. After all—

You buy coffee by the pound but you drink it by the cup. So it's not so much the cost-per-pound as the cost-per-cup that counts!

Measured cup by cup M·J·B always travels the full coffee-distance. It is extra-rich in flavor and strength to start with. So that a little goes a long way. And then—it is vacuum packed by the patented M·J·B process. So that every bit of this extra strength gets home to your coffee cup.

There is a very simple way to test all this: Buy a can of M·J·B. Use a little less to the cup. You'll still be rewarded with a rich, full-flavored drink that no "cheap" coffee could hope to attain. And you'll find, as so many other shrewd home-managers have found, that—

M·J·B is cheapest in the long run because it gives you the most coffee "mileage" for your money.

HOUSEHOLD SUGGESTIONS

The New Spool

So often a new spool of [illegible] will break continually when put on the sewing machine. Place the spool in a box on the floor right beneath the usual place for it and thread the machine. Let it rattle around in the box for a while you are stitching. In this way as these first rather loose yards come off the spool can be reeled into the machine and the cotton will not break.

Household Washer

The radiator brush is just the article to clean the coil spring on the bed.

Oil of pennyroyal sprinkled in places infested by ants will drive them away.

Plan closely, but not so closely that you are uncertain whether you have enough.

Pay for best quality fabrics to be certain that you get them. Don't buy from the fakir and expect to get things as cheap as at the little corner store.

One Household Gem

Sour milk will bleach yellow linen materials.

Silver and steel articles should be dried as soon after washing as possible.

Thirty the leaky washboiler makes splendid kindling wood for the kitchen range.

Rub baby's bruises with [illegible] as soon as the accident occurs; they will not turn black and blue.

Keep It Dark

Burned food means a [illegible] cook. And if you should by change spoil something in burning, don't tell everyone about it. We are not allowed to talk about our good points in this world and why should we spoil our chances for broadcasting? Just make the evidence before your return home for dinner and do something else. You are not to repeat the performance for years to come.

Don't Overdo It

A few green plants in the [illegible] give a cheerful appearance, but don't take the most cheerful window in your home and crowd it full of tables and tabourets holding pot after pot of greens. Take one or two if you wish, but leave room for big comfortable chairs in the sunny spot so that people may enjoy your home, not just your plants.

Safer Packages

Perhaps you have found on Christmas enough through experience that the wise method of mailing packages parcel post is to wrap them in two separate papers, the inside paper having the address on it as well as the outside and tied just as securely. The destination is a great deal safer if three papers should be used.

LAST WORD

the girls.

But something mysterious and intangible has happened to these women. From being one of the most lively, alert, spirited groups in the State, keenly interested in every modern movement, behold them curiously subdued, mild, strangely lacking in "pep" these days.

And I believe the junior auxiliary is responsible. That club has collectively shouldered the burdens, anxieties and responsibilities of motherhood.

TRAINING THE GIRLS

You see, the idea was that the girls should be coaxed to be trained for the club—and for the responsibilities (that will be theirs later on. But this training was to be alleviated with plenty of fun and gayety suitable to their years.

So far so good. But it has happened that pretty well all the fun and gayety is exclusive to the youngsters, so that even as a young woman, the elder woman feel very poignantly "older than." Not for a moment can they escape the contrast, forced upon them by club motherhood.

Yet the whole success of the woman's club movement is founded upon the fact that it created fine and worthy interests for older women, women who had raised their families, served a term in home-making, and now expand into wider and more varied interests. Or for the childless women, unmarried women, for whom public and intellectual interests were necessary and precious.

And the club women of [illegible] who founded so well, had no [illegible] auxiliaries to "train" them for the responsibilities and the important intellectual pastimes that are theirs. They enjoyed their freedom without clubs and club influences. And they graduated into club work with all the enthusiasm of new enterprise, fresh fields to explore.

NOT REMINDED ABOUT

They were not reminded at the time that they were getting old and had left their youth behind. But that is exactly what happened since the advent of the junior auxiliaries. And, perhaps, the honor of the women, they come to pass that they are not merging themselves on behalf of the oncoming youth.

Always, every day, they are [illegible] against this odious comparison. Not one of them would breathe it aloud, but they do every year of their life, every day the junior auxiliary is in evidence.

The other largest club in this district has not adopted a junior auxiliary idea. And the reason is quite extraordinary. The club women of advanced age are youthful, blithesome, gay, progressive in spirit. It is [illegible] the "youngest" club in town, [illegible] interests and influence are [illegible] and varied that they haven't [illegible] time to think of age.

While the club with the junior auxiliary can't quite think of much else but age. It is kept before them all the time. Its duties to the juniors, the necessity for giving a high example, weighs heavily on them. Their service is so exacting, youth—youth, youth, youth, precious junior auxiliary must [illegible] be its first consideration.

Of course, it ought to have [illegible] out the other way round. The girls should have kept the club women young, made them [illegible] again themselves. But [illegible] just as an older woman looks [illegible] or dressed too youthfully [illegible] older women feel when they are trying to enthuse with the youthful interests.

So perhaps it is just as well to reconsider the question of the junior auxiliary.

CORONADO SALAD

Mix one and a half cupfuls of flaked, cold, cooked fish with two cupfuls of diced celery, half a cupful of chopped olives, one chopped hard-boiled egg, two tablespoonfuls of capers, one tablespoonful of lemon juice and half a cupful of French dressing; pile on lettuce-covered plates, mask with mayonnaise and sprinkle with chopped parsley and chopped pimentos.

CHEESE BISCUITS

Sift two cupfuls of sifted flour with four level teaspoonfuls of baking powder and half a teaspoonful of salt; rub into these three tablespoonfuls of butter, and when well mixed add one cupful of grated cheese; mix to a smooth dough with three-quarers of a cupful of milk; place on a floured board, pat out to half an inch in thickness, cut with small biscuit cutter, placed on a buttered pan half an inch apart and bake in a moderate oven twelve minutes.

ORANGE PUDDING

Cover two cupfuls of fine bread crumbs with three-quarters of a cupful of sugar and three cupfuls of milk and let stand half an hour; mix into these three well-beaten eggs, half a teaspoonful of salt, two tablespoonfuls of grated orange rind, three peeled and sliced oranges, one tablespoonful of lemon juice and three tablespoonfuls of melted butter; mix well, pour into a buttered pudding dish and bake in a moderate oven forty minutes.

PEA SOUP

Place in a saucepan three cupfuls of cooked peas, three cupfuls of water, two tablespoonfuls of butter rubbed to a smooth paste with one and a half tablespoonfuls of flour, one slice of onion and one sprig of mint; stir and cook thirty minutes, rub through a sieve into a clean saucepan, reheat, season with salt, paprika and a little mace and serve with croutons.

FRICADELLES

Run one pound of veal free from all fat and gristle through the fine knife of the meat chopper. Soak two cupfuls of bread crumbs in water, squeeze dry and mix with the chopped veal, add half a cupful of creamed butter, two well-beaten eggs, a seasoning of salt, pepper and nutmeg and one tablespoonful of onion juice. Mix well, divide in twelve even-sized pieces, roll in round balls, flatten evenly and brown on both sides in hot butter, set the pan in the oven and finish cooking. Cover a platter with cooked, drained and buttered noodles, cover the noodles with the cooked fricadelles and pour over all a Robert sauce.

HAWAIIAN DAINTY

Soak two tablespoonfuls of granulated gelatine in one-third of a cupful of cold water for ten minutes and add to it half a cupful of boiling pineapple juice and half a cupful of boiling water; stir until the gelatine is dissolved, add half a cupful of sugar and four tablespoonfuls of lemon juice; set in cold place until the mixture starts to thicken, beat for three minutes and beat in one cupful of chopped cherries and one cupful of sliced pineapple, one cupful diced marshmallows and half a cupful of finely chopped walnut meats; add the stiffly beaten whites of two eggs and beat until it will hold its shape. Pile in stem glasses, set in the ice box for one hour and serve with cream.

Diet and Health

By Lulu Hunt Peters, M.D.

TOO-TOO-THIN? (Part 3)

If you are underweight, and if there is nothing organically wrong with you, then you are undereating for your needs.

"Doctor, I can't eat any more!" I hear you say. "When I eat a certain amount, I'm full and I can't eat another mouthful!"

But you can. You are going to eat several mouthfuls more than you want at each meal. You are gradually going to increase your calories until you are getting 500 to 1000 more than your maintenance diet, and if you do that you are going to gain from one-eighth to one-quarter of a pound a day (one pound of fat equals 4000 calories) just as our overweight friend is going to reduce by doing the opposite.

You can continue to eat the vegetables and fruits that you are so fond of—you need them for the vitamins and mineral elements—but you have also got to learn to like milk, cream, nuts, cheese and some sweets.

Every adult should have at least two glasses of milk a day. It is needed for its complete protein and calcium. You can take with benefit a quart or even more each day. In fact, you can go on an exclusive milk diet and if you get the rest that is prescribed with the milk diet, you will probably gain very rapidly. Of course, that would mean that you would have to have sufficient milk to make your calories run over your needs. One quart of milk is 640 calories.

On a milk diet, as high as six or seven quarts are given, a certain amount taken every half hour. If you haven't the time or are not situated so that you can take the milk diet, then you can certainly add more milk to your regular diet. You can take a glass between meals and one before going to bed, and you can drink milk instead of tea and coffee at your meals. If you do not like milk, learn to like it. You can take malted milk or cocoa or milk shake, if you prefer these.

Another good gaining food is egg yolks. They are high in iron, and you are undoubtedly anemic and need more than you are getting. An egg yolk (fifty to sixty C.'s) in one-half glass of orange juice (fifty C.'s) after each meal, will add over 300 calories to your day's rations. After you are used to taking one egg yolk after each meal, take two at a time. You can take the whole egg, too, if you like, and if it is more convenient. If you do this, you will have to cut down somewhat on your meals, because the food principle of egg white is practically pure protein.

Still another good gaining food is nuts. (How we overweighters love 'em!) An ounce of the meat part of nuts is approximately 200 C.'s. You can add two or three ounces of nuts a day to your diet. (Eight walnuts, twenty double peanuts, twenty almonds, weigh about an ounce for each lot.) One of our followers wrote that she gained her wanted pounds by simply eating a handful of nuts extra after each meal.

You can eat more whole grain breads, and butter, and more potatoes. A slice of bread, one-half-inch thick, is 100 calories, a pat of butter, 100 calories and a moderate-sized potato is 100.

How many calories do you need? It depends upon your activities, and age, mostly. From fifteen to twenty calories per pound of normal body weight is the rule for the adult.

Those of you who are thin are as a rule too active mentally and physically. You use a lot of energy and many times you use it unnecessarily. Aren't you a great talker? Talking requires a great deal of energy. Try to delete the details—they're usually uninteresting anyway—and stop talking while you are eating. Pay more attention to your food. You never find a fat person who talks much during mealtimes. He can't—he's too busy.

You should know something about the caloric value of foods, so that you can have an intelligent idea of this question. We have a booklet on the subject which also gives direction for gaining and losing, which you may have by sending a self-addressed, stamped envelope and 10 cents in stamps with your request. While you are waiting for this, go to the library or bookstore and get a good book on the subject. There is one that has a key to the calories, and that is said to be the most interesting.

I'm not through with you. I'll come back next week. Eat.

(Tomorrow: Answers to Correspondents)

My Dear Followers: When sending for material which we offer you, please remember to inclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope bearing your full name and address. The question of reducing and gaining is the only one for which you must inclose 10 cents in stamps extra. Address your letters to me in care of this paper. Make them as brief as possible, not over 100 words, and be sure to write them legibly with ink. Please sign your name as evidence of good faith—we will not use it in any way. Remember it is impossible for me to diagnose for you or to answer you personally. I appreciate very much the beautiful letters you send me and regret it is impossible to give you individual advice. The questions you ask will be answered in the column as soon as possible. If they are of general interest. Don't forget the stamped, self-addressed envelope if you expect me to send you the information I have offered.

ACTIVITIES

Angeles Federation P.-T.A., Tenth District, California Congress of Mothers, will be conducted May 7 at the time of the annual convention. It is the custom to alternate the offices in the selection of the board, and this year there will be chosen first, third and fifth vice-presidents, recording secretary, financial secretary and auditor. Following is a list of the candidates: First vice-president, Mrs. W. W. Hoppa; third vice-president, Mrs. T. H. Eckerson, Mrs. W. A. Miller, Mrs. George W. Walker; fifth vice-president, Mrs. Gorden Groves, Mrs. Mary Maxfield, Mrs. W. A. Meek; recording secretary, Mrs. M. A. Eaton, Mrs. G. W. Pierce, Mrs. F. J. Schwankovsky; financial secretary, Mrs. Robert L. Burns, Mrs. Morgan Galbreth; auditor, Mrs. E. M. Bibe and Mrs. Jesse Belle Burres.

Benefit Film Show

A picture show will be given at John Muir, Jr. High School, Sixtieth and Vermont streets, Friday, both afternoon and evening, in the school auditorium for the benefit of the school orchestra. The pictures to be shown are Norma Talmadge in "Smiling Through," and a Spat family comedy, called "Roughing It."

Lecture and Luncheon

The Parent-Teacher Association of the Santa Monica Boulevard school will give a luncheon at 241 South Hill street, Thursday. A lecture will be given by Mrs. Kate Vaughn.

Freshen the Curtains

No doubt many of your window draperies are now showing an accumulation of dust. Select a clear windy day and hang them out in the air for a while. It is surprising how much of the dirt will be removed and how fresh your hanging will look.

LETTERS TO GO IN BARREL LOTS

Friendship Drive Taken Up by Santa Ana With Vim

Other Cities Join in Move to Offset Attacks in East

Intensive Campaign to Open Monday in San Diego

Santa Ana is going to send Friendship letters back East in barrel lots. Barrels placarded with a slogan adopted by the Santa Ana Advertising Club, "Stop the Eastern Wail with Santa Ana Mail," will be spotted all over the city for the week ending March 4 next. Posters prominently displayed at all busy street corners will urge Santa Ana citizens to write that letter and drop it in a barrel before the week is out.

Speakers from the Advertising Club will make the round of luncheon clubs before the Santa Ana drive begins, explaining the purpose of the Friendship Contest and impressing upon their hearers the necessity of making Santa Ana's part in it as impressive as possible. The Santa Ana Chamber of Commerce has placed its organization at the service of letter writers seeking facts, with which to refute hurtful propaganda widely published against the interests of Southern California.

The Santa Ana Register is backing the campaign to make friends for California with editorial encouragement and daily news items. The Loyal Knights of the Round Table of Santa Ana have passed resolutions "urgently requesting" their members to lend a hand. School Superindentent Cranston has promised 100 per cent co-operation from his teaching staff.

ENLISTS BANKERS

J. M. Woodward, president of the Orange County Bankers' Association, at its last meeting urged all member bankers to enlist in the campaign to offset widespread misrepresentation of their home State.

"You can count on the hearty support of the Lions Club in this very worthy activity," writes Harold E. Wahlberg, president of the Santa Ana Lions in an open letter to J. P. Baumgartner, editor of the Santa Ana News.

In Anaheim, the Orange County Plain Dealer, emulating the Santa Ana drive, is working for the contest with the aid of leaders among the service clubs, business and civic organizations.

Both the Fullerton Tribune and the Fullerton News are giving valuable assistance. Edgar Johnson, editor of the Tribune, is a prominent Kiwanian and Ralph Brown, editor of the News, is a prominent Rotarian. Besides urging on the contest in their newspapers, they will make four-minute speeches in its behalf at luncheon clubs.

INTENSIVE DRIVE

San Diego will begin an intensive campaign for more letters, starting next Monday. With the support of both the San Diego Union and the San Diego Tribune, fraternal organizations, State societies, luncheon and service clubs, literary, social, civic and business organizations are lining up the machinery for an organized letter drive.

"More letters to be read back East, not more resolutions to be read here," is the terse advice now being given to all new entrants.

Enthusiastic commendation of the idea behind the contest and of the efficacy of the contest as a vehicle for that idea are meeting its progress throughout the southern counties. Each community which takes up the campaign for serious examination soon sees that what helps one helps all and that each in working for the State can work with equal reward for itself.

"Best idea ever suggested; if we never get together on anything else, we ought to get together on this; the personal touch is the thing, you can't beat personal letters from friend to friend"—these are the spontaneous expressions that arise, as the scope of the contest unfolds.

VILLA SITES LAID OUT

Fifty of 150 at Santa Susana Club Have Been Selected

The laying out of villa sites at the Santa Susana Country Club, affiliated with the Commercial Club, began yesterday. The survey is being conducted by Cook & Hall, and is designed to have 150 villas when completed; fifty, it was said, have already been selected. Among the owners of villas are L. W. Hudelson, William Cole, W. D. Small, Peter Madsen, Alfred H. Smith, T. E. Morgan, Eugene J. Herman, Horace R. Carter, B. X. Dawson, Richard S. Jones, Fred L. Hunt, Henry De Rothschild, Robert Marsh and H. C. Shalppe.

MANY POSITIONS OPEN IN COUNTY'S SERVICE

Open competitive examinations to fill a large number of positions in the county service will be conducted by the County Civil Service Commission the latter part of this month and in March. Among the positions to be filled are those of deputy assessor of water craft, assistant captain of the detention camp, detention camp road foreman, field worker for the El Retiro School for Girls, agricultural teacher and secretary for the same school, sheet metal worker and steamfitter.

Further information and application blanks may be obtained upon application at the commission's offices, 1007 Hall of Records.

McAdoo to Build Summer Home in Las Alturas

William Gibbs McAdoo secured a $20,000 building permit in Santa Barbara yesterday and construction will be started later in the year of a home in Las Alturas, a suburb of that city.

Mr. McAdoo being unavailable yesterday, his secretary stated that the former Secretary of the Treasury did not contemplate giving up his residence in Berkeley Square.

"It's only a little summer place," said the secretary.

RULES AND PRIZES

IN "THE TIMES" FRIENDSHIP CONTEST

To encourage in every possible legitimate way the dissemination of the truth about Southern California as a means of combatting the false attacks on this section which have been widely circulated throughout America, the Los Angeles Times offers cash prizes as follows for the best letters setting forth the attractions of Southern California as a place to visit and to live:

For the best letter	$1000
For the next best letter	500
For the third best	250
For the fourth best	100
For the three next best $50 each or altogether	150
For the ten next best $25 each or altogether	250
For the twenty-five next best $10 each or altogether	250
For the fifty next best $5 each or altogether	250
For the 250 next best $1 each or altogether	250
Total, 342 prizes aggregating	$3000

JUNIOR DIVISION

For the best letter	$100
For the next best letter	50
For the third best	25
For the two next best $10 each or altogether	20
For the six next best $5 each or altogether	30
For the next twenty-five best, $1 each or altogether	25
Total, thirty-six prizes aggregating	$250
Grand total both divisions, 378 prizes aggregating	$3250

Following are the rules, The Times reserving the right to make additions and changes if any be found necessary to promote the best interests of the contest and its purposes:

(1.) The duration of the contest shall be from January 25 until March 10 at 6 p.m. Letter copies submitted in competition must be sent to the Prize Letter Editor, Los Angeles Times, Los Angeles, Cal. They may be mailed or deposited in the Prize Letter Box, main lobby, Times Building. No letter shall be eligible for a prize unless it has been deposited in the Prize Letter Box or postmarked on or before the date and hour specified.

(2.) The purpose of all letters submitted in this contest shall be to make friends for California, through a truthful presentation of her attractions. Contestants may write whatever in their judgment is best calculated to inspire a desire to visit or live here. The effectiveness of the letter, as a convincing communication from one friend to another, will be the principal consideration. For this reason, no letter should contain any reference to this contest.

(3.) All letters must be copies of bona fide originals which have been mailed to actual persons or to newspapers at correct addresses outside the State of California. In other words, write your letter, mail it to some one you know or to your home-town paper and send a copy to the Prize Letter Editor of The Times, Los Angeles. The genuineness of letters will be subject to check.

(4.) Every letter must bear the name and address of the person or paper to whom the original has been mailed, and the name and address of the writer. Put these on the letter itself; not on a separate sheet. Write on one side of the paper only.

(5.) All contestants must be persons now living in Southern California, that is, in Los Angeles, Orange, San Diego, Imperial, Riverside, San Bernardino, Ventura, Santa Barbara, San Luis Obispo, Tulare, Kings, Inyo or Kern counties. Temporary residents are eligible. It is not necessary to be a subscriber to The Times.

(6.) Letters may be of any length up to 1000 words.

(7.) Any contestant may write and submit copies of any number of letters during the life of the contest, but each original must be sent to a different addressee.

(8.) No employee of The Times nor any member of his or her family shall be eligible to compete.

JUNIOR DIVISION

(10.) Membership in the junior division of the contest shall be open to all letter-writers under 16 years of age.

(11.) Contestants entering the junior division shall be governed by the same rules formulated for the general contest.

(12.) Contestants entering the junior division shall be eligible both for the special prizes in that division and the larger prizes offered for the general contest. In addition to giving their names and addresses and the names and addresses of those to whom their letters have been mailed, junior contestants must state their correct age. Such statement will be subject to verification. All letters entered in this division must be so designated.

GET REPORT ON CONDUCT OF McCLARY

Commissioners Consider Charges of Refusal to Aid Auto Death Prosecution

The Police Commission yesterday received and took under advisement a report from Chief of Police Heath concerning the police findings in the death of Mrs. Winona Spencer Spear in an automobile accident and the prosecution of L. A. Duncan on a manslaughter charge, in which prosecution Capt. L. L. McClary is accused by the grand jury and the District Attorney's office of refusing to assist. Capt. McClary's statement was included in the report.

The grand jury recently submitted to the Police Commission a report on the case in which proper action was requested in an investigation of the attitude of Capt. McClary in assertedly refusing to cooperate in the prosecution.

Duncan, an electrical contractor, was indicted on a manslaughter charge following a collision on November 25, 1924, between his automobile and a truck on Ventura Boulevard. Mrs. Spear was a passenger in Duncan's car. Dep. Dist. Atty. Davis informed the grand jury that after a cursory investigation by Hollywood police Capt. McClary informed him he would take no further action in the case.

Chief Heath's report submitted to the Police Commission included, in addition to Capt. McClary's statement, reports by Inspector Chapman, Assistant Captain D. W. Longuevan, Detective Lieutenant McMahan, Lieut. Wallace and Officers Neece, Page, Nave and Thornberg.

HOLLYWOOD AGAINST TRANSFER OF McCLARY

The police commission yesterday received a petition signed by several thousand residents and business men of the Hollywood district asking that Capt. L. L. McClary be retained as commander of the Hollywood police division. Capt. McClary has been transferred to the new Newton-avenue Police Station. The commission took the position that the assignment of various officers of the department was entirely in the hands of the Chief of Police and the petition was filed.

DEPORTEES STARTED TO NATIVE COUNTRIES

E. M. Cline, immigration inspector, departed from Los Angeles yesterday in charge of twenty-four persons who have been ordered deported. They will be sent from New York to their native lands. Most of the deportees are seamen who deserted their ships in Los Angeles Harbor. Thirteen nationalities are represented. They are as follows: Greece, one; Holland, one; England, three; Germany, two; Egypt, one; France, two; Norway, one; Italy, five; Spain, two; Denmark, two; Ireland, two; Latvia, one, and Sweden, one.

CALIFORNIA MINE DATA IN DEMAND

Manufacturers All Over Country Seeking it, Espee Geological Man States

Eastern, as well as western, manufacturers are keenly desirous of obtaining detailed information concerning deposits of nonmetallic minerals in California used extensively in preparing many products.

This was emphasized today by C. M. Redfern of the geological department of the Southern Pacific Company in San Francisco, who is in Los Angeles conferring with railroad officials and business men.

Redfern attended a meeting conducted at noon in the Chamber of Commerce to consider ways and means for improving the mining industry of the State. He told how the Southern Pacific, anticipating this need, has established an industrial service bureau, which is acting as a clearinghouse for the dissemination of information about western commercial minerals.

The railroad is making a systematic survey of the mineral deposits of the West. This information has been assembled in lists which are sent to manufacturers throughout the country who use the various minerals in the making of their products.

Although the service was inaugurated only a few months ago, the demand for the information has been great. Interest shown in the sources of supply is indicative of a welcome improvement in the mining industry in the immediate future.

Redfern also conferred during the day with J. T. Saunders, assistant freight traffic manager, C. R. Smurr, industrial agent, and other Southern Pacific officials here.

Radio Dealers Get Hearing on Freight Rates

Southern California radio dealers and others interested in the fight against the 50 per cent increase in freight rates on radio supplies will be given an opportunity to place their arguments before the Interstate Commerce Commission at a hearing to be conducted in Los Angeles early in March, it was stated in a telegram received yesterday by A. G. Farquharson from the chief examiner of the commission in Washington, D. C.

The exact date for the hearing is to be set later.

The telegram followed a request by Farquharson for a hearing in Los Angeles as well as in Chicago and San Francisco, as announced previously.

Farquharson is secretary of the Radio Trade Association of Southern California. The commission has granted a 120-day stay of enforcement of the new rates, it was stated.

Phi Beta Kappa Officer Visiting Local Colleges

To make a week's tour of Southern California colleges and universities, Dr. Oscar W. Voorhees, secretary of the United Chapters of Phi Beta Kappa, national honorary scholarship fraternity, will live this week as the guest of President Bird of Occidental College. The climax of the visit will be the midwinter dinner of the Phi Beta Kappa Alumni in Southern California, Friday evening, at the University Club.

Dr. Voorhees has visited Whittier College. Today Dr. Voorhees will address the faculty of Occidental College. At 11:15 Thursday morning he will address the chapel assembly at Redlands University. In the evening, Gamma Chapter of California, of Pomona College will entertain him.

He will speak on Friday at the University of Southern California, and visit the Southern Branch of the University of California. On Saturday he will visit the California Institute of Technology and the Huntington Library.

Saturday evening he will be entertained at a dinner of the Delta Upsilon fraternity alumni, at the Sigma Fraternity house, Occidental College.

ASK TRAFFIC SIGNAL

Property owners on Crenshaw Boulevard yesterday asked the City Council to install an automatic traffic signal at the intersection of Crenshaw and West Washington street, and also petitioned for legislation preventing heavy trucks from traveling on Crenshaw Boulevard, which has been recently paved.

POTBOILERS PLAY LENORMAND DRAMA CLEVERLY

By Grace Kingsley

That ambitious little group of dramatic uplifters, the Potboiler organization, last Monday night at their Little Theater, 930 South Grand avenue, presented H. R. Lenormand's tragic drama, "The Failures," doing a splendid piece of work under direction of Ole M. Ness.

Probably "The Failures" is the most un-George-M.-Cohan-ish thing the theater has ever seen. In it the bright-eyed boy doesn't kid his soap-making dad and then bring in the bacon to the tune of a million in the last act. Aunt Annie doesn't come forward at the last minute and make jam to save the family fortunes. Nobody discovers a formula for chewing gum, which permits the hero and heroine to wed and live on Long Island. What's more, no little bright-eyed Pollyanna sits on the front porch with the sun shining through her hair and cheers the hero on to success.

No, those human derelicts in "The Failures" just remain failures to the end—poor bits of human flotsam and jetsom mostly floating with the tide. Such gripping drama is here—but let the Pollyanna people stay away.

There are samples of almost every kind of a failure. There is the failure in the person of the actress-heroine, who is clear-visioned about it all, but finds a comfort in "a something bright that sings in my heart." But the hero isn't that sort of a failure. He gropes blindly and obscurely for the reason of his failure.

"There seems always to be a dull hunger in your heart," he wonderingly reproaches the heroine, "which only suffering can satisfy. You seem to think there is only reality in feeling."

"Well, who knows what power grows out of suffering," she retorts.

Then there is the failure who meets the world with a brave and swaggering cynicism, in the person of the theatrical manager. And the old musician who believes that out of the muck of the prostitution of his loved art to cheap commercialism, he has found himself, but whose new music, all unknown to himself, is only a reminiscent, jumbled echo of the old masterpieces he has known. And the failure who doesn't know he is a failure—the vain actor in the cheap repertory company, whose booming voice drowns out the noise of failure, and whose vanity keeps him afloat.

The drama really centers around the young pair, the playwright hero and the actress wife. It takes these French writers to analyze and dissect human emotions just for the sake of analyzing and dissecting, and here you are started off on a dozen little trails of thought. But sounding above it all is the merciless tale of this pair of lovers.

They are poor; his play hasn't prospered; she must accept a place with a third-rate touring company. She insists he accompany her, though he must leave his pupils. Dire poverty even to starvation stalks them. Loving him, she succumbs to the man who admires her—for money. Even then, he begs her to let him go back to his pupils.

There is a keenly penetrating human scene, when the girl, having confessed her fault to her husband, weeps for her lost honor, but more because of her fear of losing him. His complaisance startles her. But, in the end, it is too much for him, this acceptance of his wife's shame, and he kills her and himself, murmuring Oscar Wilde's line, "For each man kills the thing he loves, or the thing he loves kills him."

Very rich, indeed, in thought and by-ways of drama is this play, with more than one touch of ironic humor. The lines are beautifully written, and the play is saved from utter sordidness by the love of the girl for her failure-husband.

"I don't believe," she says, "a woman could really love a happy man!"

Picture directors should see this. Probably Von Stroheim and a few others will. Here is rich dramatic material, a thousand by-ways of significance. And here is some very fine acting.

Rolfe Sedan is a revelation as the theatrical manager. He gives a truly brilliant performance, full of subtlety. Here is an actor of real quality, who has been waiting around in pictures. Yet he has all the fire and subtlety and naturalness of a Menjou.

Sylvia Fennington is another who does truly great work, natural, yet vivid, sustaining the note of beauty and spirituality all through despite the sordidness of the later scenes.

Arthur Lubin, as the hero, is full of marvelous possibilities. It seems to me. He plays that terrific role with sweeping meaning and force.

Stanley Orr brings appeal and real talent to the part of the old musician. George Spelvin (we didn't know we should ever meet a George Spelvin outside a Winchell Smith-John Golden play!) is delightful as the pompous actor. Vita Shiploff brings vivid poignancy to the role of the ingenue, and the remainder of the cast is excellent.

One of "Pickings" Fairest Pickings

Carol Wines,

Appearing in Harry Carroll's "Pickings," now in the final three weeks of its six months' run at the Orange Grove Theater.

MARIE PREVOST GETS BIG K. NORRIS ROLE

While her husband, Kenneth Harlan, is detained in New York, waiting for Bebe Daniels to get well so he can play opposite her in a Paramount film, Marie Prevost isn't having any time to get into mischief.

In fact, Marie has plucked another plum from the tree of good roles, according to the announcement of Warner Brothers. Just as soon as she completes her work as a naughty girl in Lubitsch's newest comedy, she will move her make-up box to Harry Beaumont's set, there to enact the role of Rose Kirby, the central figure in Kathleen Norris's romantic tale, "Rose of the World."

This story, like the rest of this author's works, is establishing new records as a best seller. The story, the locale of which is laid in a small Southern California town, is said to be full of dramatic situations.

The director is planning to move his entire unit to one of the older towns in Southern California. There the company will encamp, using the atmosphere as a background for the action. Production is scheduled to start in about ten days.

Vitagraph Company Departs

Truckee, Cal., background for so many movie thrillers, is going to serve the purposes of art once more. Vitagraph is going to make most of its scenes for "Barre, Son of Kazan," up there.

Anita Stewart and Donald Smith, who head the cast, have already left for the northern location. Both Miss Stewart and Mr. Keith were loaned by B. P. Schulberg, to whom they are under contract, for the picture.

Miss Miller's New Home

Patsy Ruth Miller's dream castle has at last become a reality. A few short years ago, while still playing extra bits in pictures, Patsy Ruth had visions of some day living in one of the beautiful Beverly Hills mansions and having her home pointed out along with those of Douglas Fairbanks, Charlie Chaplin, Pauline Frederick, Priscilla Dean and others too numerous to mention.

Last week the little star purchased a newly completed home on Crescent Drive, which she will occupy with her father, mother and brother by the end of this month. Now she can take a plunge in an out-door pool of her very own or, if fancy dictates, stroll in her luxuriant gardens and dream of more worlds to conquer.

Great Nissen Arrives

Greta Nissen, Paramount's newest scintillant discovery, stepped off a Santa Fe train yesterday afternoon under conditions rarely found in the world of the cinema.

This beauteous blonde girl can never write in her biographical stories of the future that she came to Hollywood knocking at the doors of the studios for, unlike the other countless thousands, she came with a long-term contract in her possession, despite the fact that she has never faced a motion-picture camera.

Jesse L. Lasky, who has discovered more stars than any other astronomical expert within memory, believes that Greta Nissen is his most important find.

He has held to this belief from the night he saw her give a memorable performance in the stage version of "Beggar on Horseback," in New York and from that night his every effort has been to place her under contract with Paramount.

A few days ago she finished her stage work in Chicago and headed for the Coast, accompanied by her mother and brother.

A group of Paramount officials, headed by Howard Higgin, who will direct her in her first starring picture, met her at the station and accompanied her to Hollywood.

Miss Nissen will spend today getting acquainted at the Lasky studio and preparing for her initial screen venture.

DOBINSON PLAYERS IN MYSTERY DRAMA

If you're looking for thrills you'll find every variety of them at the Playhouse in Glendale, where the Dobinson Players are presenting "The Night Call" this week. For mystery rules the stage there.

Scuffles in the dark, muffled pistol shots, radio signals, the flashing of beacon lights, eerie calls of a turtle dove, and a murder are some of the devices warranted to lift a few of the hairs on the head of even the most phlegmatic of individuals. And through it all there is the intermittent howling of the wind, sudden vicious thunder claps and lightning. Any theatergoer will instantly recognize them as old atmospheric tricks, yet even the most hardened drama fiend finds it hard to resist them.

Coming as it does after a season plentifully sprinkled with mystery plays, "The Night Call" will probably fail to attract the attention or satisfy the novelty seekers to the same extent as some of its predecessors. Yet there's no denying its power of sustaining suspense, and the naturalness of its dramatic development. In many details it outranks "The Bat," the most phenomenally popular of the mystery dramas.

From the pen of Adeline Hendrinks the play is set in a familiar setting, an uninhabited house on a lonely coast, with hidden papers, and a girl forced to spend the night alone. Virtually the whole first act is played in the light of one candle and in the dark. Dark figures skulk hither and thither; a man is shot.

Yet, in spite of all this, there is an air of legitimacy about the mystery which is enacted there. The events are startling, but the uncanny and grewsome are entirely lacking. And just to give it a more natural aspect, bootleggers plying their trade help to complicate the plot. The humor is quiet and never lapses into hokum "gags."

With no featured role, there seems a slight balance of interest in favor of Mary Worth, who enacts the role of the young heroine, about which the mystery plot pivots. On the whole, Miss Worth is quite pleasing, although at times she seems a bit stagy and lapses out of her naturalness into theatrical tricks of voice, which have been in disfavor for some time.

The work of each of the men, William H. Stephens, Joseph McManus, Richards Ethers, William Chapman, William Challee and David M. Collis, rounds out the interest of the story.

Laura Winstan has by far the most interesting role in that of the confidential maid. She handles the part with a verve and with a polish which makes each absence from the stage regrettable.

Although Mary Isabelle Alpaugh had, perhaps, the most emotional role of the play, she didn't really have a chance to show her abilities until the climax.

THIRD PROGRAM OF WRITERS ARRANGED

The third program of four one-act plays of the Writers' Club season will be presented in the clubhouse on the 27th and 28th insts. An unusually interesting bill has been assembled under the sponsorship of Waldemar Young, who is the member of the club's play committee to have charge of this month's program. It is confidently expected that the forthcoming plays will eclipse the success of the preceding bills.

"Helen's Husband," a farce by Phillip Moeller, will be staged by Benjamin Glazer. The stage setting is being designed by Cedric Gibbons, one of the best-known art directors in the motion-picture industry.

"The Widow's Veil," an ironical satire by Alice Rostetter, will be produced under the direction of Fritz Tidden. This playlet was one of the first program presented by the famous Provincetown Players in their stable theater in McDougal street, New York.

Emile Shautard is to stage Edna St. Vincent Millay's "Aria da Capo." This poetical playlet has been acclaimed by the country's foremost critics as one of the finest things of its kind ever written.

"E. and O. E." will be the melodramatic contrast of the program. It is an English thriller writen by H. Crawshay-Williams, and will be staged by George K. Arthur, who produced the piece in London a few years ago.

Casts for these plays are being assembled rapidly, and players of significant reputation are being selected. Rehearsals are to commence immediately.

PAUL WHITEMAN TONIGHT

Friends of symphonic syncopation will welcome another opportunity to hear Paul Whiteman and his famous orchestra of twenty-five artists tonight at the Philharmonic Auditorium. Mr. Whiteman has drawn together an extraordinary group of musicians and has held them together over a period of years, so that the ensemble has now achieved that high perfection in rhythm and tonal color for which it is noted. His is light music at its best, light-footed, light-handed, light-hearted, giving an exhilarating tug to the nerves of the toes and the nerves of the ears—in one word, fascinating.

Mr. Whiteman is not to be categorized. He set out to show what could be done with the mooted jazz music. The harshness, blatancy and vulgarity of early jazz have disappeared. In their place are heard suavity, an astonishing refinement of dynamic contrasts. Tonight's program will be entirely different to the ones presented here before and will contain a number of comedy and semiclassical selections.

BEVERLY PLAYERS TONIGHT

The Beverly Hills Community Players, under the auspices of the drama section of the Beverly Hills Woman's Club, are presenting three one-act plays tonight and tomorrow night to be given at the Hawthorne School auditorium.

Among those taking part are Mr. George Seigman, who is known for his work on the screen and particularly for his performance as the circus master in the "Merry-Go-Round;" Mr. Carl Leviness and Miss Mary Shannon. Miss Rosemary Maloney, Los Angeles violinist, is presenting the musical program.

BRITISH CLUB TO MEET

The first get-acquainted meeting of the British Adventurers' Club is to be conducted tonight at the Elyria Apartments, 1233 Trenton street, where the club has its quarters. All British men and women and Americans who have traveled abroad are invited to attend.

GIRL PRISONER BREAKS PLEDGE

Makes Dash for Liberty on Way from Court

Deputy Stops Her With Flying Football Tackle

Nearly Wrecks Jail Before Being Quieted

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

RIVERSIDE, Feb. 17.—Despite her recent promise that she would cause no more trouble while in the county jail here, Ted Gloss, 17-year-old cow girl, changed her mind after a brief session in juvenile court yesterday and succeeded in making the remainder of the day and night highly uncomfortable for sheriff's officers.

Only after a physician had been called to give the girl a "shot" to quiet her did she agree to be peaceable again for a time. On her way back to jail from Juvenile Court late yesterday afternoon she made a break for freedom and ran six blocks before she was overtaken by Jailer Paul Scott, who used his football knowledge acquired in recent American Legion contests to advantage. A flying tackle caught the girl at the knees, but as she fell she tried to choke the officer with his necktie. After something of a battle she was subdued and returned to the jail.

Last night while only the jailer was on duty she succeeded in turning the water faucets on in a sink just outside her cell and by pulling the handles off caused a miniature flood before she was discovered. Then she kicked out the windows covered by a heavy iron screen, tore a steel door from its hinges and enjoyed herself thoroughly before a group of six deputies overpowered her.

After strapping her hands in a muff and tying her to the cot she still continued to make the night miserable with unearthly shrieks of the cowboy variety. Only when a doctor was called to administer a hypodermic did she consent to quiet down.

As a result of the experience, six officers are today nursing bruises, bites and scratches.

Gruendike Auto Oasis Looking for New Owner

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

RIVERSIDE, Feb. 17.—What is to become of Gruendike's well? The problem is worrying P. S. Gruendike of Long Beach, who put down the well in the Chukawalla Desert in 1911, to such an extent that he has written the county Board of Supervisors concerning its welfare.

The letter points out that when the well was sunk there were few calls for water despite the fact that the nearest watering-place to the east is at Blythe, 84 miles away. Now, however, he said, from 50 to 150 automobile drivers stop at the well for water daily and his figures indicate that more than 400,000 persons have watered there since the well was established.

The spot once known as Gruendike's well, at present designated as Desert Center, is about to be abandoned by S. A. Ragsdale, who plans on moving his town with the establishment of the new State Highway. He has offered Gruendike $100 for the windmill at the well, according to yesterday's letter, but Gruendike indicated he would prefer to rent it to the county for a small amount annually and leave the well for chance travelers out of water.

SAN DIEGO GIRL TO WED PHILADELPHIAN

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

SAN DIEGO, Feb. 17.—Announcement was made today by Mr. and Mrs. Charles Olcott Richards of 140 West Kamia street, of the engagement of their daughter, Ruth, to Charles Pleasants Lineweaver of 1819 Delancey street, Philadelphia. Mr. Lineweaver is first vice-president of the Bank of North America and Trust Company of Philadelphia. Miss Richards is the granddaughter of Hubert Rowe Bancroft, the historian. Mrs. Richards and Miss Richards have been spending the winter with Richards's daughter, Mrs. Edgar Allen Poe, Jr., at her home in Washington, D. C. The marriage is planned to take place next April in Washington.

NAVY FLYER FALLS INTO SAN DIEGO BAY

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

SAN DIEGO, Feb. 17.—Lieut. Harold J. Brow, one of the best known naval flyers, here narrowly escaped death today when his plane fell into the bay from a height of about 300 feet. The pilot escaped from the submerged machine and although encumbered with his heavy aviator's togs, managed to keep afloat until picked up by a launch from the Cruiser Omaha. Brow suffered a wrenched back but expects to be on duty again in a few days.

PRISONER ESCAPES FROM TAFT OFFICER

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

TAFT (Cal.) Feb. 17.—Smith Knowles, arrested in Tate several days ago for Missouri officials, escaped from Marshal O. M. Prewitt this morning. A posse of Taft officials is scouring the midway district for the prisoner and all Kern county officers have been notified to be on the watch for him.

Knowles had been in the Taft City Jail since his arrest pending the arrival of Missouri officials, who were to return him to that State.

ENEMY OF ROOSTERS IS BUSY AGAIN

Proposes Pedestrians May be Empowered to Halt Auto Traffic by Hand Signal

By a "Times" Staff Correspondent

LONG BEACH, Feb. 17.—City fathers were treated today to another of Councilman Alexander Beck's offerings in the way of proposed legislation when the creator of the now famous anti-crowing ordinance proposed that pedestrians in Long Beach be armed with the authority to raise their hands to halt automobile traffic.

"The poor pedestrian has a mighty slim chance at points where traffic officers are not stationed. They should be allowed by ordinance to raise their hands and stop traffic whenever it is necessary for their safety," Beck told the Council.

Police Captain Robberson in charge of the traffic division just ruined the Councilman's hopes when he replied succinctly "they'll run over you sure."

Beck urged that the uplifted hand of the pedestrian in Los Angeles had proven a boon to those who must walk, but the Council appeared willing to accept the knowledge of the police captain concerning traffic conditions both in Long Beach and Los Angeles and referred the entire matter to Captain Robberson.

More Names in Pasadena Race for City Board

By a "Times" Staff Correspondent

PASADENA, Feb. 17.—Interest in the race for positions on Pasadena's Board of City Directors grew considerably today when four more citizens announced their candidacy for offices. Already five men are in the race which promises to be one of the most exciting political encounters ever held in the city of Pasadena.

The four men who announced their stand today were indorsed by the Voters' Municipal League, an organization seeking to overthrow the present form of city government.

Franklin D. Cole, 296 South El Molino avenue; A. N. Cole, 1735 East Orange Grove avenue; William Easterbrook, 484 Del Monte street, and Carl E. Newcomer, 296 South Lake avenue, are the candidates who will represent the Voters' League.

PASADENA PUTS LID ON SLOT MACHINES

By a "Times" Staff Correspondent

PASADENA, Feb. 17.—Four hundred proprietors of pool-halls, cafes and drug stores where slot machines are now in operation will be arrested tomorrow morning by Pasadena police if the machines are not removed by that time. This announcement was made by the chief of police today. Acting on the protest of the Pastors' Union and other church organizations, Pasadena City Directors recently passed an emergency ordinance prohibiting the operation of these machines in the city limits. Previous to this the machines had escaped the local gambling ordinance since a piece of gum was given the player for each 5-cent piece inserted in the contrivance. The player also stood a chance of winning metal slubs which were redeemable for merchandise.

LUX HOME BURNED

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE]

MONROVIA, Feb. 17. — The mountain home of Dr. George C. Lux at the head of Cloverleaf Canyon, burned to the ground with all its furniture and contents. Dr. and Mrs. Lux were away for the week-end and knew nothing of it until they returned Monday. Papers, jewelry and other treasured valuables burned and the loss which was partially covered by insurance is estimated at about $2000 or $4000.

GLENDALE PLANS PAGEANT

Proposal Made to Reflect Glories of Events from Days of Spanish Occupation

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE]

GLENDALE, Feb. 17.—Preliminary plans for the organization of an association that will be charged with the annual management of Glendale's historical pageant and fiesta were laid at a meeting of the heads of the various civic organizations and service clubs today when Lon J. Haddock, Los Angeles and Glendale realty man, and W. L. Twining, president of the Glendale Realty Board proposed to present a pageant that would reflect the various events that have transpired in this region from the days of the Spanish occupation down to the present time.

Glendale, they pointed out, lies in the center of that portion of the State that saw the greatest glories of the early days and it is fitting that this city and its environs should be made the scene of the display that will present the ancient history of California to the people of the present day.

It is planned to organize a permanent association that will function year after year in presenting the pageant and Mr. Haddock and Mr. Twining will address all of the Glendale service clubs, women's clubs and patriotic societies in the effort to secure their support and to induce them to participate in the plans that are being formed.

The pageant, as already outlined, would last three days and would show the various events from the day when the Spanish King presented the land on which Glendale now stands, to his faithful subject, the progenitor of the Verdugo family, on down through the years until California's present growth and civilization was staged.

Mr. Haddock has been making a close study of the history connected with this section of the State and has already tentatively mapped out the outlines of the pageant, which he will present to the various organizations during the next few days.

It is planned to hold the pageant about September at a time when it would not conflict with any other celebration that has been established by long usage.

NEW WRIGLEY GUM HEAD IN PASADENA

By a "Times" Staff Correspondent

PASADENA, Feb. 17.—P. K. Wrigley, son of the world-famous chewing gum manufacturer, and who recently took over the management of his father's interests, arrived in Pasadena on the Limited this afternoon for a three weeks' visit. He will stay at his father's home, 381 South Orange Grove avenue. Mr. Wrigley was accompanied by his wife and daughter, Blanche. He will spend several days of his Southern California vacation on Catalina Island, he declared. One of Mr. Wrigley's particular hobbies is taking motion pictures, and he will devote much of his time while on Catalina Island to this line of work. Business in the East, he declared, is still good, and he was very optimistic in regard to his new duties as chewing gum king.

DRIVER, WHOSE TRUCK KILLED WOMAN, FREED

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

SAN DIEGO, Feb. 17.—Benjamin F. Grissam, driver of a truck which ran over and killed Mrs. Florence Harrington, a former actress, was acquitted by a jury last night after less than an hour's deliberation. Testimony indicated Mrs. Harrington was walking diagonally across a street intersection after dark, and either walked into or was struck by the rear end of the truck.

LEGION IN DRIVE

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE]

ALHAMBRA, Feb. 17.—A whirlwind membership campaign for the American Legion will be launched Thursday night by John Howard Strain Post, No. 139, it was announced today by Commander Del Cosbey. Thursday night's affair will be a smoker and entertainment, with Thomas Langdon in charge of the program. Two teams have been chosen for the drive. They have been named the "Trench Rats" and the "Cooties." The losing outfit will do K. P. duty at a dinner to be given the winners at the conclusion of the campaign for members.

ROB SOMIS YOUNG MAN ON HIGHWAY

Bandits Take Small Sum But Overlook Wrist Watch of Victim

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

OXNARD, Feb. 17.—Authorities are today searching for two men who last night held up and robbed John Greenleaf of Somis, who was on his way home from Oxnard. Young Greenleaf, a local musician, felt his car bumping just after he turned off the State highway to go along Rice Road and stopped to examine the tires. While he was at the rear of the car the engine stopped and the lights went out. Greenleaf started to see what had caused this, and was met by two men. In the darkness he could not see whether they were Mexicans or Americans.

"Stick 'em up," ordered one of the men, whose accent indicated he might be an American, at the same time branishing a club. Greenleaf did as he was ordered and as one man stood over him with the club the other went through his pockets. A bill-fold containing $8 was taken. One of the men turned his back and lighted a match to see what was in the billfold. Getting what they wanted the men ordered Greenleaf to drive on.

"You might at least give me back my billfold," Greenleaf said. The man handed it back to him and said, "go on."

Fortunately for Greenleaf, his overcoat covered a gold wristwatch which was overlooked.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE]

VAN NUYS, Feb. 17.—The High School Band under the leadership of H. L. Fiscus, is growing to be one of the best bands in San Fernando Valley. There are now forty members, with the possibility of an enrollment of fifty within the next month. The band pupils are instructed twice a week.

GETS RUSH CALL AS PREACHER

Secretary of Chamber at Van Nuys Takes Place of Sick Pastor

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE]

VAN NUYS, Feb. 17.—Rev. Howard Clark, pastor of the local Methodist Church is ill. When he worried because his absence caused a halt in services, George W. Bunton, secretary of the Van Nuys Chamber of Commerce, was hastily called to take Mr. Clark's place in the pulpit.

Bunton quickly responded, announced his sermon would be on "The Deity of Christ," and that he would expect a layman to offer the morning prayer.

George E. Hume, manager of the California Bank here and president of the Chamber of Commerce, gave out the gospel.

BODY OF WOMAN WASHED ASHORE

Police Suspect Murder in Venice Beach Find

Corpse Bears Cuts; Hole in Head Above Temple

Examination Will Determine Cause of Her Death

By a "Times" Staff Correspondent

VENICE, Feb. 17.—The body of a middle-aged woman, dressed only in her underwear, shoes and stockings, was washed ashore at the foot of Avenue 26 today to give police a possible new murder riddle for solution.

The body was found by Edward Rueter, a real estate man. It was partially submerged and bore evidence of violence.

About the head the officers found abrasions and cuts which might have been caused by repeated blows from a club. The wrists were discolored, further testifying to a possible death struggle, and a small hole was found in the head above the left temple.

Detective Captain Frank Watson tonight discovered the laundry mark "0-7-0" on the victim's clothing and traced the mark to the Pacific Laundry of Santa Monica. The laundry records showed that this mark had been placed on laundry sent to a person named Roach in Stone Canyon, January 10, and the same mark on laundry sent to the name Whitey at the Virginia Cafe in Los Angeles, January 12. The management of the Virginia Cafe was unable to assist in identifying any one named Whitney. Tomorrow Capt. Watson will check up the name Roach for a possible clew to the case.

Detective Peterson and Constable Patton, assigned to the case, however, stated that the marks of violence may have been caused when the body was washed against the abandoned and decaying wharf near which it was found. A post-mortem examination of the body is to be made at once, it was stated, to determine whether there is any water in the lungs. This will decide whether the woman ended her own life by leaping into the water or whether she was murdered and her body flung into the ocean by the killers, the officers said.

The body is that of a woman about 50 years of age. It had been in the water from two to three days when found, the officers said. The woman's hair was of a henna color streaked with gray. She was about 5 feet tall and of slight build.

The body was removed to the Sharp & Nolan mortuary and Coroner Nance notified.

San Bernardino Extortion Case in Court Again

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

SAN BERNARDINO, Feb. 17.—Back in court, Dr. Raymond Loyd, a chiropractor and his pretty wife, Jeanette, were again facing a jury today on charges of extortion, sworn to by Dr. A. D. Hubbell, County Veterinarian. In the first case the jury disagreed. According to Dr. Hubbell's complaint, the Loyds forced him to sign a check and two notes aggregating $1600, threatening violence and exposure. Dr. Hubbell says he was called to the Loyd home to attend a sick goat. The call for his services, he said, came from Mrs. Loyd.

On arriving at the Loyd home, the veterinian claims Mrs. Loyd met him and threw her arms around his neck, in an attitude of affection and embrace. At this juncture, Dr. Raymond Loyd, the husband, is said to have entered the room and found Mrs. Loyd and Dr. Hubbell in a compromising situation.

Dr. Hubbell declares that he was hit over the head with a pick handle by Dr. Loyd without being given a chance to defend himself and while Mrs. Loyd was holding him with her arms around his neck.

Mrs. Loyd claims that the veterinarian attempted to attack her and her husband returned home at an opportune moment to save her from the veterinarian's enforced attentions. Dr. Loyd admits striking Hubbell over the head with a chair.

BAKERSFIELD CITY POLITICS SIZZLING

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

BAKERSFIELD, Feb. 17.—Ten incomplete nomination petition papers have been taken from the City Clerk's office, three of which have already been returned with the required twenty-five or more signatures of voters in the ward in which the candidate for nomination intends to run, according to City Clerk Van Riper. Candidate incumbent from Ward Two, W. J. Carlisle, has filed his complete papers with the clerk, as has Charles A. Griffith, Councilman of the First Ward, and H. W. Carlock, Third Ward Councilman. Significant of a heated contest in the nominating elections March 24, is the fact that three papers have been taken out by men whose nomination is sought by several groups of citizens of Ward One.

RANCHER DROPS DEAD

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE]

ALHAMBRA, Feb. 17.—Nazareth S. Moosekian, a retired rancher and a resident of San Gabriel for the past fourteen years, dropped dead from a heart attack this morning at his home on East Fairview avenue. He was 75 years of age. He was a native of Armenia, but had lived in the United States thirty-seven years. The relatives of the deceased in his native country were all killed by the Turks. He is survived by his widow and daughter, Gladys, who is a teacher in an Armenian school in Los Angeles.

GOVERNOR INSPECTS ROAD

Goes Over Sand Hill and Plank Highway Between Yuma and Imperial County Seat

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

EL CENTRO, Feb. 17.—Gov. Friend W. Richardson and members of his party returned here tonight after a hurried trip across the sand hills to Yuma. The trip was made by the executive and Highway Commissioner N. T. Edwards in order to get first-hand information regarding the condition of the State highway connecting El Centro and Yuma. They were accompanied by several Imperial county officials.

The Governor and his party found the newly graded and gravelled road from the east end of the sand hills to the Colorado River in excellent condition, but discovered the seven miles of plank road crossing the sand hills to be in great need of repair. It is believed here that the visit of the officials will result in considerable repair work on the stretch of plank road.

Just before leaving for Yuma, a telegram from Governor Hunt said that he would be unable to reach Yuma in time to meet Governor Richardson. It was the desire of valley residents to have the two Governors confer regarding the Colorado River project.

An address will be made by Governor Richardson at the noon meeting of the El Centro Chamber of Commerce tomorrow. Aside from this he has declined to participate in any public functions, asserting that he was merely visiting the Imperial Valley to study its needs and get a little outing. Mrs. Richardson is here with the Governor. This is her first visit to the valley.

It is understood that Governor Richardson will leave here Thursday for San Bernardino, where he will officiate in opening the annual Orange Show.

UKASE STIRS BEACH CITY EMPLOYEES

Municipal Workers Up in Arms Due to Eight-Hour Order; Blame Councilman

By a "Times" Staff Correspondent

LONG BEACH, Feb. 17.—Some 200 city employees working in various departments in the City Hall are up in arms today over the latest ukase emanating from the City Manager's office and issued, they assert, through the activities of Councilman Alexander Beck whom they style the self-appointed timekeeper for folks on the city pay roll.

City manager Windham's order requires that all city employees give a full eight hours of their time per day to the municipality and points out that too much time is lost by employees who, after reporting for work in the morning, spend several minutes "visiting with each other before getting down to work." "It isn't that we are not willing to work our full time, even eight hours, although the city charter expressly provides for only seven and a half hours each day," said one City Hall official today.

"Particular stress is laid on the fact that some of the employees chat for a few minutes after they reach the office in the morning, but no mention is made of the fact that in practically every department in their hall the office staff frequently puts in from an hour to three hours a day overtime."

In one department records show that the employees gave to the city a total of thirty-seven days of overtime in one month, it is claimed.

The order issued by the City Manager was the result, it is asserted, of complaints made to the Council by Councilman Alexander Beck, who stirred up a hornet's nest several weeks ago by his criticism of the "white-collar brigade" of city employees who, he pointed out, were getting Saturday half-holidays, while the day laborers were forced to work a full day on Saturday.

Will Eliminate San Diego Road Death Curves

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

SAN DIEGO, Feb. 17.—"Death Curves," so-called because of the number of fatalities which have occurred to automobilists, will be eliminated at two places along the State Highway in the northern part of the county by construction of bridges which will eliminate the danger spots, under an agreement signed by the county Supervisors and the State Highway Commission.

The supervisors have ratified an agreement with the commission whereby the State Board will finance the cost of constructing bridges over San Mateo and San Onofre Creeks, and will be reimbursed by the county. The cost is estimated at $200,000, one-half of which will be paid next December, and the balance a year later. By this arrangement the county will be able to meet the obligation in the usual course, without resorting to a bond issue.

Construction of both bridges, it is said, will be under way by summer.

HEARING GRANTED

Question of Permit for Psychic Resort to Be Argued

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE]

MONROVIA, Feb. 17.—The mooted question of the permit for an auditorium to be built by the California Science and Research Association in Cloverleaf Canyon will be argued next Tuesday night before the City Trustees when a hearing has been granted the Research Association by the Council.

A formal appeal from the recent action of the City Planning Commission in refusing to recommend a building permit for the auditorium was presented to the Council last night by Lincoln G. Backus, attorney for the Research Association.

With the appeal a petition signed by eleven property owners in Cloverleaf Canyon requesting that the city grant the auditorium permit to the Research Association was presented to the Council. The eleven signers constitute all of the property owners in the canyon, it is stated by Mr. Backus, with the exception of one.

GUNS ARE CHECKED IN DIVORCE HEARING

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

SAN BERNARDINO, Feb. 17.—Guns were checked at the door of Superior Judge Benjamin F. Warmer's court today as trial of the divorce suit of Ruby C. Schroeder against Paul F. Schroeder got under way. Mrs. Schroeder who alleged in her divorce complaint that her husband was cruel to her and threatened her life with a gun, asked to have her husband searched for weapons when he appeared in court today to contest her suit. Mrs. Schroeder said she feared Schroeder would have a gun and might attempt to use it. Schroeder submitted to examination by the bailiff.

Negotiations on for Sale of Huge Timber Holdings

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 17.—Negotiations are in progress for the Charles R. McCormick Lumber Company to acquire the timber lands and mills of Pope and Talbot in the Pacific Northwest, it was admitted here today. The lands and mills are in the vicinity of Port Gamble and Port Ludlow, (Wash.).

Charles R. McCormick admitted that his firm is conducting the negotiations and they are expected to be closed within two weeks. The price for the Pope and Talbot properties will be approximately $20,000,000.

LARGE CLASS WILL BE INITIATED BY SCIOTS

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

SAN DIEGO, Feb. 17.—A class of at least 10 candidates will be initiated into the ancient Egyptian Order of Sciots here Saturday night in a ceremonial which is expected to attract several hundred members of orders from up-State cities. Ray W. Baker of Fresno, Supreme Pharaoh, will head a delegation from the Bay District, and large parties will come from Los Angeles and vicinity, Sciot officials said today.

Local Business Men Alert as Those of East

Business men of Los Angeles and the local dealers and distributors of manufactured products for office use were compared favorably with their contemporaries in New York, Chicago and other eastern cities, yesterday by Waldo T. Tupper, who is supervising the National Business show, to be given from March 9 to 14 in the new Ambassador auditorium.

The show supervisor declared local business men, who are co-operating to make the show a success, have proven themselves as thoroughly alert to its value as were the men in other cities, where Tupper has staged such exhibitions.

According to Tupper, the demand for floor space is such that every location will be taken up by Saturday night. He reported last night that but five booths remained unsold. Free invitations to the show will be distributed by the Los Angeles exhibitors.

PETITION FOR PLAYGROUNDS

The establishment of a playground and recreation center in the district bounded by Eighth street, Central avenue, Long Beach avenue and Adams street, was yesterday requested in a property owners' petition filed with the City Council. The Playground Commission was asked to make a report and recommendation.

MOSQUITO FLEET READY FOR FRAY

Municipal Shock Troops to Fight "Flying Death" With Modern Weapons; City Council Discusses Plan to Create New City Job With Title

Ah! Spring is here!

With it come, 'tis true, new hats, the beginning of summer colds in the head, more sunshine, roundtable debates as to where the annual vacations shall be spent, and also, it must be admitted, mosquitoes.

At least, mosquitoes were discussed in two very formal letters received by the City Council yesterday, one from the Harbor Commission and one from Health Commissioner Parish, both calling attention to the advent of spring and to the necessity for mobilizing the municipal mosquito shock troops, headed by Generalissimo Edward A. Fields.

Little is heard from the field marshal of the mosquito army and admiral of the mosquito fleet during the winter months. It is presumed that he spends the winter concocting deadly gases and other hellish devices for ridding the Harbor District of mosquitoes. Then when spring comes the general-admiral comes into his own. Last year he was placed on the job by the Harbor Department and equipped with an automobile, a trailer for supplies, including bottles of mysterious dark, and very smelly, liquids, and a high-powered motor boat. By land and sea he attacked the deadly mosquitoes and ran them hither and thither from swamp to swamp. He finally routed the enemy. This year the California Yacht Club asked that Commander Fields again be placed on the job.

The permission of the Council was required, as it seems that up to this time, despite the general-admiral's great work, he was still rated officially as a laborer! Health Commissioner Parrish yesterday recommended that the position of mosquito exterminator be officially created for Commander of the Forces Field so that he could start work armed with a new title, in addition to his bottles, traps, nets, snares, automobile, motor boat, and trailer.

The Council's finance committee will consider the matter next Monday.

UNSAVORY PEST FORBADE SLEEP

Insomnia Pervaded Rooming-House While Nocturnal Invader Diffused Pungent Fumes From Hiding Place Under Distressed Lodger's Bed

It wasn't that Vincenzio Alvario wasn't sleepy, for he was.

Besides, he was very tired and should have been sound asleep hours ago, but sleep wouldn't come. He looked again at the alarm clock alongside his bed in the room he called home at 518½ Husted street. It was 1 a.m. Something, very radically, was wrong.

Hopelessly, he turned over once again. No use. Undeniably the something was an odor, strange, indefinable, diffusive.

Vincenzio pitched and tossed. The odor grew stronger with each twist. He opened all the doors and windows and shivered in the unusual draft, but his fortitude availed nothing. It got worse instead of better.

"Nectar of roses," Vincenzio said for publication. (He knew we could not print what he really said.) He looked carefully but malignantly around the room. There wasn't a thing to be seen.

And he threw his shoes out the doorway as far as he could heave them. That didn't solve the problem.

He heard steps along the hallway. Some of the other roomers were stirring. It was 2:30 a.m. by now. Vincenzio met one of them in the hallway.

"What is it?" asked both at once.

Anyway, to make a short story longer, they finally found it. It was under Vincenzio's bed. How it got there no one knows. How it left everyone can tell, and it didn't take long.

Yes, you've guessed it. It was one of those things—with the white stripe along the back. You know. A five-letter word that doesn't spell sweet and doesn't smell that way, either.

CHILD WELFARE TALKS

Dr. Anna E. Rude Will Give Series of Lectures

A series of lectures on the development of child-welfare work in this country will be given by Dr. Anna E. Rude, consultant in child hygiene to the Los Angeles Health Department, at the summer session to be conducted here by the State university from June 27 to August 8. Dr. Rude has accepted an invitation to join the faculty of the summer session. She will discuss the growth of governmental activities in child-welfare work and will also describe the work of private agencies. A course in principals and practices of public-health nursing will also be given at the summer session by Miss Edith S. Bryan of the department of public health at the University of California.

REMOVAL PROTESTED

The Hollywood Chamber of Commerce is opposed to the movement which started recently to remove the R.O.T.C. units from high schools, and the board of directors has addressed a resolution to the War Department at Washington, D. C., asking that the training corps in connection with the Hollywood High School be maintained. The request is based on the belief that the corps is good for the development of the boys at the school.

CHAMBER PLANS HOME

Hollywood Body Considers Idea of Owning Own Building

Directors of the Hollywood Chamber of Commerce are at work on a plan whereby the organization would have a building of its own as soon as the lease on its present quarters expires. The chief subject to be discussed will be the arrangements made to finance either the purchase of a site and the construction of a new building or the purchase of a building ready for occupancy.

It has been suggested that a holding company be formed to handle the financial end of the project, but no definite action is expected until a majority of the business and professional men who hold membership in the chamber are approached for suggestions.

DeMolays to Give Ball

A George Washington ball will be given by the Metropolitan Chapter, Order of DeMolay, Saturday evening at the Hollywood Women's Club, 7078 Hollywood Boulevard. There will be dancing prizes and a short program. An exhibition of prints and engravings of George Washington will be a feature of the affair. Dress will be informal.

POLICE HEADS SUED BY WOMAN

Damages of $100,000 Asked of Eleven Defendants

Official Bulletin is Filed With Complaint

Described Her as "Hard" and "Niggardly" She Says

Objection to being described as having a "hard hatchet face" and as being "niggardly" and a fugitive from justice, is the basis of a suit for $100,000 damages filed against Chief of Police Heath, Chief of Detectives Home and others by Mrs. Katherine C. Iten of Omaha, yesterday, in the United States District Court. Mrs. Iten, majority stockholder of the Iten Biscuit Company, charges the defendants with displaying ill-will and malice against her in a police notice published about January 30, last.

The antecedents of the case include a divorce action, later dismissed, brought by Mrs. Iten's daughter against Harold J. O'Rourke and O'Rourke's retaliation last month in bringing an alienation-of-affections suit for $100,000 against Mrs. Iten.

ASKED POLICE AID

Mrs. Iten is the widow of John Iten, who amassed wealth in the biscuit business. Her son-in-law's suit against her charged she had interfered in his marital life and caused his wife to lose her love for him. On January 28, last, he obtained a restraining order in Superior Court to prevent Mrs. Iten and his wife from leaving the State with his 7-months-old daughter. It was on that occasion that he requested police to locate his mother-in-law and wife, he having also filed suit to regain possession of the baby as legal guardian. A notice was published in the police bulletin to aid in the search.

The notice was as follows, as quoted in the bill of complaint: "All officers be on lookout for these people. Helen T. O'Rourke, American, aged 28 years; heigh. 5 feet 1 or 2 inches, dark hair, prominent nose, plump build, weight, 130 pounds, accompanied by 7-months-old baby, Mary Jane O'Rourke, and her mother, Mrs. Katherine T. Iten, aged 55 years, height 5 feet, 1 or 2 inches, weight 120 pounds, gray hair, hard hatchet face, thin build.

"These people left their home at 664 South Hobart, January 28, under a court order restraining them from taking the child out of the State, and ordering it to be returned forthwith to Los Angeles county. They are people of wealth, and have threatened to go to Europe. Will spare no expense to get away, although Mrs. Iten is niggardly. If found notify detective bureau. (G. K. H.)"

ELEVEN ARE NAMED

In her bill of complaint Mrs. Iten names as defendants Chief Heath, Capt. Home, Milton M. Cohen, C. O. Bacon, Harold J. O'Rourke and six others, whose true names are unknown.

Mrs. Iten charges the statements in the police notice were false, libelous and defamatory and exposed her to contempt, ridicule and obloquy. The notice, she avers, was intended also as a charge that she had been formally charged with a crime, that a warrant had been issued for her arrest, that she was guilty of contempt of court, that she was guilty of the crime of kidnaping, that she was a fugutive from justice and that she was dangerous to the public peace and safety if allowed to remain at large.

The plaintiff is represented by Young & Young, Los Angeles law firm. The damages asked are divided into $50,000 compensatory and $50,000 punitive.

MEMORIAL HALL STONE TO BE LAID

Mary Pickford to Assist Veterans in Building at Sawtelle

Mary Pickford will lay the corner-stone of the proposed Veterans' Memorial Hall at Sawtelle, Washington's Birthday, according to an announcement issued from the Pickford studios yesterday.

Together with her husband, Douglas Fairbanks, Mary has always been interested in contributing to the comfort and happiness of disabled ex-service men and she only agreed to assist in the corner-stone ceremonies after she had thoroughly investigated the proposition and decided that the proposed building would furnish an enjoyable recreation center for soldier patients in Sawtelle. It was stated.

William Courtney, in Ward 24, at Sawtelle, in charge of the Washington's Birthday event, has issued a call for volunteer labor, carpenters and common laborers to assist in the construction of the building, which will be located at 2770 One Hundred and Third street, Sawtelle. Courtney has also issued a sweeping invitation to everyone in the vicinity to attend the ceremony.

DEBATE WATER FIGHT

School Pupils Will Discuss Owens Valley Problem

A public debate on the Owens Valley water question is to be held at 8 o'clock Friday night at the Hollywood Memorial Auditorium, Highland and Selma avenues, Hollywood. Jean Christianson and Wesley Heath of South Pasadena High School will argue the affirmative side of the subject: "Resolved, that the city of Los Angeles has been justified in its policy for the Owens Valley interests." Their arguments are to be opposed by Samuel Hayes and Miriam Thies of Hollywood High School. The auditorium seats 3500, and a capacity crowd is expected. There is no admission charge.

CARRIERS TO JOIN COAST CONFERENCE

Regional Parley Here to be Attended by Leading Railroads of West

Railroads serving the Pacific Coast are eager to help in the upbuilding of the States fronting the western ocean. They can do this most efficiently by facilitating the distribution of California products throughout the country. For that reason transcontinental and western carriers will be well represented at the conference of the Pacific Coast Regional Advisory Board in the Biltmore Hotel, Los Angeles, on Friday next, according to reports made to Norman H. Sloane, general manager of the California Development Association, who is general secretary of the regional conference.

Among transportation companies that will report at the conference on equipment and delivery plans for 1925 will be Southern Pacific, Santa Fe, Western Pacific, Union Pacific, Northwestern Pacific, Nevada Northern, Sacramento Northern, Pacific Electric, San Diego and Arizona and Central California Traction.

It is expected that in addition to the railroad men more than 300 leading shippers of California, including agriculturists, dairymen, fruit growers, oil operators, lumber men, wool growers, millers and manufacturers, will be in attendance. Reports will be presented by thirty-six commodity committees, and the discussion on these and other important new business is expected to result in an all-day session, beginning at 10 o'clock Friday morning. All shippers are invited to be present.

SCHEDULE OF TRADE TOURISTS REVISED

The excursion and sociability tour of the Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce, under the direction of Charles P. Bayer, manager of the excursion department of the chamber, will leave Los Angeles for Arizona and Mexico on Tuesday, the 24th inst., by way of the Southern Pacific, Chapala and Mexican Railways. Several necessary changes have been made in the original program so as to allow the excursionist more time at some of the more important points of interest.

DRY GOODS & READY TO WEAR
Unquestionably one of the best stores ever offered for its size in Ventura county. Same owner twelve years, started with $2200 and has saved a small fortune in that time. Wonderful store at a low rent and a loyal bunch of customers who will always want to deal in this place with the right party in charge. No bonus or good will, just the bare invoice and fixtures at rock bottom. Owner has two stores and cannot give his time to both. Price, about $12,000.

CAPTIVITY IN BORDER DEN TOLD POLICE

Local Woman Declares Tia Juana Gangsters Held Her for Two Weeks

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

SAN DIEGO, Feb. 17.—Reporting herself to have been kidnapped, drugged and attacked by a gang of ruffians in Tia Juana, Mrs. Jessie Apple, 1327 Magnolia avenue, Los Angeles, related to San Diego police today a story of two weeks of horror in a hotel at the border town, during which time she was at the mercy of her captors.

The case came to the attention of the police when they received a call from a hotel here and the ambulance took the young woman to the emergency hospital. Attendants on examining her found numerous bruises.

During the period she was held captive, she told the police, she was forced to sign checks for various amounts which she believed were cashed by Americans who were among her asserted abductors. Drugged liquor, she said, led to her downfall. Details of her escape were not clearly established today.

The young woman has been placed under the care of a physician and it was said a complete story of her capture, together with a description of the abductors, will be obtained as soon as possible.

Miss Helen Keys, superintendent of the Burlingame Hospital, said the woman did not appear to her to be suffering from drugs or liquor when she was admitted. She was hysterical and a wreck, however, she said. Miss Keys said the attending physician, Dr. W. L. Kinsley, had forbidden Mrs. Apple to see or talk to anyone for the present.

From Mrs. S. Grossman, owner of the apartment-house at 1327 Magnolia avenue, where Mrs. Jessie Apple made her home, it was learned Mrs. Apple had left the city some time ago in a new automobile, stating she would return in a short time.

Her continued absence caused Mrs. Crossman considerable worry and anxiety as she said Mrs. Apple carried a large sum of money with her when she left. A search was instituted.

Mrs. Apple, a widow with a son about 16 years of age, has made her home in California for several years, Mrs. Grossman said. During her residence in Los Angeles, she has entertained and been entertained extensively, having many friends, both in Los Angeles and Pasadena.

Search for Mrs. Apple started when her parents arrived from their home in a near-by State and made inquiries for her at her apartment.

CROWDS THRILL AT HORSE SHOW

Bounder Wins in Hunter Class at Ambassador

Ruth Burns Shows Skill in Riding Mounts

Missouri Woman Wins Two Places in Harness

BY TIMOTHY G. TURNER

By far the finest class of hunters ever seen here, as pretty a class as could be seen any place in this country featured last night's program at the Los Angeles National Horseshow on the Ambassador grounds. It was further evidence, if any is needed, that the fourth annual show, which continues through this week, is on a par with the best in the country in regard to the quality of the horseflesh and, as a general thing, skillful handling.

If the class at the jumps last night did not thrill the hearts of all the spectators, whatever the knowledge of the sport they might have, sporting blood and love of beauty are out of fashion. There were thirty-five hunters in the class and they were run off in about an even hour and nobody came a cropper and there were few refusals.

Bounder, Revel Lindsay English's chestnut gelding, ridden by Miss Ruth Burns of Santa Barbara, took the blue ribbon; Weathervane, from the stables of the Misses Jane and Martha Woodin, took second, and Let's Go, entered by Judith Ames, third. And the awards were made after the prettiest exhibition of horsemanship and the horse at its most graceful and spectacular height. Incidentally it afforded a good chance to observe the various styles of riding at the hurdles.

DIFFERENT STYLES

Miss Burns, who in past years has gained the reputation of being the smartest rider in the show, especially at park riding, afforded a good illustration of the old school of hunting of which the long rein and loose seat are typical, and Mrs. Rogers Pierce, who is again with us, is as smart a rider of the typical English cross - country school as can be found—and as sturdy. She has ridden all over the world, and formerly was a whip of the Meadowbrook hounds. Then, Dick Donnely of New York, the onetime high jumping champion rider, rode after

Lou Tellegen has a keen appreciation of exclusive attire for the gentleman and approves highly of the ever-increasing vogue for the snap brim hat which is responsible for the "Grayling" pictured above. Styled by "Dobbs," the "Grayling" is fashioned on the generous lines so universally affected by the carefully dressed man. The ample width of brim and fullness of crown adapt themselves very readily to the slight indentation in the front of the hat. Shown exclusively in Los Angeles by Mullen & Bluett.

IT'S a grand business, this acting for the movies.

Everybody in it is unhappy; and the higher up they get the more unhappy they are.

If these little girls who come in from Dubuque and Newton Center really knew what it was like, they would turn and run for their lives.

In the life of a movie star, the only thing worse than failing to become famous—is becoming famous.

Winter of Their Discontent

Look 'em over:

Mary Pickford is worried and uncertain and apprehensive. Her most devoted friends would hardly deny that.

Lillian Gish is in the middle of a big law suit that threatens the wreck of her fortune. I imagine she spends more sleepless nights than restful ones.

Nazimova — the wreck of her career is the tragedy of the screen.

Theda Bara sees her best years going by, and finds herself handcuffed and shackled by circumstances she seems unable to surmount.

Doug Fairbanks is followed by a bugbear—the fear that his next picture will not "top" his last one.

I think, on the whole, that those who have "arrived" are less happy than those who are struggling upward.

First-Aid "Treatments"

The mental wear and tear of trying to maintain a teetering perilous perch on the top is so great that nine-tenths of the stars keep Christian Science—or other mental scientists—on a regular salary. Whenever inharmony develops, you see them making a dive for the nearest telephone to call up for help. Most of the stars tell me that they would be utterly unable to endure the worry and the heartaches of movie fame without some help of this kind.

* * *

The Case of Nazimova

Nazimova is going through a distressing period of her career.

Psychoanalysts tell me that a sure sign of genius is the alternation of moods of supreme arrogance and moods of extreme humility.

Nazimova appears to be tasting the ashes of self-abasement and humility.

She wrecked her own career trying to put on a highbrow version of Salome. Now she is going to the other extreme and is wallowing in the cloying sweetness of little Pollyanna parts—like that noble-hearted derelict in "Madonna of the Streets."

Personally, it gives me gooseflesh to see a woman of her predominant genius doing it.

Enjoying Trouble

In a way I doubt if she really minds it so much.

If there was ever an actor who did not secretly enjoy being a tragic broken figure, lying in the wrecks of his own dreams—well, I never happened to meet one.

So I haven't a doubt in the world that Nazimova is really getting considerable kick out of her misfortunes.

With All Her Faults—

With the object of "getting it over" to the Hoi Polloi, Nazimova has gone back to some of the faults of her earlier pictures.

She always distorts her face too much. Some of her close-ups are very bad—almost to the point of being unpleasant.

Nevertheless, she is a brilliant woman and a great artiste. She has wonderful qualities of mind. Slashing, penetrating qualities.

A Brilliant Epigram

Talking about Duse the other night, Nazimova told me more in one single sentence than all the highbrow critics in the country wrote all during Duse's tour.

"Duse was like a wraith," she said "She didn't seem of this earth. She was like a beautiful ghost who had come back from another world to show us how to act. Her technique and her art were perfection—carried to new and undreamed-of perfections; but it didn't seem to be human—not flesh-and-blood emotion. Every moment you expected to see her melt away into thin air."

A Grauman Birthday

Grauman's Metropolitan Theater had a birthday—the second anniversary. The place was thrown open and all the workings explained. It was a moct interesting experience.

It will be a surprise to most people to learn that, in these big houses, one of the heaviest of all the expenses is the ventilation system. The basement of the Grauman theater looks like the inside of a battleship. There are enormous ice plants; roaring engines heating air that is blown through water and into the theater.

Temperature has become of great importance to motion-picture houses. It is the principal inducement to many patrons. They dive into the nearest theater during hot summer days to get cool and take refuge in the warmth when their shins grow cold. To fail them with comfort would be worse than giving them a bad picture.

Christian Haas, the ventilation engineer at Grauman's, told me that the heat from the bodies of an audience filling the house would boil water in less than two minutes. It's a rather disgusting thought at that.

Good-bye, Pikers!

This movie anniversary was also illuminative of this point: That the day of the small exhibitor has passed.

A house in a big city like the Grauman or the West Coast houses has become an enormous enterprise. At this one house they have to employ a force of fifteen stage carpenters and a herd of stage hands like a legitimate theater. They employ three pipe organists, an orchestra of from fifty to seventy musicians, three conductors, more than fifty ushers and something like seventeen lobby officials to superintend the handling of the crowds.

The payroll of a modern motion-picture house amounts to a small fortune.

The Pioneers

This brings up the question of a change that must inevitably come into the movies before very long.

At the present time the motion-picture industry is almost exclusively in the hands of the very men who created it.

Men like Carl Laemmle, Adolph Zukor, Marcus Loew were in on the ground floor. Al Kaufman, who now runs the Grauman houses, began with the movies in the days when they used to have little imitation theaters built like railroad cars. You sat in aisles like day coaches, and the manager, after ballyhooing the crowd inside, rushed around behind and ran the projecting machine.

Zukor started with one of these. Marcus Loew started with a penny arcade "peep show." Between them they have built the films up into the fourth industry in rank in the United States.

They have all built up enormous fortunes. And they are getting to be old men. It is inevitable that they should drop out before very long and leave the movie industry in other hands.

They'll Run It

It happens that most of them have sons or nephews or other relatives into whose hands the industry will pass.

The question is: When they get the reins what will these young men do with motion pictures?

Personally, I view the coming change with skepticism. Most of these young heirs-at-law are young college men. The chances are ten to one that personal pride will tempt them to "uplift" the movies.

If they do, they will wreck the ship.

Pictures ought to be clean and decent, and for the most part they are. I think most of the old-time pioneers of the business feel a very strong moral responsibility. Compared with the sex novels of the day, the movies are positively holy.

But I imagine that the next generation of movie magnates will have a leaning toward the sophistication of the young intellectuals.

You might as well talk about honest burglars or dry water or cold fire as of sophisticated movies. They just ain't, that's all.

Highbrow Stuff

In which connection, there is much talk about a "little-theater movement" in the movies.

Our intellectual young friend, Joe Jackson, and some of his fellow highbrows started some such movement last year.

I think it was a great movement to start. I think they ought to have meetings and discuss the little-theater movement and pick out suitable subjects for pictures to show to "the few"; but for their own sakes I hope they are never so foolish as really to try to do it.

That isn't a thing to be done; that is something to discuss when you get tired of discussing other things.

As to Valentino

This particular worm is about to turn in the matter of gossip about Rodolph Valentino.

Hollywood spends most of its time chattering about the fact that Rodolph's young wife runs the studio, etc.

I don't know whether or not this is true; but I am unable to see why it is anybody's business.

Valentino is making some pictures for the screen with the hope of selling the same to the folks who go to movies. If they are good pictures, we will all go to see them. If they are not, they will flop. And Valentino will be a sad young man.

Who advises him in the making of those pictures would seem to be Mr. Valentino's own affair; not a subject of public comment.

If he really is a henpecked star, then all I have to say he is a refreshing novelty in Hollywood. Also, it occurs to me that it may be more important to him to do his wife the courtesy of consulting her than to please the wise guys of Hollywood.

Up-stage! W-o-l-l—

Not that I am holding any brief for the fascinating Rodolph.

They tell me that he has become a very haughty and up-stage young person. Which is also his own affair.

Although, b'gosh, he might observe in this fact a moral: The most up-stage movie actor I ever met was Guy Bates Post.

I went to interview him once in an unguarded moment. In a grand voice, he unraveled all the old stale bromides in the world. In the course of which he would occasionally give me a look of agony and pain and say: "I hope you understand. I am sure you understand."

And then he went on the screen and made a flop that left a hole in the studio pavement.

Yes, It's Cruel

I'll admit that this was a rather cruel story.

Mr. Post was really a man of superior mold; but he had been raised on the stage where the more of that heavy grandeur you pulled the better you got along. He didn't know, at that time, that the way to get along in the movies is to be very humble and smoke cigarettes with the stage hands.

But he found out. As many others have found out.

Attaining Goal of Stardom

ALICE DAY

Her work has been so clever as a comedy lead, and her personal charm and sweetness is so unusual, it is reported Miss Day will soon appear in films featuring her in a stellar way.

"ENTICEMENT"

sistance to a growing infatuation for her.

When, finally, she suddenly and somewhat unpleasantly realizes that his feeling for her has changed, her first emotion is surprise, then fear, and finally revolt.

She takes flight from the lodge, and with the aid of the lodgekeeper returns to the world of conventions again.

The experience has made Leo somewhat fearful of herself. She has joined her aunt in Paris, but this does not lessen her perturbation. She has a particular dread of encountering the opera singer again, although he tries to communicate with her and make amends.

The issue from this point on in the picture is the effect of the experience on the girl's married life. Marry, she does, of course. Very shortly afterward, and in part because of the aforesaid fear of herself.

Her husband, who has won her affection by his very considerate and kind attitude toward her, is an Englishman, and the member of a very straight-laced British family. Leo herself is American, and her entree into his circle of relatives is of itself difficult enough. She does not behave quite according to the forms and conventions of this world that is so new to her, though unfortunately this constitutes a certain weakness in the probability of these particular scenes.

There are various developments in the picture that tend to show how she shocks her husband's family. There is nothing that she does, however, which is not entirely in the spirit of play.

Finally there arrive on the scene two relatives whose acquaintance she has not yet made. While she does not recognize having seen them before, they very shortly become aware of her identity. For in the Alpine sequence of the picture, they were at the same hotel where she apparently was "not the wife" of the opera singer, but "with him" none the less.

There is a real debacle. The husband impugns the wife with all manner of charges, of course, regarding her conduct on the Alpine trip. Being thoroughly conventional of mind, he gives her hardly any chance to explain, and refuses to understand her when she does inform him as to the facts of her experience.

Finally, to top it all, the opera singer comes on the scene again, and makes known to the wife that she is about to be named as co-respondent in a divorce suit which his own wife is preparing. His desire is to shelter her from the results of this scandal, or at least to protect her with the husband.

This, as you may imagine, is a fatal blow for the husband's pride, and his attitude toward the wife makes things so unbearable for her, that she decides to leave him and, flinging all discretion aside, to go to the opera singer.

Here is a place where the picture might have sunk to maudlin sentiment, but it rather neatly avoids this. The drawing of the opera singer's character is what helps, chiefly.

It is he who recognizes that she is only leaving her husband out of a fit of anger. He knows that they both really entertain a deep and sincere devotion for each other, and he realizes that the only danger to their happiness is the scandal from the divorce.

The action that he takes under the circumstances makes really for a sort of tragedy. And though he cannot exactly be commended for the course of sacrifice that he takes, because it verges on the suicidal, it must be admitted that his is the character which, by the final plot twist, enlists the bigger sympathy.

The picture will add greatly to the interest in Mary Astor as a screen personality. Perhaps she is not the Leo you might have visualized, if you have read the book, in all respects, but she is certainly a new and astonishing Mary Astor. She gives such sincerity to her portrayal, and such earnest feeling, that this, plus her truly girlish attractions, will enhance not only her place, but also, I believe, her general popularity. Fundamentally, I feel, too, she possesses a very genuine acting talent.

Keith is growing more interesting in his performances from picture to picture. It was a mistake made in his instance in the beginning to cast him as a straight hero, because his forte is roles with character. The least effective work that he did was in the Gloria Swanson production, "Her Love Story," which, as I recall, was one of his first screen efforts.

Clive Brook always brings a quiet dignity to the screen, and his present role as the reserved Englishman is yet another portrayal of quality for him.

Louise Dresser in the comparatively few scenes in which she takes part is very pleasing, and Edgar Norton and Vera Lewis are very good as the two gossips. Lillian Langdon, Larrimore Johnston, Maxine Elliott Hicks, Fenwick Oliver, Florence Wix, George Bunny, Roland Bottomley and Aileen Manning are others in the cast.

George Archainbaud has done a very even and convincing piece of work in the direction, and the adaptation is a credit to Bradley King. Commendation also for the exteriors, especially, photographed by Henry Sharp.—[Edwin Schallert.

"THE BOOMERANG"

pressible Bert Hanks appears and informs him that happiness and contentment and the solution of all his griefs can be found at the Sumner Sanatorium. And Grace Tyler is restrained from throwing herself in front of a train by the timely arrival of "Bud," who tells her that her heart griefs can be soothed at Sumner's.

Dr. Sumner's business has progressed. He has his hands full. The "hokum" has been working. But he is beginning to be distressed over Zelva, the nurse who appeared to be taking as much interest in the patients as she was in him. Zelva would sympathize with patients with wounded hearts, but she would not become interested in the doctor who owned the institution.

But eventually she does. And Dr. Sumner, as well as she, suddenly realizes that their own hearts were those most worth saving, and they admit it, one to the other. The boomerang came back to the medical man who conducted the sanatorium. He paid.

Anita Stewart arrayed in the costume of a nurse, dark-eyed and attractive, is a valuable asset to the hospital of breaking hearts. A little gentle care for the patients, augmented by a series of engaging smiles, brings new interest in life to those who were ready to quit and very quickly they start recuperating. Exhibiting much of the charming technique which distinguished her best work in recent pictures, she portrays very cleverly her part in "The Boomerang."

Bert Lytell, as the struggling young young doctor who decided that people preferred "hokum" to prescriptions and pills, sustains his role most admirably.

"The Boomerang" was directed by Louis Gasnier and in view of the fact that he made "Capital Punishment," one of the most gruesome pictures of the year, his versatility is manifest. It is a wholesome story throughout and very replete with humor. It will interest all.—[A. L. Wooldridge.

STELLA THE STAR-GAZER

Tom, you see, wants a dressing-room exactly like the one he has in his present old-fashioned house—just a room where he can stand in the middle of the floor and reach out for what he wants. But Mrs. Mix wants him to have a large, thoroughly up-to-date room, with all the modern conveniences. And so the matter stands."

"POOR Lefty Flynn! Hasn't he been the storm center! It seems that Viola Dana gave a party the evening before he left for New York, and was going about telling everybody to take care of Lefty; and apparently Grace Darmond took her at her word. And Lefty did, too, I should imagine!"

BOOK LOVERS

Pola is a very embarrassing person to talk with on the subject of books. It isn't very good for the old self-esteem. I'm just getting over such an experience.

I have found that it is one thing to stand complacently and admire Pola's new and beautiful library of 2000 volumes—and it is quite another to have her take down one after another and chat familiarly about them as old friends, expecting me to be just as chatty as she.

Her library is in four languages—French, Russian, German and English—and the bindings are beautiful. They form sort of a mental wall paper for her library and glisten in the firelight. But more than that, they form an equally complete wall paper for her mind. They aren't ornaments. They are accessories.

A Classical Library

Tolstoi, Balzac, Voltaire, Dumas, Flaubert, Ibsen, Thackeray, Shakespeare, Talleyrand, Goethe, "Secret Court Memoirs," and a German Bible 400 years old. The Bible is a wonderful volume with its time-worn binding and its inscriptions by the original owner in 1659.

Oscar Wilde occupies a prominent place—as does the story of his life by Frank Harris. Dickens, Byron and Kipling are in evidence. "Arabian Nights" rests high in one corner.

Her favorite books are Tolstoi's "Anna Karenina," Schopenhauer, Voltaire, and history and mythology. But she smiles very naughtily and says, "Of course, also, do I like 'Secret Court Memoirs.'" And I smile back and say, "Of course."

Pola is having an interesting time at present. Her English has progressed to the point where she can now read English and American authors in our language. Before, she had to read the French, and it was rather bewildering. I can imagine myself that good old Kipling and Jack London would seem slightly strange ornamented by the French language.

And, by the by, Jack London and Robert Louis Stevenson are her favorite American authors. In her words, they have "such a marvelous primitiveness combined with virility."

Other Stars and Other Books

Alma Rubens likes morbid books. Books on life, the less alluring side, "the true side," she says. At any rate, her favorite book is John Masefield's "The Widow of Bye Street." It is her ambition to have a motion picture made of it sometime. "But the censors?" one asks. "Oh, well," she answers, "it could never be shown generally. Only to a few of us, who are liberal-minded. If I had the money I would make it now—with Von Stroheim directing." But, at any rate, whether it is ever made into a picture or not, it remains Alma Ruben's favorite book.

Adolphe Menjou is a staunch reader of drama and the fine arts. Mary Pickford and Douglas Fairbanks enjoy history and are bored with fiction. While Lew Cody is an inveterate reader of the modern authors. Charlie Chaplin reads the dictionary enthusiastically. Pat O'Malley, with three small vamping daughters to lure him away from his own reading, finds himself spending a great many of his stray hours reading aloud of how "Jack and Jill went up a hill—"

These represent a rather representative group of our "dear readers," as the writers are supposed to call them. I doubt if you could apply to them the old saying, "Show me the books you read and I will tell you what you are." In these days of intensive cramming of books necessitated by a struggle to keep mentally above water, there is so much material read which we would hate to have taken as a mental guage of our personality and character.

But at least we can prove that they read—even as you and I. And oftentimes, more much more than you and I, do these much talked of, these much-quoted motion-picture folk.

The New Money King of the Movies

CROWNED with a sombrero—his throne a saddle—Tom Mix emerges the new money king of the movies.

It is understood that his new contract with Fox nets him approximately $15,000 a week—and with this in his pocket the man of the open spaces rides into a new fame. It is the largest regular weekly salary ever paid a film star. And it goes to a hero of the westerns!

He is a man of hobbies—is Tom Mix! They do not all pertain to his horse and its equipment. He loves clothes. Hats and hats—and yet again more hats! Forty pairs of boots line the walls of his ranch home. He is addicted to white gloves.

Tom Mix has enough clothes to outfit a king. It will be fitting under his new moneyed title.

As a riding rollicking westerner, Tom Mix has developed a drawing power which enables him to acquire a salary of approximately $15,000 a week. He draws a share of the profits on his productions, too.

An excellent glimpse of the individual hobbies of Tom Mix can be gained from these pictures. In the bedroom of his ranch home are to be seen countless hats, shoes and suits of clothes, while Tom himself insists on wearing white gloves on all occasions — even while riding his horse.

Tea-cup Tete-a-tete
With Stella, the Star-Gazer

By GRACE KINGSLEY

"OH, my soul! Who is that over there trying to high-hat me? Well, if it isn't Pola Negri and Dr. Goodman, Alma Rubens's soon-to-be ex!"

Stella raised the lorgnette which she considers ample defense against high-hatting and all other disagreeable conduct, and went on:

"Pola is a perfect darling to meet, but Dr. Goodman does adore the oh-the-loneliness-of-the-itness attitude, doesn't he? Pola seems to be playing the field since Rod La Rocque went away to Paris, but it must be a load off her mind, Gloria Swanson's marrying a French face card, that way.

"But I'm sure that there are times when Pola is as lonely as a mail airplane on a stormy night. Wonder if His Grace, the Marquis, will let Gloria in on the secret that private dinner parties are not served from printed menus!"

"THERE'S that sweet Ena Gregory, one of the Wampi babies! That nice boy with her is Wayne Baker, whose papa owns just stacks of automobile agencies and factories. Don't know if they are engaged or not, but shouldn't be surprised.

"Ena and Wayne came to get a wayward kitten I owned, the other day, to give it to a friend. She said she was going to butter the kitten's little feet when she got it to its new home, so that it wouldn't ever run away.

"Wayne remarked he guessed he'd try buttering Ena's feet, if that was the way to keep from losing them. And then both of them blushed like everything."

"NOW, don't look jealous, dearie! But I spent the afternoon yesterday with Corinne Griffith. She has a new home out in Beverly Hills, you know—a perfect love of an old English house, built on a big, sloping lawn with lots of shrubbery. It is one of those new houses that the people in them try so hard to make look old, while everybody in old houses is trying equally desperately to make them look new.

"You know those dual personalities on the screen—the haughty sister and the sweet one? Well, that's what Corinne reminds me of. She simply cannot help looking beautifully haughty on the screen, but I don't think she could be haughty in real life even if she tried.

"Corinne adores her home—says she doesn't care a cent if she never sees another studio.

"'I've always loved a home,' she said. 'I started out with a flat in Flatbush—sounds like the title to a song, doesn't it?—and I've always striven for a home ever since. I love everything and everybody about this place—even the funny young gardener over there, who just never stops working around the place—and then takes a walk of a mile to the grocery store every evening because he says he needs the exercise!'"

"CORINNE'S house is full of pretty things, and, as Mrs. Tom Mix says, Corinne really ought to have little signs around—'Follow the green line, and you'll come to the rare porcelain statuette of a ballet dancer,' or 'This way to the tapestry room.'

"Corinne is one of those marvelous people who seem to know a lot about everything. She will start in, 'I really am no authority on greenhouses,' or breeding of animals, or history of oriental rugs, or astronomy, or—oh, anything you like; and then she will go on calmly telling you interesting things about the subject that you never dreamed of."

STELLA paused to order tea from the waiter, who was standing by with a steadily growing look of polite grimness on his face, and then proceeded to tell me of the dilemma of Mr. and Mrs. Tom Mix.

"The Mixes," she explained, "have bought a wonderful homesite right opposite Corinne Griffith's. But they are waiting to build, apparently, until they can agree on Tom's dressing-room!

Their Severest Critics

SHE is my best pal and—I may add—my severest critic!"

So said Merton of the Movies. And the line has become a famous reference to motion-picture wives.

As pals they seem to qualify. But as "severest critics" the severity is in most cases amputated at the start.

In the early days of pictures they were never mentioned. Their existence was shrouded in mystery. It was feared that a fickle public might not appreciate its heroes as husbands.

But now it is different. The home life of the stars is as a rule featured. On appearing with their husbands at public affairs, the wives are so well known in some instances that they are quite readily recognized by the fans.

They enter into the plans and careers of their famous husbands. And if that labels them as severest critics, why, that they are!

The Boomerang

Donald Keith lures the nurse from a masquerade ball to be abducted.

Mary McAllister starts a young Lothario on the road to the hospital for hearts.

Kidding the Hokum

"THE BOOMERANG"
(B. P. Schulberg)

All the world smiles at hokum, so, instead of trying to do something that will alleviate the griefs of humankind, a medical man decides to sell what people really want. The resulting situations will make audiences smile and perhaps rejoice.

"THE BOOMERANG" is an exceedingly humorous jest at folks who can't distinguish the difference between heart affections and plain "nerves." Both upset the equanimity of individuals and the leading character makes capital of their sufferings. The mooning, heart-sick male and the sighing, love-torn female who believe that only in death is there surcease from grief are caricatured as strange buffoons in a world where vivid life and humor and action rule.

The story is light and fluffy, but it will bring many chuckles to audiences which appreciate subtle bits of humor.

A boomerang is an Australian weapon which is hurled into the air, makes a queer turn and comes hurtling back with as much "spit" as it started with, unless it strikes something which retards its progress. And thus Dr. Gerald Sumner (Bert Lytell) is harpooned when he establishes an institute to cure broken hearts and Virginia Zelva (Anita Stewart) arrives to become a nurse. The doctor is stung by the love-bee in his own heart-curing institution.

Dr. Sumner apparently has graduated from every medical college between Manhattan and Spring street and has fitted up a luxurious suite of offices in which to receive his patients. But the patients don't arrive. The only caller he has in weeks is an undertaker looking for business. And he doesn't stay. So Dr. Sumner decides that the public doesn't want pills and poultices, but desires large quantities of hokum and a place to assimilate it in ease. So he opens a sanatorium in a high-class section and announces himself as a specialist in heart and nerve disorders.

And how business rolls in!

First there arrives Bert Hanks (Ned Sparks,) who lets him know that he was sold to the institution before he arrived. He is the original go-getter, the business provider for just such an institution and, although salary is not named, he picks up a bunch of cards and goes out to look for customers. The patients begin flocking in.

Fat men, fat women, divorcees, love-stricken matrons and trifling papas arrive for heart adjustments.

Business of fortune-telling is poor in the little concession at the amusement pier for Virginia Zelva, and she advises Poulet (Arthur Carew) she is going to quit and go to Dr. Sumner's sanatorium to find out his method. His institution has been garnering all the laurels, as well as all the checks. Lovesick maids and youths no longer bring Zelva revenue.

Dr. Sumner readily employs her as a nurse and with her ability to "psychoanalyze patients" she immediately becomes a valuable asset to the institution.

There arrives also Bud Woodbridge (Donald Keith,) who is desperately in love with Grace Tyler (Mary McAllister.) He has been at the point of casting himself into the sea when the irre-

Playing in their own back yard

We have heard of them in the studio—the cafe—on the sea—at home—everywhere! But who ever heard of a picture personage in a back yard?

And yet they seem to have them. Moreover, they seem to occupy them—at least occasionally.

What they are like we can imagine from this group of pictures. A crystal ball brings with it a suggestion of flowered walks—romance. Or the back yard may be a comfortable grassy space with trees—or, yet again, just a place to keep a highly pedigreed dog in fashionable estate.

The surprising thing about it is the novelty of picturing personalities in this setting. We've associated them with the exotic—the spectacular—the dazzling. And now we find that, at least once in a while, they are "just people" playing in their own back yards!

Aha! Romance! Ruth Clifford and her new husband, James A. Cornelius, are evidently attempting to peer into the future.

While instructing his small daughter in the gentle art of pugilism, Pat O'Malley no doubt is told to do his fighting outdoors — by Mrs. O'Malley, who fears for the bric-a-brac.

Norman Kerry and his man-sized dog must surely spend some time together playing in the back yard—for any ordinary house would be too small.

It's a cunning pose—Patsy Ruth Miller in the role of Good Samaritan to her dog, Rags, who craves liquid refreshment from the back-yard faucet.

Donald Keith lures the nurse from a masquerade ball to be abducted.

The scenic backgrounds are a true source of beauty in "Enticement."

Mary Astor's loveliness and very effective acting will heighten greatly her prominence. Clive Brook again appears in a part of consistent dignity.

Ian Keith offers a very striking interpretation of a role that grows in sympathy.

An early episode glimpses the close of the war.

"ENTICEMENT" frankly presents itself as the study of a theory and a theme—the question of whether there can exist between a man and woman a comradeship that involves no suggestion of sex sentiment. Have not conditions changed, viewpoints broadened since the World War? the film asks. Are men and women limited to one sort of affection for each other as they seem to have been under more restricted influences in the past?

Beyond this opening there is no preachment, no propaganda. The answer is entirely story, and a very interesting story in its way of a young girl and an opera singer who experimented with a companionship to all intents and purposes free from the sex force and the sex intent.

After a brief sort of prologue showing the close of the war which brought about their first association together—a true pal-ship—the picture launches into the pivotal episode, a vacation spent by the pair in the Swiss Alps.

The setting is very enhancing. The scenes were shot at Banff, and the beauty of the glimpses of snow-garbed mountains has rarely been equalled in any recent feature. The photography truly embodies a charm of idealism that makes uncertain in a way the trend of romance.

Of course, there is a romance. That is, a sentiment overcomes the man, though the girl retains her ideal of a perfect companionship, into which no ulterior attfaction intrudes, at least until the moment of her disillusionment.

Leo, the heroine, is sufficiently unconventional to have her own way. She has looked forward to this "vacation" that she and the man will spend together, and allows nothing, not even a trip to Paris, proposed by her aunt, to interfere. In fact, she prevails upon this relative to go on the trip alone, and leave her to her own quite absolute and solitary enjoyment of her friendship with the man.

The aunt leaves, and Leo and the opera singer, who is, of course, unhappily married, plan to renew all the genuine and true-pal joys of the war days. The thought of gossip, and the influence it may have on her subsequent life, does not enter the girl's mind for a moment. She compromises herself without a qualm, though throughout with every semblance of innocence.

Everything in this series of scenes graduates up to a proposed trip to an isolated lodge. The girl is the one who decides that they shall take this jaunt, and she is not in the least deterred by either the reports of hazards or the fact that she and the opera singer will be the only two guests at the almost inaccessible place in the mountains.

The climb up the mountain itself is not without event. Leo and her companion are all but killed by an avalanche. It is a spectacular affair, and the net result of it is that Leo is injured and has to be carried to the destination by her companion.

It is at the lodge that the change in the man's attitude toward her occurs. The unconventional situation, the fact that the lodgekeeper and his wife persist in regarding them as husband and wife, and then later as—although this can only be vaguely surmised—lovers; the fact that the girl demands that he shall dress the wounds that are the result of the accident, all tend to break down his re-

Of Adult Appeal

"ENTICEMENT"
(Ince—First National)

The tone of "Enticement" might be described as sexy. The novel by Clive Arden, from which it was adapted, in fact, was quite that way, but, in the screen version, the situations have been tempered.

The feature is a very sincere and reserved treatment of a delicate plot problem. The timely note in the story, as well as the work of Mary Astor, Ian Keith and others in principal roles, will, without doubt, appeal very strongly to adult audiences.

SPAIN, the Irresistible

Rosita and Juli in Lewis Gunn's "The Spaniard." She falls in love with Ricardo Cortez, who plays the dashing toreador.

As the heroine of "The Charmer," Pola Negri reminds one of "The Spanish Dancer," one of the earlier features that she made in America.

"Oh, for a moonlit balcony in old Castile"—well, here it is, with Eleanor Boardman and Harrison Ford romantically posed in "Proud Flesh."

WHITHER are we drifting? Along the road to Spain—in our books—our styles—and the pictures of the year.

There seems to be an irresistible lure about the exotic, colorful Spanish atmosphere. In the films, especially, because the costumes and settings are so pictorial. The popular tide turned for a while to the South Seas, but apparently has swung back again.

"The Spaniard," in which Famous Players is featuring Ricardo Cortez and Jetta Goudal, fairly flares with Spanish romance, bull fights and the like, while Pola Negri, in her latest picture, "The Charmer," flashes anew as a fiery girl of the mountains, reviving the days of "Gypsy Blood." "Proud Flesh," with Eleanor Boardman and Harrison Ford, is another romantic picture featuring the colorful country of the castanets. And just to prove that the comedies are not going to be behind the times, Earle Fox rides forth right on the back of the bull, as a much besilvered toreador.

Earle Fox wears the costume of the bullfighter, at any rate, and you may depend on it that his battle with taurus is going to mean some fun.

Speaking of Book Lovers

Writer Finds That Filmland's "Reading Public" Is Right Up to the Minute

By KATHERINE LIPKE

The reading of Colleen Moore is wide in scope and includes Papini's "Life of Christ."

An evening at home, away from the glare of studio lights, and Adolphe Menjou hunts himself a good book—and his pipe.

Pola Negri's library is one of the finest in Hollywood.

The book which Tony Moreno is reading may be any one of a dozen or so which he enjoys picking up for a quiet evening at home.

THEY DO READ—the motion-picture people. In spite of the mythical motion-picture actress who answered, when she was offered a book, "Oh, thank you, but I have a book." In spite of the stories of beautiful libraries filled with exquisitely bound volumes—with leaves uncut.

No doubt, these stories had a good foundation at one time—and perhaps even now there are among the stars individuals whose list of favorite books exists merely in the mind of an enterprising press agent. However, a great majority of the stars I have talked with have shamed me into silence with the extensive quality of their reading.

A talk with Colleen Moore will bring forth the fact that she has read everything from the depths of Russian literature to the lights of modern fiction—and she is very fond of Papini's "Life of Christ." A luncheon with Bryant Washburn, and I am plunged into a discussion of the modernists which leaves me reeling.

Tony Moreno's conversation is peppered with quotations from "Don Quixote" and also from dozens of others. He knows every boy's book on the market. And he's fond of "Mare Nostrum." It's a mixture, certainly, but an interesting one.

And so it goes. Among the cognoscenti of Hollywood (nice expression, that—count the syllables) discussion of books is quite the vogue. Mary Pickford, Doug Fairbanks and Charlie Chaplin have long prided themselves on their clubby evenings delving into the mysteries of history and philosophy. Erich Von Stroheim is one of the screen's most ardent followers of psychology. Every book which takes a dive into this popular subject is fair game for Von. In fact, he carries the study of psychology into psychoanalysis and reads extensively on that. Pity the poor actors and actresses when Von Stroheim starts to psychoanalyse them!

Pola Is Prolific Reader

Pola Negri isn't quite so enthusiastic about psychology. But it is probably the only subject she doesn't touch on.
